DEMONSTRATORS CLASH outside the University of Toronto convocation hall after a group disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand, accused of being in FLQ.

'Death to FLQ', Say Protesters

TORONTO (CP) — Five persons were arrested Sunday after demonstrators disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand.

Two men were injured and a University of Toronto carefaker was temporarily blinded by an irritant sprayed from an aerosol can by a protester as University of Toronto police and members of the audience ejected 20 persons from Convocation Hall.

Chartrand, president of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and Montreal lawyer Robert Lemieux were making the final appearance of a cross-Canada tour sponsored by the Toronto-based Emergency Committee for the Defence of Political Rights in Quebec.

Both are free on bail, awaiting trial on charges of being members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Chartrand was approaching the podium when a youth yelled "Death to the FLQ" and about 12 others, who later said they were members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society, took up the chant.

University police and crowd marshals ejected the protesters. In the ensuing melee a smoke bomb was hurled into the audience of about 700 students, windows were smashed and the heavy wooden door of Convocation Hall was split.

The demonstration had ended by the time five cruisers of Toronto police arrived but a police spokesman said several empty cans of a United States-made irritant spray similar to tear-gas were found. Police also found two full cans and two smoke bombs.

Pakistani Army In Control

NEW DELHI (CP) — East Pakistani rebels were reported holding out at various points today, but the West Pakistani army appeared to be in control of Dacca, the eastern capital.

The rebel radio said that fighting was continuing in Dacca, in the port city of Chittagong and in the towns of Rangpur and Khulna. But the government's Radio Pakistan said the situation in the East was returning to normal, with all government employees returning to work today, banks reopening and the curfew in Dacca lifted from 7-a.m. to 5 p.m.

The rebel and government radios were the only remaining sources of news from the Bengali half of Pakistan since all foreign correspondents were expelled from Dacca during the weekend. But Associated Press correspondent Arnold Zeitlin reported on his arrival in Ceylon Sunday from Dacca that the government troops were in full control of the eastern capital.

Zeitlin said between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were believed killed in fighting Friday and Saturday. Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the Bengali political leader who had been campaigning to end West Pakistan's control of the East, was reported by Radio Pakistan to be in army custody. But other reports, believed to have come from the sheik's supporters, said he was directing the "liberation struggle" from the eastern city of Chittagong.

THOUSANDS FLED

Thousands fled Dacca, Zeitlin said.

Official Indian sources said today that the New Delhi government has received reports that Sheik Mujib is free.

Meanwhile a clandestine radio said today the government radio station in Dacca was captured by the secessionist "liberation army" after fierce fighting, reported the Press Trust of India.

OUTSIDE WORKERS VOTE FOR STRIKE

About 240 Victoria municipal employees voted in favor of a strike Sunday to back up their contract proposals to the city.

The employees are outside workers with parks, traffic and street departments, members of local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Eighty-seven per cent of ballots cast were in favor of striking. Following a stalemate in negotiations, the city's negotiators applied to the B.C. Mediation Commission for a mediation officer.

No strike can be taken until the officer's report is presented, or until he reports no mediated settlement is possible.

Struck Goods Clause Vetoed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Mediation Commission today rejected Teamsters' Union demands for inclusion of a controversial "struck goods" clause in a master agreement covering the general trucking industry in the province.

The dispute between the union and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association, representing the majority of trucking firms in B.C., was sent to the commission for a binding decision after the provincial government stepped in last month to end a week-long strike-lockout in the industry.

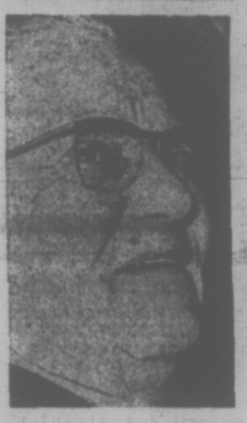
The dispute centred around the struck goods clause, which the union demanded in order that its members would not have to handle goods moved across a legal picket line.

In an 11-page judgment signed by commission chairman John Parker, the commission said the trade-unions act of B.C. "recognizes legal strikes and lockouts but limits picketing to the employer's place of business, operations or employment." It added:

PROTECTION

"The law says in effect, that no trade union or other person shall endeavour to persuade anyone not to handle struck goods. It would be high-handed indeed for us to withdraw this protection which the legislature has granted employers and if we did so, we would clearly be violating the spirit of the law if not the law itself."

The agreement includes a new schedule of wages agreed to by the 3,500-member union and the association last January. Wages under the new contract range from $4.20 an hour for swampers and warehousemen to $4.35 for drivers of heavy trucks, retroactive to Jan. 1.



FIRST Communist chief of state to pay an official visit to Pope Paul, is President Tito of Yugoslavia who conferred for more than an hour with the pontiff today. The pope hailed relations between the Vatican and Yugoslavia and an example of how the church and Communist countries can live peacefully together.

Free Vote On Ad Ban?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herb Capozzi, Social Credit MLA for Vancouver Centre, said today he expects to see opposition in the British Columbia legislature to a government proposal to ban liquor advertising.

Capozzi, whose family owns Calona Wines Ltd., said some feel it would be wrong to prevent manufacturers from promoting preference of their product over another.

"I expect some opposition in the House," he said, pointing out that Premier Bennett has declared the proposal — as well as a bill to ban advertising of tobacco products — a free-vote matter, clear of party lines.

Capozzi said he expected the tobacco advertising bill to win relatively easy passage in the House.

Book-Off Drive Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP)— Virtually all traffic on CNR and CP Rail lines in British Columbia was at a standstill today as a book-off by enginemen spread.

Spokesmen for both railways said freight and passenger service now is "completely paralyzed."

The book-off by enginemen, which started in the Vancouver area Wednesday, spread to Prince George in the north Sunday, disrupting operation of the CNR line between Jasper, Alta., and and Prince Rupert.

A CNR spokesman said only "three or four" engine crews still had not booked off on the northern line, but they were located at the ends of the line and could not maintain traffic.

CP Rail said its Dayliner service between Victoria and Courtenay on Vancouver Island was the only part of it system still running.

The book-off—to protest delayed negotiations between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the railways—and resulting layoffs have left about 4,000 railway employees out of work.

Thousands of other workers in industries dependent on the railroads could be laid off this week as the effects of the rail stoppage spreads.

OTHERS AFFECTED

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority said 80 employees on its lower mainland rail operation were laid off, effective Sunday midnight, because there was no work on lines connecting with CNR and CP Rail.

A Hydro spokesman said a skeleton crew of about 25 men will be kept on to shuttle freight from the U.S. border.

More than 3,300 CP Rail employees have been laid off in the Pacific region, and the jobs of another 1,500 employees are threatened if the book-off continues.

CN Rail has laid off between 500 and 600 men between Kamloops and Vancouver.

About 790 workers on both railways are involved in the book-offs in B.C.

Bob Gallagher, manager of the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association said a "good percentage" of the 6,000 men working in mills around Prince George will be out of work this week.

Railway spokesmen said the companies have agreed to meet with negotiators for the engineers' union in Montreal Tuesday, "prepared to negotiate to conclusion."

The dispute involves wages, vacations, statutory holidays, medical insurance, job differentials and a wide range of working rules.

CARGOES ON SIDINGS

The union is unhappy with the majority decision of a federal conciliation board which rejected the engineers' bid for a 13.4 per cent wage increase. The previous contract expired 11 months ago.

CP Rail has 4,000 cars of grain strung out from Vancouver to Calgary with 700 carloads on sidings in the Vancouver area. A CN spokesman said his company has some 3,500 cars of wheat between the coast and the Prairies.

Viet Cong Hit-Run Raid Leaves 33 Gls Dead

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese sappers ran through a United States artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest U.S. death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in U.S. control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. command said.

There was a general stepup in Communist action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon.

PINNED DOWN

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Viet Cong gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. Americal Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down fewer than 400 Americans defending the base. Dynamite bombs wrecked some artillery guns and cut some communication lines to rear headquarters.

ARTILLERY FIRE

A South Vietnamese fire base a few hundred yards away was not attacked. It provided artillery fire for the American base during the attack.

The two bases are midway between the Laotian border and the populous coastal lowlands and are the western-most anchor of southern combined forces defences in the region. Their mission is to harass North Vietnamese supply lines and infiltration corridors running to the coast.

Available records for the last four years show that the heaviest previous American toll in such an attack was 32 killed and 31 wounded when sappers hit Fire Base Henderson 17 miles south of the demilitarized zone May 6, 1970. However, 19 South Vietnamese were killed and 40 were wounded in that attack.

New Undersea Cable To Europe Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A new trans-Atlantic cable will be placed by 1974, capable of adding more than 1,840 telephone circuits between Canada and Europe, Communications Minister Eric Kierans announced in the Commons Monday.

Mr. Kierans said months of negotiation have resulted in agreement between Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp., a Crown-owned agency, and the British Post office. Canadian investment would be $37 million.

The cable would run from a point in Nova Scotia to a point in Cornwall, England.

The high-capacity cable would have 400 circuits more than all existing trans-Atlantic cables, he said.

CONCORDE DELAYED FOR NINE MONTHS

LONDON (AP) — The British-French supersonic airliner Concorde is not expected to be ready to enter service until at least the fall of 1974, it was disclosed today.

There was no official explanation of the nine-month delay. Most recent estimates by the British government and the British Aircraft Corp. — which is building the plane with Aerospatial of France — were that Concorde would be in service by late 1973 or early 1974.

HUGE SLICK OFF COAST

33 Lost as Oil Tanker Snaps in Two

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Thirty-three of 44 crew members were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a life-raft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the United States Coast Guard resumed a search for possible survivors.

A huge oil slick is 50 miles off coast and moving to the northwest.

Most of the missing crew were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The U.S. Coast Guard said it was a mystery why nearly two thirds of the crew apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661-foot vessel broke in two in 15-foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the coast guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

LEFT STERN

Both messages, the coast guard said, reported 20 crew members missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084-ton tanker early Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, Tex., said however that records showed 42 crew members aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft Sunday afternoon.

The coast guard had difficulty learning details of what happened, but a spokesman said one message from the Sasstown quoted the survivors as saying the stern section they abandoned sank half an hour afterward.

They were reported to have said the other crew members were scattered throughout the rest of the ship, which they saw for the last time at midnight, 18½ hours after they launched the raft. They did not see the rest of the ship sink, nor did they see any other rafts, the coast guard said.

FIND OIL SLICK

By the time the coast guard got a plane into the air late Sunday, all it found was a huge oil slick. The pilot, Lt.-Cmdr. Patrick H. Cannon, said the Sasstown by then was 145 miles east of Elizabeth City, N.C., in seas running eight to 10 feet.

The Texaco Oklahoma was en route from Port Arthur to Boston with a cargo of 220,000 barrels of sulphur fuel oil, the coast guard said.

. . . PAKISTAN

There was no confirmation of the report.

The Dacca radio station had been silent since noon today and there were none of the usual news broadcasts from there.

SITUATION IMPROVING

The official radio also said the situation in Chittagong, East Pakistan's main port, was improving. The army-controlled Radio Dacca said several thousand troops had been flown to Chittagong and the martial law authorities had asked for more reinforcements from West Pakistan.

Free Bangla Radio, monitored in Calcutta, announced the establishment of a provisional government of Bangla Desh (Bengali Nation) under Maj. Jia Khan, described as the head of the Liberation Army.

The clandestine station said Sheik Mujib would guide the government from Chittagong, where he was directing the "liberation struggle."

The Liberation Army, through unconfirmed reports reaching India, said it was holding Chittagong, Comilla, Rangpur, Saidpur and said it seized army military stations at Jessore and Khulna. They were resisting in the face of severe shelling and bombing, the reports said.

Other reports quoted by the Press Trust of India said "freedom fighters" had destroyed rail lines in some areas and added that civilians were denying all help and supplies to West Pakistan troops.

It was not clear where the supporters of the sheik were getting the weapons to stand up to the armed forces, said to be equipped with Soviet tanks, Chinese small arms and American planes.

The 70 million Bengalis of East Pakistan are geographically divided from the 50 million Punjabis and other peoples of West Pakistan by more than 1,000 miles of Indian territory; the chief link between them is their common Moslem religion. Although the East Pakistanis outnumber the West Pakistanis, the latter have always dominated the central government and the army and thus controlled the country.

When the Awami League won a majority in the new National Assembly in elections in December, the by Sheik Mujib vowed to write a new constitution providing autonomy for East Pakistan.

The sheik launched a successful campaign of civil disobedience in Dacca early this month and in effect took over the eastern government. Although martial law had been proclaimed, the army held back while President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan negotiated in Dacca with Mujib and West Pakistan's chief political leader, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. But the president flew back to Karachi Friday, and military command moved its troops from West Pakistan out of their barracks to smash the nationalist rebellion.

The simmering Indo-Pakistan dispute was brought into the crisis when the Pakistan government accused India of interference in its domestic affairs. It also said that India had set up a clandestine radio on a ship in the River Hoogly near Calcutta which was broadcasting concocted stories about the situation in East Pakisaan.

India denied both allegations as baseless.

CP Orders 600 Cars

An order of 600 new specialized lumber-carrying cars worth $8.5 million will be in service of Canadian Pacific Railway by the end of June.

The company said it is doubling the number of its bulkhead flatcars and adding to the number of double-door boxcars in operation.

The flatcars will be assigned exclusively to international service over the U.S. border.

Another program will see conversion of 150 single-door boxcars to the preferred double-door configuration this year, with more to follow in later years.

Shadow Mischief

Labor Federation Rebuffed by NDP

VANCOUVER (CP) — "No group outside this party can nominate candidates under this party's name," the leader of British Columbia's New Democrats said Saturday night.

Dave Barrett, opposition leader in the Legislature, was addressing an NDP dinner in suburban Richmond.

His comments followed by a day an announcement by the B.C. Federation of Labor that it intends to run at least 10 of its own candidates under the NDP banner in the next provincial election.

The announcement was made by federation secretary-treasurer Ray Haynes who said he would be one of the candidates in a head-on collision between labor and the Social Credit government.

He spoke after a special federation convention called to deal with what the 150,000-member organization describes as anti-union measures enacted by the Bennett government.

Barrett said that while the NDP welcomes affiliated groups, it is the membership as a whole that determines policies and does the decision-making when it comes to candidates.

He added:

"This party is not a labor party. It does not represent any single segment of society but the at-large aspirations of all the people of British Columbia.

"No group outside this party can nominate candidates under this party's name.

"No individual can become a candidate representing this party without first putting his name before a constituency nominating convention.

"No candidate for public office under this party can represent a segment of society exclusive of the total party policy."

Damages Denied To Juror

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A woman juror who was taken hostage and was shot in the right arm during a courthouse shootout will get no damages from Marin County, a judge has ruled.

Maria Elena Graham, 48, of San Rafael had been paid $5 as a jury member on last Aug. 7

Her $350,000 damage suit was dismissed Thursday by Superior Court Judge Henry Broderick, who ruled that state law exempts government entities from being held liable for injuries caused by escaping prisoners. Mrs. Graham said her arm is damaged permanently

Four men died in the shootout.

KENNEDY LEADING MUSKIE—GALLUP

MARIETTA, Ohio (UPI) — George Gallup Jr. said Sunday night his latest public opinion poll shows Sen. Edward Kennedy leading for the Deomcratic nomination for president in 1972.

Gallup, who participated in a symposium on public opinion at Marietta College, said 46 per cent of the Democrats queried chose Kennedy to 43 per cent for Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. Kennedy was picked by 47 per cent when matched against Sen. Humbert Humphrey of Minnesota, who received 42 per cent support.

"The latest findings on the Democratic candidacy is that Senator Muskie of Maine is winning support from Democratic leaders, but not correspondingly from registered Democrats," Gallup said.

Teacher Pleads Not Guilty

Cowichan school teacher Louis Trapler, 38, of Duncan, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault causing bodily harm to one of his students when he appeared in Duncan Provincial Court this morning.

The charge was laid by Nicholas Cook of Westholme, father of the student, 13-year-old Joseph Cook.

Trapler is alleged to have struck a student in the face with his fist.

Trapler, who has taught at Mount Prevost junior high school for the past five years, was remanded until April 30.

A three-man committee, set up by the provincial education department to investigate the incident, failed to come to a unanimous agreement when they met Feb. 15.

The Cowichan and District School Board has appealed to the Council of Public Instruction to carry out another investigation.

Continent State Next Step

By AB KENT

Continentalism is the coming thing in the organization of states and Canada's interests lie in that direction, believes a European career politician visiting Victoria.

As a world-mover, the nation state is in decline, said Jean Rey, of Liege, Belgium, in an interview prior to addressing the Victoria group of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada.

Past-president of the Commission for European Communities, Rey said the world is "at a very interesting period," with nations coming to realize the growing importance of continental relationships.

Europe has made a significant start with its European Economic Community, he suggested.

The EEC has had 10 years of economic and monetary union and is now looking forward to enlargement. Rey said he hopes that by 1980 there will be a common European currency.

But meanwhile, and possibly more significant, will be what he called a "modest attempt to build political union through harmonization of foreign policy."

For 20 years Rey has been a member of Belgian parliament and he has held various other offices from the local level up. European political movements are his current interest.

His tour of Canada, which started in the Maritimes, is sponsored by the institute of public administration and covers 11 centres.

His speech tonight in Princess Charlotte room of the Empress Hotel will dwell on achievements of the Common Market, its responsibilities and tasks in the world, touching on Canadian interest in the EEC. Canada, he noted, has been a member of the Organization of Economic Co-operation and Development for a decade.

Rey, who gave up his practice of law in 1954, has been a member of the board of supervisors (control) for the giant Phillips company since last November. He agreed with the suggestion that Canada had directed too much of its energies to developing its natural resources rather than secondary industries, and also that there should be far more interest in Canada shown by European countries.

Three big CP Rail coal trains bound for Roberts Bank south of Vancouver are stalled west of Revelstoke.

Other export materials—including sulphur, potash, gypsum and other dry cargo—are tied up in stalled boxcars in the Vancouver area.

Hundreds more boxcars of general retail merchandise are awaiting switching to unloading areas.

The railway companies have embargoed freight shipments in Vancouver because of the work stoppage.

More than 300 laid-off rail employees paraded in front of the unemployment insurance office in downtown Vancouver in a protest demonstration. They carried signs reading "A contract or a rusty nail" and "Don't railroad us, let us railroad for you."

Minister Besieged By Angry Landlords

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Israeli Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir locked himself in his office today to escape the wrath of 50 landlords who broke into his ministry in support of claims for higher rents.

The landlords struck several ministry officials as they rushed the guard at the entrance and surged up the stairs to Sapir's first-floor office in an unprecedented demonstration of protest against an Israeli minister.

When Sapir barricaded himself from the advancing horde by locking his door, the demonstrators sat on the floor hooting and shouting: "We want justice, why do we have to suffer?"

There were no arrests and the landlords later dispersed.

The demonstration climaxed months of action by the country's landlords who have been clamoring for higher rents which they claim have been frozen while the cost of living has soared.

Open House

The public has been invited to look through Cool Aid's new building, the Emmanuel Baptist Church, during an open house Saturday.

Cool Aid expects to buy the church, located at Fernwood and Gladstone, and will use it this summer to accommodate young transients.

"There have been a lot of questions asked, so we want to show people what we're up to," said Cool Aid spokesman Laurie Smith.

Open house will run from 12 to 5 p.m. Saturday. Cool Aid staff and members of the Victoria Youth Council will give guided tours through the building. Tea and coffee will be served.

More Controls In Woods Seen

VANCOUVER (CP) — A global approach to renewable resource management will mean more government control, more expense and a loss of former freedoms for Canada's forest industries, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today.

But the result will be greater biological, social and economic stability, he said.

Mr. Davis, speaking to a meeting of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Forestry Association, said forest products companies are bound to be uneasy over the new concern about the environment.

An ecological approach toward forest management involves interests other than those of forest industries, he said.

COSTS HIGHER

Such an approach demanded expenditures for pollution control as well as restriction of logging activities which once ignored recreational and esthetic aspects of forest land.

It means "more rather than less interference from outside," Mr. Davis said.

"It means other industries, and especially recreation industries, in your midst. It means more city dwellers visiting your limits, especially in the summertime.

"It means more fisheries officers and game wardens wandering around. It means more government rather than less."

CAN'T BE AVOIDED

"You are becoming a part of a bigger and more demanding society whether you like it or not," Mr. Davis said.

Good forest management would result in forests more pleasing to see, more attractive for recreation and suited to more wildlife, he said.

The text of the speech was released in advance of delivery.

Strike Vote Taken

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 220-member Brewery and Soft Drink Workers' Union has voted in favor of strike action to back contract demands in a dispute with the Carling and O'Keefe breweries. The union wants an 82-cent-an-hour increase over two years. The companies have offered 38 cents.

EAST PAKISTANIS stand in the ruins of their homes, destroyed by government artillery when the army attacked strongholds of the independence movement in Dacca. AP photographer Michel Laurent was expelled with other newsmen after taking this picture. (AP wirephoto)

Bengal Rebellion Crushed by Tanks

Associated Press photographer Michel Laurent was in Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan, when the Pakistani army cracked down on the Bengali independence movement. Correspondents were confined to their hotel, but Laurent evaded the ban and toured devasted areas of the city. The correspondents were deported during the weekend.

By MICHEL LAURENT

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) — The Pakistani army attacked the Bengali independence movement in Dacca without warning Thursday night and took the people by surprise.

The army's U.S. M-24 tanks, artillery and infantry destroyed large parts of East Pakistan's largest city and capital.

The chief targets were the university, the populous Old City where Sheik Mujibur Rahman and his Awami League were strongest, and the industrial areas on the outskirts of the city of 1.5 million people.

Perhaps 7,000 persons were killed in the capital alone.

Touring the still burning battle areas Saturday and Sunday, one found the burned bodies of some students still in their dormitory beds.

TANKS STRIKE

The tanks had made direct hits on the dormitories.

A mass grave had been hastily filled in at the Jaffernath College; 200 students were reported killed in Iqbal Hall. About 20 bodies were still lying on the ground and in the dormitories.

Troops are reported to have fired bazookas into the medical college hospital but the casualty toll there was not known.

Thousands fled the city with only what they could carry. Some pushed carts loaded with food and clothes. Only a few persons returned to government jobs despite the orders of the military regime.

Sheik Mujib whose electoral success in December encouraged him to seek autonomy for East Pakistan, was reported under arrest.

His campaign, which could have ended in the secession of East Pakistan, appeared to have suffered a serious setback.

RESISTANCE LIGHT

Resistance to the army was reported negligible. The people are obeying military orders to turn in weapons.

The Pakistan national flag is again flying from most government buildings. It had been replaced in the last 10 days by the green, red and yellow Bangla Desh (Bengali Nation) flag of independence.

In the old city, elderly men and women poked among the smouldering ruins of their homes.

Army trucks and armored cars patrolled the almost deserted streets.

Cars were pasted with Pakistani flags to ward off fire from army patrols.

CBC Workers Ratify Contract For 24% Over Three Years

MONTREAL (CP) — A three-year contract between the CBC and its 2,200 clerical and administrative employees has received national ratification, a spokesman for the employees said today.

The spokesman said 11 of 14 national locals had ratified the settlement, which will give the workers wage increases of up to 24 per cent over the life of the contract.

The spokesman for the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (ARTEC) said that under the contract, lower wage scale employees will receive a larger wage package than better-paid employees.

All increases are retroactive to the expiry date of the last contract, April 1, 1970.

BASIC BOOST BIGGER

New wage scales, reached after more than 15 months of negotiating, will give workers in the $3,000 to $6,000-a-year bracket a first-year increase of four per cent, plus a $240 basic yearly pay boost.

This lower-level bracket then receives an increase of six per cent in the second year of the contract and 5½ per cent in the third year, a 24-per-cent increase over three years.

For higher level employees, whose salaries range up to about $12,000 a year, increases will be $210 for the first year, plus a four-per-cent wage boost. In the next two years, increases amount to six and 5½ per cent.

FOUL DEED OBSERVED BY MANY

LONDON (UPI) — When Sylvia Hamer, 21, walked across the Victoria Station platform in her hot pants, male eyes followed closely.

When a purse snatcher grabbed at her bag, the horde of admirers gallantly gave chase, grabbing him before he could leave the station.

Michael Connolly, 25, was fined $24 in court. He told the court: "I had not eaten for three days. After a while you get too hungry to appreciate dollies. As soon as I get a job, I'll pay back the money."

Proof of the Pudding

ONE OF THE MOST ATTENtion-getting planks in Quebec Premier Bourassa's election platform a year ago was an undertaking to produce 100,000 jobs for Quebec workers. It was an attractive prospect for voters, but clearly a formidable task for any government. So Mr. Bourassa has found it, and the side-effects of the federal government's necessary anti-inflationary program have added to his difficulties.

Now, the likelihood of a large degree of failure in the employment program — and the inevitably adverse reaction of the people of Quebec, who have been among the victims of the heaviest unemployment rate in Canada — may be a salient reason for Mr. Bourassa's increasingly critical attitude toward Ottawa. If anti-federal sentiment and economic improvement are the two most salable political commodities in Quebec today, and Mr. Bourassa is losing out on the latter appeal, then it would be only good politics to put a little more stress on the former aspect.

Only last Friday, Mr. Bourassa told 5,000 Liberal Party supporters that he will not allow Ottawa to encroach on the province's constitutional jurisdictions. Three times within three days Mr. Bourassa or cabinet members had played the same theme — that they will oppose further centralization of constitutional powers in Ottawa. It boils down to federalism yes, centralism no. And if that is a thin political line in many cases, Mr. Bourassa appears determined to hold it, and to make the best political capital possible out of it.

The fact is that Mr. Bourassa's efforts to improve the economic and the political state of Quebec have both run into doldrums. The vast unemployment totals have yielded little yet to federal work projects, provincial plans or the cautiously restricted overtures of private industry. And the constitutional reforms, which in the last few years have played so large a part in Quebec's political scene as a means of gaining greater provincial powers, have shown little more visible progress in the 11 months since Mr. Bourassa's arrival in office than in the years preceding it.

It is hardly surprising, then, that Mr. Bourassa, pressed by mounting opposition efforts and anxious to show some practical results of his leadership, feels compelled to move out along a firmer approach to federal relationships. His arrival in the premiership was greeted thankfully by the rest of Canada as a promise of better relations between Ottawa and Quebec — and this has been borne out in a quieter, more co-operative atmosphere. But separatism and its associated doctrines are still active in Quebec, and Mr. Bourassa's de-emphasis of anti-Ottawa postures has to show results of some sort if it is to be a domestically viable policy for his Liberal administration. Now he has knocked the ball into Mr. Trudeau's court.

Asking the Public's Help

CONFLICT AND DISTRESS INvolved in expropriation proceedings as well as strenuous public protest against the location of power lines have revealed one of the major disabilities of current methods employed by B.C. Hydro in providing increased supplies of electrical power. It is a problem for which Northeast Utilities in Massachusetts and Connecticut appear to have found a partial answer.

The utility drafts various proposals concerning sites. It then invites the widest possible public discussion of alternatives, declining to force down the throats of people in the areas concerned the preconceived decision of the utility. The public discussion involves environmental, social and economic factors.

Lelan F. Sillin Jr., president of Northeast Utilities, says: "The utility, in struggling with technology, should engage in environmental planning of facilities, should encourage a greater public involvement in its plans, and be prepared for an orderly public procedure for reviewing plant sitings and the rights-of-way to ensure the fullest protection of the environment and the reconciliation of environmental quality and economic costs of power."

Since in all parts of this continent the demand for power will continue to increase (the United States Federal Power Commission anticipates a doubling of consumption each decade until the end of the century) Northeast's policy promises as harmonious an approach as possible to meeting such needs with a minimum of distress to members of the public. The alternative that seems to be applied here, a bulldozer approach by authority which beats down protest, individual or collective, from the public, leaves too many scars in its wake — and not only those through the forest and open land where the power lines are erected.

Passport to Peking

PRESIDENT NIXON'S GESTURE in lifting the final restrictions on American travel to Communist China is significant. But the results of the decision to make passports available to United States citizens for entry into that country may be negligible. Since the complete ban on American travel to China was eased by Washington in July, 1969, 1,000 passports have been validated for scholars, journalists, students, scientists and members of Congress. Only three of them have been matched by visas from China permitting entry.

Under the circumstances, it is unlikely that the new American move will start a flood of American tourists into the nation which the United States sought to isolate by a policy adopted 23 years ago.

The significance of the gesture lies in the fact that the ball is now in Peking's court. The next move is up to Mao. President Nixon has shown once more a desire to facilitate Red China's return to the community of nations. How appealing that prospect may be to Peking is doubtful as long as Washington continues to support a two-China policy for admission into the United Nations. Mao has shown no enthusiasm for that policy in the past and little has occurred recently to alter his attitude.

At the same time the easing of the United States stand is important whatever its causes. The trend will be noted by Canada, which already has recognized China and thereby set a course which the United States appears to be also preparing to sail.

Frightening Thought

New York Times

PROFESSIONAL students of the Soviet Union were not surprised the other day to learn of the cynical distortion with which a Soviet "scholarly" magazine presented Supreme Court Justice Douglas's book to its readers.

The technique of tearing material out of context by carefully eliminating all "unsuitable" passages is one long practised by Soviet propagandists. Mr. Douglas is not likely to be the last victim. His criticisms of this country were welcome in Moscow, but not his balancing recognition of American freedom and American prosperity.

This kind of routine, flagrant Soviet dishonesty is particularly repellent when practised under the cover of "academic" credentials by editors and "scholars" who visit this country, where they often claim and obtain the privilege of expressing their views fully and freely.

But it is fundamentally a sign of weakness and fear, especially evident in this case since the limited audience of the magazine consists of sophisticated Soviet students of the United States.

In his time, Khrushchev wrote, Stalin believed the lies about Soviet prosperity which his kept press printed. Are Brezhnev and Kosygin similarly prisoners of the propaganda stereotypes about the United States?

Correspondence From Our Readers

Juvenile Devices

In view of the present unfortunate situation at the University of Victoria, I would like to air some of my personal views. First, I am ashamed and disgusted to be a member of the alumni of a university which is in grave danger of being blacklisted among Canadian universities. How much will your Uvic degree be worth if that happens, students?

Secondly, it strikes me that undergraduate students who can be admitted to this University with only a 50 per cent academic average are in a poor position to be constantly demanding equal representation with faculty on policy-making decisions. Policy-making sessions are sure to degenerate then into just the kind of repetitive, name-calling, shouting-down sessions to which the students have been subjecting faculty and administration in "meetings" over the past few weeks.

Third, the taxpayers who, as stated in the "To the People of Victoria" message in The Times of March 24, "help to pay 80 per cent of the University's costs" must be getting as fed up as I am with the juvenile attention-getting devices of the students, which are reported daily in the local press. Lastly, all I can say is, the curriculum must be much easier than when I was an undergraduate just three years ago, because we didn't have time for such sustained campaigns of hate. — Judith M. Bell, B. A. '68.

CAUT

Why should Victoria worry if the Canadian Association of University Teachers should outlaw our university? Why shouldn't that be good for Uvic?

It would simply be a firm announcement to a certain type of university professor that they are not welcome here. Isn't that just what we want?

To the desirable type it would simply mean that we would welcome them here. And isn't that just what we want?

University professors know how to read between the lines—Marian Genge.

Committee Analysis

This letter is to inform the "people of Victoria" and not to persuade or to bias your views, as the advertisements such as that placed in the Times by the so-called Steering Committee of the Alma Mater Society (March 24), intended to do.

First of all, the facts concerning the funds allotted ($1350) to the Steering Committee by the Uvic Student Representative Assembly came about as the result of political manoeuvring by the said committee. They called for a meeting of the R.A. on Monday, (March 22) at 5:05 p.m. when they knew most of the R.A. members against their views would be at home while, at the same time being sure they had sufficient R.A. members supporting their views at that meeting. In any case, the fund allotment passed narrowly by a vote of 14 to 12, while 20 of the 46 elected members were absent. Therefore, it should not and cannot be legitimately construed to have the full support of any large number of the 5000 students at Uvic, as the members of the Steering Committee would like the general public to think.

Secondly, the committee tends to ignore entirely the real issue behind the tenure document which the Faculty members themselves formulated and accepted three or four years ago. The CAUT, as was mentioned in the Times on March 19, found nothing irregular about the document itself, though they did mention they were not certain as to the "spirit" of its implementation. But they have not and did not elaborate as to what they meant by the word "spirit" which requires purely a subjective judgment by the individual as he sees best fit to support his own personal feelings and hence the CAUT has only confused the issue concerning the non renewal of tenure of the "twelve" Faculty members concerned.

Thirdly, the CAUT has made no official statement nor even mentioned in passing the possibility of censure of the University. This dangerous rumor about censure was formulated by the committee itself, based on three comments by anonymous faculty members (three out of a membership of over 400) who just happened to be at a "mass rally" on March 19. Furthermore the "mass rally" was called and controlled by the Steering Committee only to give the public the illusion that they had the full support of the vast majority of the students. If it wasn't for the free music and the excitement or appeal of "mass rallies" like in the old Hitler Days, very few students, who had nothing better to do at lunch hour, would have attended. Thus the rally and future rallies should not be construed as signs of past and future support for the actions of the Steering Committee. Moreover the danger of rumors can be seen by the hasty action of 160 Faculty members who have become afraid of the idea of censure which three of their own members brought from out of the air.

Fourthly, I ask the people of Victoria not to be fooled by the advertisment placed in Wednesday's Times by the committee. The advertisement states that "As a taxpayer, you help pay 80 per cent of the University's costs" and hence should be concerned. I agree you should be concerned, however not by what Dr. Partridge is doing "to" the University but rather with what the committee wants you to believe he is doing "to" the university.

Fifthly, the attacks upon the personal character of Dr. Partridge by the editor of the Uvic martlet, who just happens to have gotten himself elected on the Steering Committee, are totally irrelevant when they have been used to confuse the issue of the tenure document.

Finally, the advertisement has in no way elaborated on what he has supposedly done "to" the University and its innuendoes only help cloud the issues. —Ray Choy, Junior Academic Assistant, Dept. of Economics, Uvic, Third Year Economics Student.

We Do Care

This is in answer to a large open letter, published March 24. Yes, we do care; as people with some idealism, and some pride, and (I hope) some intelligence. But, "as a taxpayer:" no. Equating education with money is insulting; it shows a total lack of understanding of the nature and purpose of education.

(As a taxpayer, I pay part of the costs of highways, in this big province. Am I therefore justified in criticizing the first road-construction crew that I meet? Would the foreman appreciate my interference, and my insisting that he should justify to me, all his decisions concerning his own work? I trust the analogy is clear.)

Being the president of a college or university must be an overwhelmingly difficult assignment. The least that the "People of Victoria," both on and off the campus, can do, is to support him, and the Board of Governors, with absolute confidence and loyalty. — A Housewife.

Glib Cartoon

I thought your cartoon comment on Uvic's student meeting (Tuesday's issue) was very very glib. However, there is some doubt as to whether the prerogative of the "news" media is to be that partisan. I am sure, however, that President Partridge and family will be delighted to know they have your support. Perhaps at your next newspaperman's meeting, when you are pondering which institutions might next fall under your attack, you might assail a slightly less worthy cause.—Elizabeth Webb, 2nd year Arts and Science, University of Victoria.

Threats to Parks

We wish to warn you and the people of Canada about current threats to our national parks. Unsuitable activities like power developments, lumbering, mining and settlement have already occurred in these parks. Hence, it is essential that further erosion and disfigurement of the wildland heritage supposedly protected in our national parks be prevented.

Current masterplans for Banff National Park clearly indicate threats to that area arising from expansion of the Trans-Canada Highway, extension of roads and ski areas, and the development of urban facilities in Banff and elsewhere. A major threat, in the form of a multi-million dollar urban development at Lake Louise, is scarcely mentioned. Such a complex, financed in part by Imperial Oil, can only mar the landscape in the vicinity of one of Canada's traditional beauty spots.

The endless proliferation of buildings, boutiques, car parks, gas stations, cafes and bars in our parks must be brought to a halt. The past record of the federal government, private enterprise and Imperial Oil in Banff Park give cause for great concern. It is time to ask questions, to write to Ottawa, and to indicate that abuse of the parks will be tolerated no longer.

Public hearings on the national parks master plans are currently being held so now is the time to show concern. Join the growing number of Canadians prepared to act to ensure that our children in the year 2000, seeking peace, solitude and wild scenic splendor, in our national parks, will be rewarded. — J. Marsh M. Lindsay.

Loon Bay Pollution

At the meeting of the Oak Bay Municipal Council on March 22, a copy of a letter to myself from Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, Chief Medical Health Officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, was discussed. This letter was a statement of the present condition of the water at Loon Bay Beach with regard to suitability for swimming and the probable effects that the breakwater and the yacht club expansion would have on the safety of the beach for swimming in the future.

As reported in your paper of March 23, Alderman Dowell took issue with this letter and said that "coliform samples should have been taken at the end of Humber Rd. where there is a sewage outfall instead of at Loon Bay Beach."

It is unfortunate that Alderman Dowell does not understand the principles involved in the water sampling. What we are interested in is whether Loon Bay Beach is fit and safe for swimming at present and whether the Y.C. expansion is likely to render it unfit and polluted. Therefore the area to be tested should be the beach where the bathing is done, not the area at the end of Humber Rd. where we know there is a sewer outfall, where we know the water there is unfit for swimming.

An inspection of the maps showing the sewage outlets in the area and the shape of the coast-line make it apparent that it is very unlikely that any appreciable quantity of the sewage from the Humber Rd. outfall finds its way to Loon Bay Beach. The only other major sewage outfall in the area and undoubtedly the one responsible with the boats for the rising summer coliform counts in Loon Bay is the effluent from the large septic tank at the end of Ripon Rd., the major contributor to which is the Y.C. itself. A septic tank does not prevent pollution, all it does is filter some of the solid material in sewage, the liquid content and the organisms which can be dangerous to health go on into the bay.

This septic tank effluent from the Y.C. also makes nonsense of claims by Y.C. spokesmen that members do not use the heads on their boats when they are moored at dockside but go up to the club and use the toilets there. If the public is naive enough to believe that statement, what difference does it make, the stuff just runs straight out the septic tank outfall into the bay anyway.

The breakwater will interfere with tidal flushing away of this effluent and the increased docks, boats and people will further compound the problem turning the dock area and Loon Bay into a stinking cesspool. Is this what the people of Victoria want for a beautiful part of their city — Ross Henry, 3295 Beach.

Too Much Authority

In your issue of March 22 you are asked a few questions by "Disgusted and Concerned". I feel much the same as he and as many others must do too.

The main trouble with Unions today is that they have been given too much legal authority by our governments. They become organized pressure groups where their legal powers are exercised by the leaders at the top while the ordinary member is intimidated to do as he is told.

By law an employer has to accept union control of his employees as soon as a union agent manages to persuade 51% of such employees to vote for same. The next step is to apply to the Provincial Labor Commission for recognition and from then on it is an exclusive union shop with labor as boss. Of course then wages have to be increased, even if only to pay the fees of the union leaders.

The day of the employee having to look to and depend on an employer for a job seems to have passed. The employer provides the initiative, brains, capital, and management to create and operate a job, and then a day after an employee joins he can become one more in a union group telling his employer how and what he must do to satisfy the union.

Frankly, one is made to wonder why we have come to accept these days of union monopoly, where one has to work under a union or not at all. Yet the unions are the first ones to condemn monopoly in anyone else's hands!

In these so-called advanced days of our civilization we could well dispense with unions, and substitute independent commissions to adjust differences and complaints. Something of that nature can not come too soon, even if only as a curb to inflation brought on by ridiculous wage demands. — Also Disgusted and Concerned.

Looking Back

From the Times of March 29, 1911:

Every day large numbers of people call at the immigration offices here for information in regard to sending for relatives or friends in the Old Country. People coming into Canada must have $25 in cash and a ticket to their destination. If however, they have relatives or friends here who are willing to support them until they secure employment they do not need to have that much money.

Surprise! Nixon on Right Track in the Mideast

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN
The Washington Post

When a man tells you a lie even though he knows you are going to find him out, it's not so much a reflection on his honesty as on his judgment.

Such thoughts don't give this administration pause. Their South Vietnamese hirelings are abandoning their equipment in the field and are being chased through the jungle from hill to hillock, but Nixon, Laird, Kissinger et all go right on displaying their oil pipes; they continue to announce that this isn't the rout of a destroyed army, but a demonstration of mobility, a military pas de deux.

All objectives are being successfully met, they insist, the fruits of victory will be evident next fall. They talk as if, after Austerlitz and the ruination of the Russo-Austrian army, Napoleon had said you won't be able to tell who won for five or six months.

This kind of lying isn't political, it's pathological, and you can't avoid thinking the people who do it have organically deficient judgment.

Hence it's unnerving when Nixon and company do something right. The same men who prolong the scandal of Indochina are serving us and the world well in the Middle East.

□

This is a scorpion of an issue.

In people's minds, if not in logic, it is tied to so many powerful emotions, to the Second World War, to the present treatment of Jews in Russia. Many of us believe that less than 100 per cent support of Israeli war aims will somehow encourage the Soviets in their persecution of the Russian Jewish community.

The Jewish Defense League's cry of "Never again!" tugs at many of us, particularly if we're old enough to remember Hitler. We hear the slogan, and we mutter "Amen!"

But the Arabs are neither Germans nor Nazis. They're a poor and frequently exploited people who've needed more than a generation to reconcile themselves to being driven from the rocks and sands of Palestine, or that portion of it which is now Israel. That their new Israeli neighbors are a western, European people has made accommodation to this new state in their midst much more difficult.

Yet for the most part their governments have made it. Jordan and Egypt have unmistakeably signified a willingness to sign a peace treaty. Lebanon gets along with everybody. All they want to do is trade. The only holdout is Syria and they're not going to be able to do diddly-squat without the military assistance of their brethren.

The biggest obstacle to an agreement is the Israeli refusal to cough up the land occupied during the 1967 war. Not every inch of it, but most of it.

Nobody really expects them to return the Golan Heights so that the Syrians can resume lobbing artillery shells onto their farms. There are other small, strategic dibs and dabs of land that they should probably get to keep, but most of that occupied territory has got to go back to its rightful owners. Otherwise no peace for them, for the Arabs and for the world.

An Egyptian government that signed away the Sinai Peninsula would have as much chance of survival as an administration that gave away Florida. As for Jordan, that poor little sandpatch has nearly destroyed itself getting rid of the guerrillas who were using its territory to fight the Israelis. Surely they've demonstrated that they can be good neighbors, so there is no practical reason for Israel holding onto their land.

But the best reason for the Israelis to pack it in and go back home is Nixon's offer of an American guarantee of their security. Some Israeli leaders are saying they don't trust promises, but certainly if the world has learned anything about us from Vietnam, it's that we keep our commitments. Why we even keep commitments we haven't made.

□

The Nixon-Rogers action in the Middle East shows an astonishing and unlooked-for good will. By offering to go in with the Russians in keeping the peace out there, they've not only made peace possible but may have begun a process that will end in big-power withdrawal from the Middle East and the demilitarization of the whole area.

They've risked political trouble at home to do so. There are a lot of Americans who don't want to fight in Vietnam but are spoiling to have a jim-dandy brawl in the Arabian desert. That won't do. Nor will it do to fail to support Nixon in this because he's not a member of your party or you oppose him on Laos or medical insurance.

To make this work he'll need support. As long as the bellicose segments in Israel believe American public opinion is totally on their side, they're going to resist the administration's friendly, coaxing pressure to give back the war booty. However, many people are loath to make their feelings known because they're afraid of being called anti-semitic or "self-hating Jews," as the case may be.

But we can't intimidate ourselves with such thoughts. Every person knows what's in his heart, and now that Nixon has finally done something right, we, especially those of us who attack him, ought to say so.

Inmates on San Quentin's Death Row

Slaughter on Death Row?

By ANTHONY LEWIS

There are now 620 men in the death cells of American prisons. The sentences ordering them to be hanged or gassed or electrocuted have not been carried out because of pending constitutional challenges on the way courts may impose capital sentences.

It is in fact nearly four years since a life has been taken in the U.S. under authority of law. In that time two cases testing the death sentence procedure have been carried to the Supreme Court, and other courts have broadly barred executions until those cases are decided.

* * *

The Supreme Court is likely to announce its decisions before long, and the general belief among lawyers concerned with the problem is that it will reject the two particular claims before it. Those are that, under the Constitution, a jury may impose the death sentence only under standards specifically laid down by law; and only after a proceeding separate from the trial determination of guilt.

If the Court does reject those arguments, and upholds the two death sentences before it, the immediate legal barrier to all the other executions will be removed. At least in theory, then, the United States will face the appalling prospect of what must seem a mass slaughter.

In California, for example, there are 95 prisoners under death sentence — the largest number in any state. Gov. Ronald Reagan is a firm supporter of capital punishment. But even so, would he want to go down in history as a politician who authorized that kind of blood bath?

Florida has the second largest number of prisoners in death row, 72. (How curious it is that the Sunshine States should head this grizzly list.) Then there are Louisiana with 43, Ohio 42, Texas 41, Illinois 31, Alabama and Goergia 28 each, Pennsylvania 27, New Jersey 22.

* * *

One of the strong arguments against capital punishment has always been that it has a brutalizing effect on the public. That was the feeling that moved Charles Dickens after he saw the savage crowds at public executions in Victorian England.

Whatever one may feel about the death sentence now, one must recognize that we have come a long way from Newgate Prison Yard in public sensibility. For an American state today to carry out 20 or 30 or 90 executions within a short time would be brutalizing in impact.

* * *

For these reasons, the possible effects of the Surpreme Court's decisions in the two pending capital cases have been considered at a high level in Washington. It has been suggested that Attorney General Mitchell, or the President himself, take the lead in urging some form of large-scale clemency for those in death row if the present Constitutional challenges fail.

The difficulty is that capital punishment and clemency are so traditionally matters of state authority, as opposed to federal, in this country. The Nixon Administration, especially, may feel that an attempt at national leadership on this issue would be inappropriate.

The argument the other way is that governors would welcome the support of a conservative national administration in dealing in a humane way with a terrible problem. For the alternatives facing the governors all present difficulties.

One possibility is to commute all present death sentences while warning that those in the future will still be carried out. That course would preserve the deterrent effect of capital punishment that its advocates claim. It might make the actual imposition of death seem accidental — a lottery. But then it is that in practice already, and these men can be said to have paid a special penalty in prolonged uncertainty.

* * *

Another course would be to commute many of the pending sentences in a state but to let a few executions, of the least sympathetic prisoners, be carried out. That could be seen as upholding the capital system, but of course it would put an awful moral burden of decision on governors.

The actual process of executive decision will probably be cushioned by still further legal tests. New constitutional objections to the death sentence will inevitably be pressed, including the broad claim that execution is now a cruel and unusual punishment barred by the Eighth Amendment.

* * *

The Supreme Court as it stands is unlikely to uphold the arguments of the abolitionists. Yet the American legal system will lend itself to further delay and obstruction — and rightly on this issue. For the sharp decline in the number of executions in the last two decades, from 105 in 1951 to 2 in 1967, reflects a deep movement of opinion in the U.S.

Through the law, through legislation, through other public action, the movement against capital punishment will continue to gain strength. Perhaps, in a way, the prospect of mass executions will make more people realize the dangers of killing by law.

Pipeline Break Awakens USSR

By THEODORE SHABAD

MOSCOW — A potentially serious oil spillage on one of the Soviet Union's biggest pipelines has brought the problem of environmental pollution to public attention after a long silence in the officially controlled press.

The pipeline break, according to the official newspaper, Pravda, threatens to infest the sturgeon fishing grounds of the Caspian Sea, the source of caviar, and to spoil fertile bottom lands of nearby collective and state farms.

The Soviet authorities, who are planning to lay a network of large-diameter oil and gas pipelines for thousands of miles overland from west Siberian deposits, have not given much publicity to the possible threat posed to the environment. The gas lines are planned to run as far west as France, West Germany and Italy.

The debate in the United States about the wisdom of laying a pipeline across Alaska from the oil fields in the Arctic to the south coast port of Valdez has received virtually no notice in the Soviet media. The government presumably prefers not to generate a similar controversy in the Soviet Union.

In view of this apparent reticence, Pravda aroused particular interest with a small news item about the pollution danger to the Ural river, which flows to the Caspian.

The pipeline break occurred in an area where the 40-inch line parallels the west bank of the Ural between the cities of Guryev and Uralsk in northwestern Kazakhstan. The 800-mile pipleine was placed into service last year between the Mangyshlak oil fields on the northeast shore of the Caspian and a refining complex in the Kuibyshev area on the Volga river.

The transmission of Mangyshlak crude oil poses particular problems because it has an unusually high wax content and tends to solidify at normal temperatures. Therefore, heating installations had to be added at regular intervals to keep the oil moving.

During recent cold weather the pipeline steel was evidently unable to withstand the strain between the low outside temperature and the high inside temperature from the heated oil and several leaks developed.

Japanese-Americans Find Justice

By CHARLES FOLEY

LOS ANGELES — In a land that sometimes seems to be composed of dissatisfied minorities one ethnic group manages to fit splendidly into the American way of life. The Japanese-Americans have risen from the deprivation, discrimination and despair of the wartime years to a position of acceptance, approval and economic success in the United States.

The greater part of the 300,000-strong Japanese-American community live on the West Coast, and particularly in Los Angeles, where they make up — as one of them put it — "a miniature New York Jewish colony." Japanese-American scientists and engineers are prominent in the aerospace and chemical industries. In electronics, especially, they are in keen demand.

Japanese-Americans have also risen to the top in the medical, legal and teaching professions. The Los Angeles County Coroner, for instance, is Dr. Thomas Noguchi; the President of San Francisco State College, one of the state's most troubled campuses, is Dr. S. I. Hayakawa.

●

In "Little Tokyo" — the centre of Los Angeles Japanese life — an urban development program has filled the district with new high-rise buildings. Even the racial prejudice of pre-World War II days seems to have faded, and the Japanese suffer no ghetto restrictions.

Inevitably injustices remain. At work to correct them is the Japanese-American Citizens' League, an organization born 40 years ago out of the deep-rooted, anti-oriental prejudice then prevalent on the West Coast. With 92 chapters throughout the United States, it is the community's only-nation-wide organization.

The JACL went through a baptism of fire during World War II when, after Pearl Harbor, more than 100,000 Japanese-Americans were moved to detention camps at 48 hours' notice, abandoning or selling their possessions for next to nothing.

Yet in the detention camps only a few of the tens of thousands of inmates turned anti-American. The vast majority behaved like loyal U.S. citizens, and in the final stages of the war, when the post-Pearl Harbor hysteria had died down, they were allowed to join the Army.

●

Several thousands saw combat service in Italy, France and the Pacific. Japanese-American units had some 10,000 casualties in Italy, and General MacArthur said that intelligence work done by Japanese-American soldiers in the Pacific saved thousands of American lives.

The JACL's national secretary, Mike Masaoka, led the post-war struggle to win back rights for the embattled community. As a Washington lobbyist he obtained approval for Bills concerning naturalization rights, compensation for property losses and the authorization for Servicemen to return with war brides from Japan. Today Masaoka is president of a company that specialises in international public relations. He is active in the business of promoting American friendship with Japan.

The Japanese-American community falls naturally into three generations, each self-labelled: the Issei — the immigrants who came from Japan around the turn of the century; the second generation Nisei, now mostly in their 40s and 50s; and the Sansie, the grandchildren in their 20s and teens.

The young Sansei have become thoroughly Americanized. So thoroughly, indeed, that they are carrying on a youth rebellion which approximates closely to that of thair "Anglo" counterparts. At the last national convention of the JACL the Sansei confronted their Nisei elder with a spot of militant, all-American political protest. There were several targets.

First, Japanese-Americans had failed to speak up for the other oppressed minorities of the United States. They should drop their narrow view of their own interest and develop an Asian consciousness. Some Sansei even suggested that the JACL change its name to the Asian-American League. Once an Asian you then equate the bombing of Hiroshima with U.S. action in Vietnam as part and parcel of American oppression.

●

And that was what some long-haired young Japanese-Americans did in a two-hour long political confrontation with their elders. After speeches and songs, films were shown of the World War II "concentration camps"; of the effects on human beings of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan, and of U.S. action in Indo-China.

"The Japanese-American forgets too quickly," said 22-year-old Warren Furutani of Los Angeles — himself a JACL official. "He has learned his place. Business is better than ever. Nice Japs send their children to school to learn how to make Horoshima. If this is the lesson, we won't be nice."

●

The militants are, however, few in number, and their support among their elders is still smaller, although a few liberals go along with some of the protest. Inside JACL, for instance, a liberal faction has been lobbying against a law that gives the President power to set up detention camps in time of national emergency. President Nixon has agreed that the law should be eliminated.

It seems unlikely that Japanese-Americans would ever again suffer anything like their wartime humiliations. But the older people want to be sure. Their memories are not so short as the Sansei seem to need to believe.

Liberals Lashed

ALONSA, Man. (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer Saturday issued one of his sharpest attacks on the Liberal party in Manitoba, suggesting the party has no hope of ever forming a government in the province.

Because he ruled out any hope for the Liberals, the Manitoba premier urged Manitobans to "take with a grain of salt" anything the party ever offers or promises.

"They can promise you the moon, because they'll never have the responsibility to ever have to carry it out," the premier told 150 people at a public meeting in support of NDP candidate, Pete Adam, for the April 5 provincial byelection in Ste. Rose constituency.

Jaycees Choose 3

CALGARY (CP) — Two Alberta residents were nominated Saturday for national Canadian Jaycees recognition as outstanding young men for 1970.

Dr. John Gainer Read, 33, medical director of the University of Alberta Hospital; Dennis McDonald, 29, Calgary regional fisheries biologist; and John Robertson, 37, president of a transport rental company in the northwest territories were selected by Alberta-N.W.T. Jaycees.

Cowboy Goes Flying

EDMONTON (CP) — Singing cowboy Rex Allan Sunday made what was considered to be the most spectacular entrance of his show business career.

He entered the darkened arena at the Canadian Western Rodeo at a gallop on his horse, white hat held high in the air.

But the horse suddenly stopped, blinded by a flash of light and Allen, his hat still held high, didn't.

He landed in a heap on the floor but picked himself up and admitted afterwards:

"That's the first time that has ever happened to me."

Special Post Urged

AMARANTH, Man. (CP) — Manitoba Liberal leader I. H. Asper Saturday suggested the appointment of a special legislative assistant to the premier, concerned solely with the province's native people. Asper told residents of the Sandy Bay Reserve native people can solve their own problems "if there are allowed to do it at their own pace, by their own tradition and in their own way."

KENT, Ohio (AP) — "Drop your pants," an Akron lawyer told his client. The seven women on the jury gasped and Municipal Court Judge Robert Kent shuffled papers in embarrassment. The defendant was on trial for driving while under the influence of drink. Lawyer Roger Dipaolo said his client could not walk a straight line at any time because of leg wounds he suffered in the Second World War. The client dropped his pants and the jury saw the man's deformed legs. The case was dismissed.

LONDON (UPI) — Church of England vicars and pubkeepers of the London borough of Newham clashed on the soccer field Sunday. The pubkeepers won 5-3. "Beer must be good for us," said 33-year-old John Jaggs, captain of the pubkeepers' team, the "Devils." "God must have abondoned us because it was Sunday," said 27-year-old Rev. John Jones, captain of the vicars' team, the "Saints."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville teen-agers who set out to "trade" 24,000 chocolate covered Easter eggs for citizen contributions to the March of Dimes found out the yolk was on them. After collecting $2,300, the kids still had 20,000 eggs on hand. Folks were giving money, but they didn't want the eggs. What do you do with 20,000 chocolate-covered eggs? "I just told the kids to start eating," said drive official Mrs. N. L. Swaim Sunday. "I ate so many myself I almost got sick."

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Actor Robert Cummings, 60, and his secretary, Regina Fong, 31, were married here Saturday. It was the fourth marriage for Cummings, whose comedy series, The Bob Cummings Show, ran for six years on television during the 1950s.

FRATING, England (UPI) — Eddie Lancaster said he breeds pigs better than other people because he talks to the porkers and treats them like friends. Lancaster, 59, attracted attention when, so far this month, he reared 99 piglets from nine contented sows. That, said an official of the National Farmers' Union, is 27 piglets more than the average farmer breeds. "I'm a bit of a twerp, really," Lancaster explained at his small farm. "I treat all animals as individuals. "You just sort of get friendly with them," he continued, "and give them a pat every now and again."

Rain is also spreading into the southern Interior this morning and snow is mixed with the rain in the Kootenays.

Very mild air over southern Washington held temperatures there at 50 degrees last night. Some of this mild air will spread to southern B.C. today giving daytime highs in the low 50s.

Showers will linger on in many areas of B.C. tonight behind the storm. However, a slow clearing trend is expected to develop in coastal areas late Tuesday and in the Interior Tuesday night.

'Reduce Taxes' —Stanfield

EDMONTON (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson will be making a "stubborn, serious mistake" if he doesn't reduce taxation before 1972, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said today.

"There's no sign of enough growth in the economy this year to cut down the level of unemployment," he told a news conference.

He said he agrees with Benson's statements that the economy will expand this year. But things were unlikely to improve enough to eat into existing unemployment.

The Progressive Conservatives advised Benson long ago to get more money moving by reducing taxes, he said. But Benson had not accepted the advice which now was proving to be right.

The economy Corolla. What you don't get you don't really need.

No fish tails, no racing stripes, no wind spoilers. There are lots of things you don't get with the Corolla 1200. Like parking problems and speeding tickets and great big monthly payments. What you do get is where you're going. And for some people that's enough.

Instead of the windswept speed machine that always gets the girl, some people like the classic, superbly built Corolla that gets up to 35 miles per gallon. They don't mind not being able to keep up with the big guys. They just want to keep up with the traffic. And the payments.

So instead of the usual long list of options, they prefer our unusually long list of standard equipment.

It includes 73 hp, front disc brakes, a 4-speed synchromesh transmission, (the automatic is optional) an electric rear window defroster, fully reclining front bucket seats, and so on.

Some people feel it's all you need to get around. And we're glad of that. Because it's all we could get into one car for under $2,000.*

NEW JERSEY KKK GROWING

They're Waiting for a Racial Blow-Up

By DAVID M. GOLDBERG

HIGHTSTOWN, N.J. (AP) — The man said he was a grand dragon of the New Jersey Ku Klux Klan. He wasn't wearing a hood, but he was fingering a double-barrelled shotgun. He would not give his name.

"We've been waiting for a racial blowup," he said. "When it happens, it's going to be like a shooting gallery."

Hightstown, which sits in the middle of the central New Jersey flatlands, is a small community of wooden-frame houses about 15 miles east of Trenton, the state capital. Its 19th-century main thoroughfare is crowded during the day with shoppers and trucks headed for the New Jersey Turnpike.

It is deserted at night, as it was when the first cross burning occurred in January.

The cross burning, and a half-dozen more here, in nearby Princeton and West Trenton, signalled what has been billed as the rebirth of the Klan in New Jersey.

There have been three arrests for cross burning since January; two more for attempted cross burning and an increased willingess by men claiming to be Klan members to grant interviews in which they talk of extensive recruitement drives, the use of weapons and of tarring and feathering.

The idea is, as one self-described Klansman puts it, "to re-establish the idea of white man's rights."

The Klan now claims a New Jersey membership of 1,000, spread among six klaverns in the central and southern areas of the state.

Law enforcement authorities disagree.

"I can assure you that we're on top of the situation," says Col. David B. Kelly, the superintendent of the New Jersey state police. "At this point it looks like about four or five nutty guys who are shooting off their mouths."

Whatever its size, the Klan is not new in New Jersey. In the 1920s, it boasted a membership of several thousand, most of it in the rural southern reaches of the state that lie below the Mason-Dixon line.

By the 1930s, it had died out. But in July, 1965, a one-time New York City welfare caseworker named Frank W. Rotella Jr. announced that he had been appointed king kleagle for New Jersey and said he was starting an organizing drive in the industrial cities of North Jersey, where blacks were moving into white blue-collar neighborhoods. Within six months, he claimed a membership of 1,000.

Rotella announced in June, 1966, that he was retiring for personal reasons, and the New Jersey Klan went unheard from for the next five years. Then, on New Year's Eve, a cross was burned in West Trenton, and two weeks later the first of the Hightstown crosses appeared.

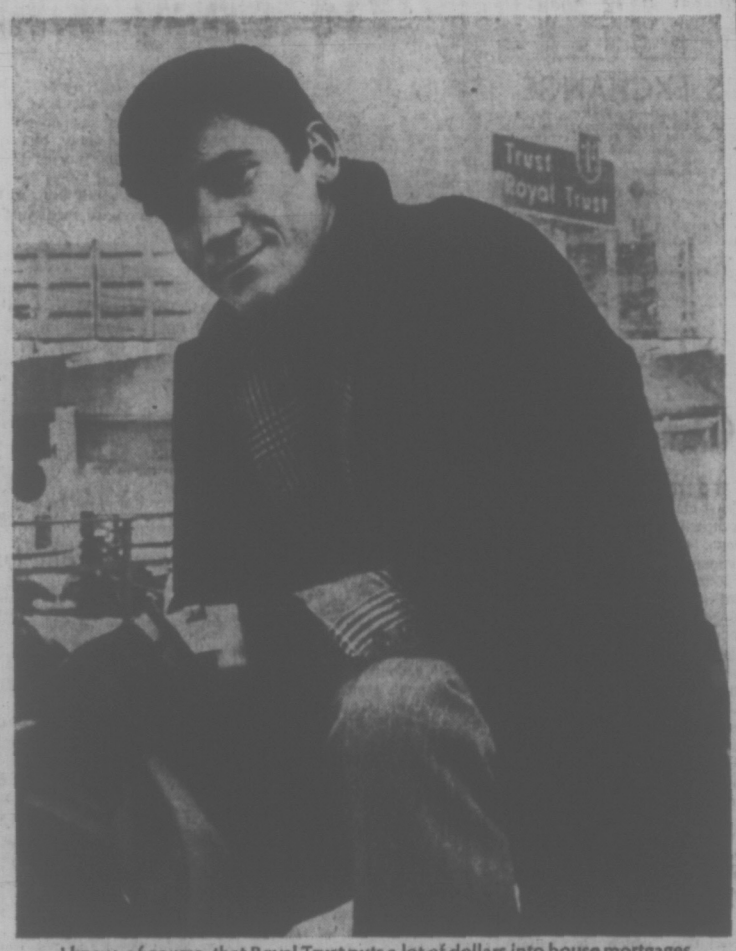
Their Mortgage Fund?



I knew, of course, that Royal Trust puts a lot of dollars into house mortgages. (Last year, I hear, they loaned in excess of $120 million to help buy and build new homes.)

What I didn't know, until now, was that most of this money comes from average income earners just like me.

The reason? You can invest in the Royal Trust Mortgage Fund (or M Fund) with as little as $100. You can add to this anytime. And make 8.4%* yearly on your money.

You can also get your money out anytime you want, just by giving 30 business days notice prior to the end of any month. (No sales commission. No withdrawal charges.)

So, instead of talking about our need for more houses, now we can actually do something about it.

JUST A MINUTE By BOB CUMBERBIRCH

Did you hear about the fellow who went to Montreal's new Playboy Club dressed as a carrot?

The convalescent heart patient won $100,000 on a Sweepstake ticket. Everyone knew of it but were afraid to tell him the happy news because of his condition. Finally they decided to get the Minister to impart the good news, fully expecting the patient to drop dead on hearing of his luck. The Minister tackled the situation cleverly.

"Dougal," he said, "what would you do if you won the top $100,000 prize in the Sweepstakes?"

"Reverend," said Dougal, "I'd give every penny of it to the church."

And the Minister dropped dead.

"What do you say?" his mother asked him.

'Jade Queen' Doesn't Wear Many Gems

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Winnie Robertson doesn't wear much jewelry, but she owns what may be the richest jade mine in the world.

She can't remember now whether it was in 1968 or '69 that she discovered her mountain of jade near Takla Lake in northern B.C., but she is still annoyed because none of the stories that were written about her at the time mentioned the fact that she is a trained and experienced amateur geologist who knew what she was doing.

Instead, the reports told the world she was a housewife who had read an introductory book on geology then stumbled onto what now is the Jade Queen mine.

One reporter from an American women's magazine wanter her to pose for a picture in her kitchen baking a cake, wearing a frilly apron and surrounded by lumps of raw jade.

"I can bake a cake," she said. "But I don't want a bunch of jade lying around the kitchen when I do it."

The stories worried her because "I didn't want to be responsible for dozens of housewives going out and killing themselves trying to find a mine."

Prior to making her discovery she had been studying jade for 12 years and taken several geology courses at the University of Alberta as well as prospecting whenever she had the opportunity. After throughly studying the geology of the area around Takla Lake she decided that it was a logical place to look for the green gen stones.

Prospecting the creeks in the vicinity of Pyramid Mountain on the shores of Takla Lake, she found traces of jade and began looking for more and eventually found "about 30 tons of jade right in the creek."

"It took me three days to convince myself that it was true," she said. "I kept checking the rocks and telling myself, 'Winnie, girl, you just don't find jade like this.'"

MOST GOES ABROAD

The mine now employs eight men during the summer and they bring out 30 to 40 tons of jade each year. Core samples taken in the area have found that the jade extends to 75 and 100 feet in some areas. Only one-fifth of one per cent of this jade is top quality and suitable for jewelry.

Most of it finds its way to markets in Hong Kong and Germany, and Winnie regrets that most of the jade jewelry available in Canada is of only medium quality. Good jade is pale, bright, apple green without inclusions, she said.

She is deeply concerned about conservation and what is happening to the province's salmon fishing. Since the Jade Queen mine is on the upper reaches of the Fraser River salmon spawning grounds, when she applied for a licence to use water from On-eil Creek to dredge off overburden she was anxious to find a way of doing this without disturbing the salmon. As a result, the mine only dredges in the spring when the creek is flooding so they do no more damage than the creek itself during a flood.

WON'T GO ALONE

Often her 19-year-old son, Gordon, accompanies her on a prospecting trip. She never goes alone: "A broken ankle alone in that country would mean tragedy."

She is saddened by the signs of industrial progress reaching into the area surrounding the Jade Queen mine. Now, she said, she can see bears, mountain goat, caribou, ptarmigan and moose on the mountain.

"Then I look out across the lake and see the slashing for the railway reaching along the far shore and know that soon sawmills and towns will follow and the country will never be the same.

"It's a tragedy."

Robots Quietly Slip Into Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — Their impact has been small to date, but robots nevertheless have quietly taken their positions along American assembly lines during the last few years, doing the same work as — and sometimes doing it better than — the men they replaced.

The implications could be large at some future year, depending upon how quick is their acceptance, but so far they have created little stir where you might expect it most, in the labor unions.

One reason is that most of the jobs now being handled by these machines, which seek to duplicate human arm and even finger movement, are hot, dirty, exhausting, tedious, dangerous and otherwise undesirable.

The big three of American automaking — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — have purchased robots for assembly line jobs, and current thinking is that after a period of testing they'll play a growing role in automobile production.

General Motors last year purchased more than 60 one-arm, hydraulically- and pneumatically-operated robots for assembly line chores at Lordstown and Norwood, Ohio.

SEES UPSWING

Norman Schafler, vice-chairman of Condec Corp., which with Pullman Inc. owns Unimation, Inc., a robot-maker, believes the future is assured, even though his company hasn't yet made a profit on robots.

Labor attitudes are changing, he believes, as unions see machines displacing workers into more rewarding jobs rather than putting them out on the street.

Money also is a big factor. Schafler claims that his company's one-arm robot is able to do the work of two men on certain jobs, and do it better — and, of course, with no fringe benefits or pensions.

Assuming an automotive worker's salary and fringes amount to $9,000 a year, the total cost of two men on one shift is $18,000 a year, meaning that the robot, which costs $25,000, could pay for itself in less than two years.

Moreover, Schafler says, "it won't suffer from fatigue, will not need rest periods or coffee-breaks, and while it never will replace an artisan it will do a job exactly as taught. A human will do it either a little better or worse."

Unimation and AMF Industries are the two largest manufacturers of one-arm industrial robots, but so small is the industry today that it is doubtful if more than 500 of their machines are in use.

The chief use of robots so far has been in spot welding, with die casting and metal and glass forging well behind.

Merland

Working interest of between 50 and 100 per cent in 47,000 acres of the Killam-Jarrow area of east-central Alberta may be earned by Merland Explorations Ltd. on an option agreement with King Resources, Ltd.

Merland already has full interest in 5,280 acres of Crown lands in the same petroleum prospecting area, where shallow gas has been found. The land is traversed by Alberta Gas Trunk Line's new Flat Lake line.

Polymer

Polymer Corporation Ltd., and its subsidiaries lost more than $6 million last year in net income.

The crown company blamed the drop in income on lower sales, inflationary cost factors and the continued rise in value of the Canadian dollar on world markets. Net income dropped to $7 million in 1970 from $13.8 million in 1969.

E. R. Rowzee, president and managing director, said the revalued dollar reduced profits from overseas and depressed prices in Canada, in order to remain competitive with imports, producing $3 million less than expected earnings.

Yank Cars Fail

(Times News Services)

Mario Andretti drove a Ferrari to victory in both heats of the Questor Grand Prix before 68,825 spectators Sunday at Ontario Motor Speedway in California as United States machinery failed miserably in this first match-up between domestic and European cars and drivers.

Andretti, driving a 12-cylinder, Formula 1 car, beat Scotland's Jackie Stewart by five car lengths in the first 100-mile heat and came home a more comfortable 13 seconds in front of the wily Scot in the second.

His over-all victory carried a winner's purse of $25,000 plus lap and accessory money. Stewart's runner-up finish in a Tyrrell-Ford gave him $15,000.

Third over-all went to New Zealand's Denis Hulme, the 1967 world driving champ.

The Questor had been billed as a match-up between the exotic little European Grand Prix cars, using small but powerful eight and 12-cylinder engines, and the Americanized Formula A cars, which use Detroit-built stock block engines for power.

But the match-up failed to come off. Best over-all Formula A finisher in two races was Ron Grable of Mountain View, Calif., whose Lola-Chevrolet was crefited with seventh place.

Elsewhere and otherwise in the world of sport . . .

Pitcher Joe Coleman of Detroit Tigers suffered a fractured skull Saturday when he was struck by a line drive in an exhibition baseball game at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The smash in the fourth inning by Ted Simmons of St. Louis Cardinals struck Coleman above the right ear. His condition was not thought to be dangerous but he will be sidelined indefinitely.

Coleman, a right-hander, came to the Tigers in the trade with Washington for Denny McLain. He had been tabbed as the No. 2 starter behind Mickey Lolich.

Karen Budge, a 21-year-old from Jackson, Wyo., responded to a challenge and edged Canada's Judy Crawford and win the North American women's sld title on B.C.'s Whistler Mountain Sunday.

The Toronto brunette, 19, had built up a lead of eight-tenths of a second and had the choice in the final slalom of just finishing safely and dumping the pressure on the American blonde, coming down 11 racers later in the windup meet of the 10-event Can-Am series.

Judy lost through caution. "I gave her (Miss Budge) the word to go like hell," United States women's coach Hank Tauber said later. "And Lord, did she make it up."

Miss Budge finished the Can-Am series with 173 points, two better than Miss Crawford, who won the Canadian national women's combined title.

The women's events overshadowed the men's Can-Am points race. The top three finishers all fared poorly during the weekend but were so far ahead that no one could catch them.

Lance Poulsen of Olympic Valley, Calif., won the title with 105 points. Otto Tschudi of Norway was second with 103 and Rod Taylor of West Hartford, Conn., third with 102.

Tyler Palmer of Kearserge, N.H., captured the Canadian alpine men's title with 30.670 points, followed by Hank Kashiwa of the U.S. with 34.814 and Whit Sterling of the U.S., 48.332.

Player Takes Aim At Money Crown

MIAMI (AP) — Gary Player has earned $75,643 in five golfing weekends in the United States and the South African is thinking of taking a fulltime shot at the $7 million Professional Golfers' Association tour.

Player shot a 68 Sunday for a 14-under-par total of 274 to capture the $200,000 National Airlines Open.

It meant another $40,000 for him, winner of the $25,000 top prize the previous week in the Greater Jacksonville Open.

"It's the first time I've won back-to-back tournaments in America," said Player.

Player strung out rounds of 69-67-70-68 on the 6,970-yard Country Club of Miami course to whip Lee Trevino by two shots. Trevino, who trailed Player by a stroke going into Sunday's final 18 holes, shot a 69 for 276.

Arnold Palmer shot a 69 for a 279 total while George Knudson of Toronto, the only Canadian to make the cut, finished in a fiveway tie for 17th place with 282. He won $2,700.

"I could break Billy Casper's one-year money record," Player said. "In 15 U.S. tournaments, I usually top $100,000. Think if I played 25 or 30."

Casper pocketed $205,000 two years ago and Player, if he maintained his 1971 average of $15,128 through a full schedule of 30 events, would win $453,840.

Bruins Lose Four While Resting Orr, But Holiday Over

Times News Services

The vacation is officially over for Boston's Bobby Orr.

The Bruins' superstar defenceman will be back fulltime for Wednesday night's game in Montreal and it may be some measure of this young man's importance to the National Hockey League's East Division champions to note that Boston lost four straight games when he became a part-timer.

The latest was a 2-1 decision to New York Rangers Sunday night. Appearing only on power plays, Orr played six minutes, 55 seconds and managed only two shots.

"Yes," said coach Tom Johnson, "he'll play regular starting Wednesday. He's had enough of a rest."

The Bruins, who'll be meeting Montreal in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs which begin one week from Wednesday, face the Canadiens twice in their final three games and obviously don't want to look watered down against them.

But watered down is what the Bruins are without Orr. The Rangers beat them twice during the weekend, playing wide open hockey in a 6-3 victory Saturday night and then playing a tight defensive game for Sunday's victory.

"I thought we played a pretty good game," Johnson said of Sunday's game. "We got beat by a kicked-in goal."

Glen Sather, who scored the goal, denied kicking the puck in.

Orr, however, lost possession of the Elizabeth Dufresne trophy, awarded annually to the Boston player voted the outstanding performer in home games during the season. Centre Phil Esposito, winner of the award for two seasons before losing it to Orr last year, received the trophy in ceremonies preceding Saturday's game in Boston.

Elsewhere around the league, Gil Perreault of Buffalo and Jude Drouin of Minnesota continued their battle for rookie honors and Philadelphia Flyers dashed the playoff hopes of Pittsburgh Penguins.

Canucks Hit Top Total of Season

Those were some of the highlights Sunday as the regular NHL schedule approached its final weekend. With all playoff berths settled and the Boston team having a monopoly on most of the NHL records broken this season, one of the questions now remaining is whether Perreault, Drouin or even Detroit's Tom Webster will end up as the highest-scoring rookie in NHL history.

Perreault picked up two assists Sunday as Buffalo Sabres defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-2. The two points gave him 67 for the season, tying him with Drouin who scored a goal in his team's loss.

In other games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 3-1 to clinch final playoff spot in the West Division, Montreal Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 2-1, Vancouver Canucks swamped California Golden Seals 11-5 and Detroit Red Wings nipped Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1.

The Canucks produced their highest goal-scoring performance of the season, scoring five times in the second period against the Golden Seals.

Wayne Maki sparked the Vancouver team with three goals, his first three-goal performance in the NHL, and rookie Dale Tallon got two.

Drouin broke the record for most points scored by a rookie when he collected his 66th Thursday in Minnesota's 2-2 tie with Philadelphia. The former record of 65 was set by Danny Grant, also of Minnesota.

But Perreault's two assists Sunday night against Minnesota gave him 67 points, trying him with Drouin. These two players are one point ahead of Webster of Detoit.

'Little Things' Tripping Cougars

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Little things mean a lot.

Chilliwack Bruins have put them all together, and that leaves Victoria Cougars in the embarassing position today of explaining the British Columbia Junior Hockey League's remarkable turnaround.

The upstart Bruins did it again Saturday night at Memorial Arena, red-facing the Cougars 5-4 before 2,305 fans to drop Victoria into a 2-1 hole in their best-of-seven Coastal Division semi-final playoff.

And now Chilliwack, which finished so far behind the first place Cougars they had difficulty picking out the Cougars with 7x50 binoculars, has Victoria on the run. Or practically.

The depth of the hole depends on the outcome of tonight's fourth game in Chilliwack. The fifth game will be played in Victoria on Tuesday night.

The Orv Litchfield - coached Bruins did the expected only in the series' opener, losing 6-4. Then they came on like gangbusters to win Friday's game 5-1.

After Saturday's result, the common question has been "What's happened to the Cougars?"

The Cats have had a few problems, but all are minor in nature compared to what has happened to the Bruins.

For one thing, Cougars have been afforded only mediocre goaltending by Ed Forslund and Darryl Fedorak. The Chilliwack netminding act of Lee Holum and Dave Maynard has been brilliant.

And here's where the little things start adding up.

Take Maynard, whose 41-stop display Saturday chilled the Cougars for a second straight game.

Chilliwack accepted Victoria's junior "B" netminder as a loan from the Cougars. Maynard went to Chilliwack with many good moves but one bad habit. He was a flopper. Victoria coaching couldn't break Maynard of his tendency to fall and sprawl.

Someone in Chilliwack took care of that, though. Maynard has refined his standup habits.

That someone might be Litchfield, who took over the Chilliwack club in mid-season and admits today that one of his first duties was to spend time with both of his netminders.

Work on Checking Was Major Item

"Both Lee and Dave had one or two bad habits which we've eliminated," said Litchfield, smiling.

Litchfield's time also was well spent during the closing three weeks of the regular season.

"That was when we played every team as if we were playing Victoria," he confided. "The big thing was to work on our checking."

Chilliwack's forwards skate so closely with their rivals that the nearness of them would embarrass young lovers. They hug well, and only kissing is missing.

The Bruins, who average 17 years of age, are younger and smaller than the Cougars. Despite their series' surge, the Bruins still are not the better team.

Any deficiency on the part of the Bruins is compensated by their desire and intelligence. They want to win more than the Cougars have signified, and the Bruins are willing to listen to reason and their coach.

This is not meant to suggest the Cougars have rolled over. Far from it. They played well enough Saturday to win most games, but were not blessed with a proper bounce from the puck.

Victoria out-shot Chilliwack 45-21 but committed a few defensive mistakes and they hurt dearly. The most glaring mistake was Forslund's decision to roam out of his crease. The stroll, 10 second before the end of the first period, enabled Mike Randolph to provide Bruins with a 2-1 lead.

Off-Target Shooting Hurts Cougars

Denis Andersen added two Chilliwack goals while Roy Ovington and Rick Metzler contributed singles.

Centre Chris Riddell scored three of the Cougar goals and defenceman Bob Mayer got the other.

Victoria's shooting accuracy also contributed to its downfall. While the Cats got away 45 shots directly on Maynard's goal, the Victorians fired an equal number wide of the mark. The Cats also made Maynard look good by shooting at his glove side.

Lon Miles, Tommy Keep, Riddell, Ted Plowe and Rob Little all flipped shots wide of the mark while confronted with cold-cut chances. In addition, Maynard came up with superb stops on other chances by Greg Robinson, Bruce Cowick and Dale Pennock.

The Cougars were forced to go without captain Gerry Bond and winger Pat Askew. Bond suffered a muscle spasm in his back while Askew received an elbow injury in Chilliwack Friday.

Bond gave it a try, but retired to the dressing room after his first shift Saturday. The big defenceman is expected to dress tonight.

Askew will remain on the sidelines and will be joined by Lonnie Miles and Scott Munro. Miles, who suffered a leg injury in the series opener, and Munro both were ineffective skaters Saturday.

Shabaga will recruit Ron Poole, Jim Wilkinson and Wayne Hendry from the Cubs, the affiliates who won the provincial junior "B" championship at the weekend.

Penticton Clear; Rockets in Charge

(Times News Services)

Penticton Broncos cleared their hurdle while Vancouver Centennials and Kamloops Rockets got to important jumps in their bids to advance in British Columbia Junior Hockey League playdowns.

Penticton wrapped up a best-of-seven Okanagan Division semi-final in straight games by defeating Kelowna Buckaroos 7-2 Saturday.

Kamloops and Vancouver both took commanding 3-1 leads. The Cents applied their stranglehold Saturday by shading New Westminster Royals 4-3 on Jim Chapman's goal with 35 seconds left in the game. The upstart Rockets pushed the defending champions to the brink of elimination by edging Vernon Essos 5-4 Sunday.

With Saturday's victory, Penticton departs from BCJHL play to embark on interprovincial playoffs. Penticton will entertain Red Deer Rustlers in a best-of-seven Western Canada semi-final series, starting April 5.

Red Deer wrapped up its second straight Alberta championship Sunday be defeating Lethbridge Sugar Kings 4-1 behind the four-goal performance of Bryan Ogilvie.

Rustlers won the Alberta series 4-1.

DRUMMONDVILLE GETS INJUNCTION

JOCKEYING CHARGED

Court Orders Series Proceed

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols granted a temporary injunction Sunday to Drummondville Rangers of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, forcing the league and the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association to allow the team to complete its quarter-final playoff series against Sherbrooke Beavers.

The Rangers were indefinitely suspended Saturday from playoff action when the QAHA ruled they were guilty of jockeying for playoff position during a regular-season game against St. Jerome Alouettes March 18 which they lost 14-8.

Their scheduled Sunday night game against the Beavers was subsequently cancelled by the league at the QAHA's request.

The temporary injunction is valid until April 7 and would give the team enough time to finish the best-of-seven quarter-final series which they lead, 2-1.

If the team reaches the semi-finals, an application for renewal of the injunction will be made, a team spokesman said.

The QAHA also suspended Rangers' general manager Yvon Cloutier who coached the team during the St. Jerome game.

Marcel Robert, of Jonquiere, president of the association, said the indefinite suspension could be annulled at the next meeting of the QAHA executive, or it could result in Drummondville's expulsion from the league and association and a life suspension from organized hockey in Quebec for Cloutier.

The league originally suspended both Cloutier and St. Jerome coach Yves Nadon and fined the teams $1,000 each. Two days later, Nadon was absolved from all blame and has since coached his team in their playoff series against Shawinigan Bruins.

Robert said the indefinite suspension came about after a meeting of the QAHA executive committee decided Drummondville was guilty of a flagrant violation of an association rule which recommends suspension for a team not trying to win.

"If we face the Rangers in court, all they can do is try to question the merit of our rule," he said Sunday.

"We're sure of the legality involved, because we had a lawyer at the committee meeting when we decided on the suspension."

QJAHL president Robert Le Bel said Drummondville would definitely play against Sherbrooke Tuesday night in the fourth game of the series.

"We have no choice but to obey the injunction," he said.

"Anyway, if we felt the Rangers should have been suspended in the first place, we would have done it before the playoffs."

United's Prowess Remains Unshaven

Victoria United personnel relinquished some of the beards and mustaches, but Pacific Coast Soccer League rivals would feel better if someone could figure out a way to shave off the leaders' athletic prowesses.

That much was obvious after Saturday's afternoon of barbering at Royal Athletic Park.

Victoria manager Frank Grealy lost his mustache and the beards came off Tom Westwater, Peter Robarts, Howie Anderson, Brian Robinson and Ike MacKay.

The players, in turn, clipped UBC Thunderbirds 6-2.

OFFENCE SHARP

Rebounding with vengeance from last Saturday's 1-0 loss to lowly-placed New Westminster Blues, United made it obvious it would restrict all hilarity against UBC to the half-time barbering byplay.

United took the offensive from the opening kickoff. The eagerness of Victoria's attack left its defence vulnerable at times, but United's barging tactics did produce the desired results — goals and a 4-2 half-time lead.

Despite playing on a difficult, soggy pitch, United overcame some early sputtering to play a strong game. The final four-goal margin did, in fact, flatter the visitors.

MacKay led the way with three goals, including two counters late in the first half that broke a 2-2 tie and enabled United to cruise ahead at fuil steam. MacKay's three boosted his league-leading total to 15 goals.

BACKS CUT LOOSE

Backs accounted for Victoria's other goals. Robarts banged in his first two of the season and Anderson collected the other.

Gary Thompson, UBC's strongest performer, and Greg Farris, connecting on a picture effort, were the Thunderbird scorers.

The half-time barbering display was instigated by former manager Fred (Scotty) Magee. When diet-conscious Magee shaved 40 pounds off his weight, United players were obligated to remove all facial growth.

Second-place Columbus remained in step by defeating third-place Croatia 3-1 in Sunday's only game. Columbus trails United by five points, but has two games in hand.

TWO FOR ZAMBRANO

George Zambrano scored a goal in each half for Columbus and Vanni Lenarduzzi counted the other for Columbus. John Connor rapped in Croatia's only goal on a penalty kick to force a 1-1 tie at the half.

Also in Vancouver, the Blues came up with another upset Saturday by clipping North Shore 1-0. The game's only goal, scored in the first half, came off a goalmouth scramble and the scorer was not determined.

In another Saturday match, Firefighters took over fifth place by blanking Paul's Canadians 1-0. Inside right Robbie Goodheart scored the goal that gave Firefighters their third straight win.

Cubs Bring Victoria Only Third B.C. Title

KAMLOOPS — The scrappy Victoria Cubs captured the British Columbia junior "B" hockey championship Saturday night and moved into a very select circle.

By claiming the Cyclone Taylor Trophy, Cubs become only the third Victoria team ever to win a provincial hockey championship. Victoria's first B.C. hockey champion was an army team which won the senior title in the early 1940s. Victoria Cougars were No. 2 when they won the junior "A" crown in 1968-69.

Cubs wrapped up provincial honors here Saturday when they defeated Kamloops Teamsters 7-5 to take the best-of-three series in two straight. Victoria defeated Kamloops 6-5 with a sudden-death overtime victory Friday.

Cubs, as was their habit in the playoffs, had to bounce back in Saturday's game. The Ray Turcotte-coached Victorians trailed 2-0 after the first period but moved ahead 4-2 after two sessions.

A goal early in the third period made it 5-2, but Teamsters erupted for three goals to tie the game 5-5.

Centre Ron Poole's goal at 17:46 of the final period broke the deadlock and winger Mark Purdy, who scored the overtime winner Friday, took out insurance by counting his second goal of the game into an empty net with 21 seconds remaining.

Defenceman Bob Lucas, who quit his job when his employer refused to give him time off from work, Don Blyth, with two, and Jim Wilkinson were Victoria's other goal-getters.

Ed Dempsey, Dwayne Monteith, Mark Evans, George Aulin and Barry Kelly scored for Kamloops.

The key to Saturday's triumph was Cubs' second-period performance. In addition to scoring four goals, Cubs turned in a near-flawless display of checking.

Island Title Stays With First United

DUNCAN—Campbell River had the strength to battle back through the losers' bracket but failed to muster enough stamina to defeat Victoria's First United Saints in the Vancouver Island bantam girls' basketball championship final here Sunday.

The defending Island champions, Saints crushed Campbell River 43-29 in the final to preserve a two-season unbeaten streak and advance to the provincial tournament in Salmon Arm this weekend.

The other two teams in contention for the B.C. title, won by Saints last season after taking the Island crown, are Salmon Arm and Cranbrook.

Campbell River climaxed its march back through the losers' bracket of the double-loss elimination tourney with a 54-38 victory over Nanaimo and a 44-38 win over Duncan earlier Sunday.

Saints crushed Saanichton 75-9 and Duncan 61-22 in Saturday play. In other games Duncan defeated Nanaimo 24-16 and Nanaimo ousted Saanichton, 33-22.

MAINWARING STARS

Marg Mainwaring, one of three First United players selected to the all-star team, scored 16 points to lead Saints in the final. Miss Mainwaring proved to be the mainstay of the club by scoring a total of 59 points during the three games.

Shirley Marshall, also picked for the all-stars, chipped in nine points in the final for United while Sharon Rollins and Theresa Marcin fired eight each for Campbell River.

Miss Rollins was named the tourney's most - valuable player and was included on the all-star list along with Mairi-Anne Longmore of Saints and Aubrey Garside of Duncan.

Mariners Claim Playoff Honors

Goals by Jenny John and Caroline Penn provided the Mariners with a 2-1 victory over University of Victoria and the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey first-division championship.

Mariners were the regular-season winners.

Janet Williams scored Uvic's only goal.

Odette Graas and Sue Martin counted the goals as Uvic's "B" team blanked Evergreens to win the second-division playoff title.

WEATHER CONDITIONS CANCEL GOLF WINDUP

The weatherman Sunday stymied the windup round of the second annual Victoria intermediate golf championship.

The 36-hole tournament, restricted to players between 19 and 26 years of age, opened with an 18-hole round at Uplands on Saturday. But Sunday's round at Glen Meadows was called off when wind and rain produced deplorable conditions.

A Victoria District Golf Committee meeting Tuesday will determine if and when a replay of the second round may be held.

Colwood's Ron Howard, Jr., carded a one-under-par 69 at Uplands to take a four-stroke lead over Uplands' Al Cliff. Mike Gray of Uplands was third with 76 and Ken Floyd of Colwood four with 77.

Defending champion Dave Mick came in with a 78 while B.C. Amateur champion Carl Schwantje finished with a 10-over-par 80.

Canada's Return To World Hockey 'Without Strings'

GENEVA (AP) — A top Canadian hockey official said today he thinks there is a chance that a solution could be reached to bring Canada back into international play but emphasized: "It will be done with no strings attached.

Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and other Canadian officials met with the International Ice Hockey Federation until late Sunday night to try to find a solution to the problem of Canada's exclusion from world and Olympic tournaments.

Dawson said afterward: "We felt our meetings were fairly successful for Canada."

He said he thought Canada had a go-ahead for an open tournament and then said: "We'll have another meeting in eGneva before we leave for home to make sure there are no misunderstandings."

Such a tournament would involve Sweden, the Soviet Union ad Czechoslovakia.

MADE STAND KNOWN

"We made our stand at several meetings in Switzerland," Dawson said.

"Basically, we want open tournaments so that Canada can compete on a fair basis.

"We had a feeling that some members of the International Hockey Federation thought we were divided on the points we made.

"In our meetings here I think we have gotten across the idea that we are not split."

WANTS TOURNAMENT FIRST

Dawson emphasized he wanted the open tournament against the Swedes, Russians and Czechs first and then would discuss other issues from there.

"We're prepared to take one thing at a time," he said.

Bunny Ahearne, president of the federation, was not available for comment. But it appeared that a definitive move was being made to get the Canadians back into world hockey.

There may have to be more compromises before it happens. The Canadians fell out of world championships and the Olympics because they wanted to mix professionals with their amateurs.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, has said that he does not mind such a team competing against an amateur squad "If it is done for a worthy cause."

Obviously, Brundage and the IOC would never agree on a Canadian team mixed with pros into the Olympics.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union stepped on the ice against Finland today in an attempt to clinch its ninth straight world title.

The Russians beat West Germany 12-2 Saturday. Sweden, which struggled hard to edge the U.S. 4-3 Sunday, is the only team with a chance of overhauling the Russians.

Finland trounced the Germans 7-2 Sunday while the Czechs blanked the Americans 5-0 Saturday in the weekend's only other action.

Vikings Extend String to Four

University of Victoria Vikings are making a habit out of wrecking the title hopes of Oak Bay Wanderers.

For the fourth consecutive season Wanderers were the beaten finalists as Vikings walked off with the Barnard Cup, emblematic of first division supremacy in the Victoria Rugby Union.

Vikings downed Wanderers 22-10 in the playoff final Saturday at Macdonald Park.

In the second-division final for the Times Cup, Saanich Velox won the title for the second straight year with a 23-5 romp over James Bay Athletic Association.

Scoring in the first-division final included two penalty trys — relative rarities in rugby — one called by referee Bill Smith against Vikings in the first half and the other against Oak Bay midway through the second half.

FIRST PENALTY TRY

Vikings were leading 6-0 on trys by centre Garry Johnson and scrum-half Dave Slater when Smith called the first penalty try.

Smith pulled up Uvic wing-three-quarter Paul Carnes for pushing the ball out of play with his hand just a yard short of his line with three Oak Bay players converging on the spot in an attempt to score a try.

Fullback Don Burgess kicked the conversion to bring the score to 6-5 and pull Wanderers back into contention.

Spurred on by this turn of fortune, Oak Bay came alive with John Wenman, Mike Penn and Bob Iverson charging quickly from the serum and disrupting the Uvic backfield.

LATE TACKLE

But it was John Wenman's brother, Jim — the Viking fullback — who went against the run of play and flashed through for a try to give Uvic a 9-5 lead at the intermission.

Smith awarded the second penalty try against Oak Bay when Vikings' Wenman booted through and was prevented from following the ball by a late tackle from Burgess. Hooker Derek Reimer converted to make the score 14-5.

With this state of developments, Oak Bay was demoralized and winger Reg Hoole dashed over for another two quick trys for Vikings. Reimer made good on one conversion attempt and boosted the score to 22-5.

In the final minute Oak Bay centre Jim Temple snatched a loose ball and dashed over for a try which Burgess converted.

VELOX UNDEFEATED

Saanich Velox remained unbeaten in 24 league and playoff matches this season with the victory.

James Bay opened strongly and kept Velox bottled up in its own end for the first 15 minutes of play. However, James Bay faltered shortly after the midway point of the first half and Velox led 11-5 at the intermission.

Billy Walton led Velox scoreres with two trys while single trys were added by John Howe, Tonny Carson, Danny Wallis and Bob Hissink. Lorne Bunyan converted one of the trys and Dave Kyle booted a penalty goal.

Bobby Reid dashed over the line for the lone JBAA try and Ross Irving supplied the convert.

Both Uvic Vikings and Velox now advance to the B.C. championships later this month at Vancouver. Mainland opponents will be decided in matches next weekend.

WHITE TAKES OVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert A. White of Vancouver was elected president of Ducks Unlimited (Canada) at the groups annual meeting. He succeeds Lorne M. Cameron of Winnipeg.

To Tackle T-Birds Tide XV

VANCOUVER — University of British Columbia Thunderbirds will play Victoria's Crimson Tide in the McKechnie Cup final here next Saturday.

UBC advanced to the provincial rugby final by rallying in the second half Saturday for an 11-9 victory over Norwest Caps. Norwest led 6-3 at the half.

Two brilliant tries by John Mitchell, coming in the last 10 minutes of play, brought UBC from behind. Mitchell raced 60 yards for his first try and then scooted 40 yards for the second.

Ray Banks completed UBC's total with a penalty kick and convert.

Ray Elis accounted for all Norwest points by booting three penalty kicks.

Big brother Victor kept Eddie Lo of Vancouver from collecting three singles titles in the Western Canada table tennis championships Saturday at Central Junior High School.

Eddie captured the under-13 and under-15 crowns with wins over Peter Joe of Vancouver but bowed, 21-10, 17-21, 22-20, to Victor in the under-17 final.

Phillip Cheng and Ken Leong of Vancouver downed the Lo brothers 21-18, 23-21, to win the men's doubles title.

Minor Hockey Series Tight

Saanich battled Victoria to a 3-3 tie in the second game of a best-of-three series for the Lower Island peewee pup hockey title Sunday at Memorial Arena.

Tracy Patterson, Guy Johnson and Phil Varcoe scored for Saanich while Mike Carlyle, Terry Olson and Steve Rufh counted for Victoria.

Saanich won the series' opening game. The third and deciding encounter at Pearkes Arena still has to be scheduled.

Saanich shaded Victoria 1-0 on a goal by Bill Adkin to tie a two-game, total-points series for the peewee crown 3-3 and force a third game.

Mighty Bruins Hard-Pressed By Villanova

(Times News Services)

UCLA's mighty Bruins retained the National Collegiate Athletic Association's basketball championship Saturday, but not before unheralded Villanova Wildcats presented a great argument at Houston.

Villanova, sparked by six-foot-eight Howard Porter, battled favored UCLA down to the wire before bowing 68-62.

Porter, a 22-year-old senior from Florida, scored 25 points and grabbed eight rebounds. His brilliant play earned him the outstanding player award of the NCAA tournament.

College baskatball's second biggest plum — the National Invitational Tournament at New York — went to North Carolina.

Powered by Bill Chamberlain's 34 points, the Tar Heels laced George Tech 84-66 in the NIT final.

HUSKIES REIGN . . . . . IN BASKETBALL

Awards Offer Solace

VANCOUVER — North Delta Huskies today reign as British Columbia's high school boys basketball champions but Vancouver Island find some consolation in the post-tournament awards.

Sparked by Dave Coutu's passing excellence and his 12-point contribution, Huskies tripped Vancouver City College Irish 43-38 in the tournament windup Saturday.

Vancouver Island's best finish was the fourth-place showing of Oak Bay, who earned the ranking with a 58-38 triumph over Burnaby South Rebels. Centre Doug Walton (17 points) and guard Peter Gibson (15) sparked Oak Bay's attack.

Oak Bay, coached by Don Horwood, was selected as the most sportsmanlike team in the three-day tournament.

The most coveted post-tourney award, however, went to a player who didn't appear in the championship final. Lars Hansen, a six-foot-10 centre from Coquitlam, was voted the most valuable player after sparking Centennials to a third-place finish.

Hansen, Walton, Coutu, Werner Spann of Abbotsford and Nick Gallagher, who paced Vancouver College in the final with 15 points, were first-team all-stars.

The second team was made up of Stu Graham and Mike McNeill of North Delta, Dwayne Koop of Abbotsford, Rick Wilander and Paul Spelliscy of Vancouver College.

New Westminster Hyacks finished fifth in the tournament standings with a 63-53 win over North Vancouver Norsemen.

Rugby Union Champs

Nanaimo swept through the first two days of competition in undefeated fashion to take the lead in the three-day, round-robin B.C. bantam hockey championship at Pearkes Arena.

The tourney, which continued today, is scheduled to wind up tonight.

In the tourney opener, Saturday Nanaimo fought to a 2-2 tie with North Shore and then went on to take a 6-4 win over Cranbrook Saturday as well as a 7-2 triumph over Trail and a 5-3 win over Prince George on Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Trail downed North Kamloops 4-3, North Shore bounced Cranbrook 6-3, Prince George beat North Shore 5-3 and Cranbrook slipped by North Kamloops, 7-6.

Prince George defeated Trail 5-3, and North Shore humbled North Kamloops 5-1 in other Saturday battles.

Standings, with a total of five games to be played:

Japanese Side Topples Hosts

West Tatsuno Sports Scouts, a Japanese girls' volleyball team touring British Columbia, topped two teams Sunday at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

The visitors had no difficulty disposing of a Victoria District Vollybal Association team, 15-10, 15-5.

But while facing the B.C. Olympics Club of Delta, which is accompanying them on tour, the Japanese lost the middle game 15-8 after collecting a 15-5 victory in the opener.

In the final game, however, the Japanese team nailed down a 15-4 win.

The best choice...

Now...three Chevron gasolines all with F-310*

With the introduction of Chevron Unleaded Gasoline into the Lower Mainland and Victoria areas, F-310 is now available in three grades of Chevron Gasolines:

Chevron Supreme with F-310

For top performance in cars with high-compression engines.

Chevron Unleaded with F-310

For those 1971 cars designed to operate on lower octane unleaded gasolines. It is also suitable for some pre-1971 cars which will operate satisfactorily on lower-octane fuel.

Chevron Gasoline with F-310

A quality regular-grade leaded gasoline for cars not requiring a premium-grade fuel.

Improved Engine Performance
This means that every Chevron customer in the Lower Mainland and Victoria areas — by selecting whichever grade of Chevron gasoline is proper for his car — can now benefit from the qualities of F-310. Here's why.

When deposits build up in your carburetor and PCV (positive crankcase ventilation) valve, the fuel mixture becomes too rich — the result: rough idle, stalling and wasted fuel. When these deposits are removed, good engine performance is restored — and mileage improves because gasoline is no longer being wasted. F-310 was developed specifically to clean the critical parts of dirty engines and to keep clean engines clean.
These extra performance benefits are now in all three grades of Chevron gasoline — all with F-310.

(*REGISTERED TRADEMARK FOR POLYBUTENE AMINE GASOLINE ADDITIVE)

Chevron gasolines with F-310. There isn't a car on the road that shouldn't be using one of them.

Hockey Tactic Rescues Gorge

Gorge Molson ripped a page from the book of hockey tactics Sunday and remained in a first-place deadlock with Victoria West in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division.

Trailing by one goal in the dying stages of their match with Oak Bay at Blanshard Field, Molsons pulled goalie Graham Lee out of the nets and sent the netminder running with the attacking unit.

The tactic paid off as Lee shared in a passing play that resulted in a goal by Peter Brett, enabling the Gorge crew to walk off with a 3-3 draw.

Wests also went with the puck ploy as they made a gambling bid to turn a deadlock into a triumph during a clash with Cosmopolitan Royals at Heywood Avenue.

It was considerably more daring as Vic West coach Dave Unwin risked a defeat in an attempt to snatch a victory in the closing minutes by sending his goalie out with the attackers.

Unwin's effort neither backfired nor produced a dividend and the two clubs wound up in a 1-1 stalemate.

ROADRUNNERS NIPPED

In other Sunday encounters, Duncan Village Green nipped Roadrunners 3-2 at Central Park and cellar-dwelling Hourigans upset third-place University of Victoria Vikings 1-0 at Topaz Park.

London Boxing Club maintained its eight-point lead over Victoria West in the second division by trampling Labatts 11-1 Sunday at Reynolds Road Park.

I.Q. of 145 and Can't Remember?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory", which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address, and zip code to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Pkwy., Dept. C133, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

BEST SELLERS

Nothing's Too Low For a Jackie Fan

By Jack Scott

The woman who phoned had identified herself as the manager of one of our town's better-known news-magazine shops. She was obviously a person of refinement and discernment. Equally obviously, she was hopping mad.

"You wrote that entire article about the pornography that's available in our book stores," said she, oozing indignation. "Why not give a careful look now at some truly disgraceful literature — the Jackie Onassis magazine racket? That is, if you can stomach it."

A reader's wish is my command. So off I headed, hippity-hop to the lady's busy, cluttered shop, there to confront enormous racks laden with the garbage that — and how I hate to report this! — Victoria's women have made the best-selling periodicals in these parts.

I selected an even dozen of the more than 30 such magazines on display, 11 of them at 50 cents a copy, one at 40 cents, and retired to my chambers. As the lady had anticipated the problem was to resist physical illness.

Boots

The names of these magazines are practically indistinguishable — Photo TV Land, TV Inside Movie, TV Radio Mirror, Screen Mirror, Movie TV Secrets, Star-Time, TV Screen Secrets, Screen and TV Album and so on.

Their second common factor is that they retail every last shred of manufactured gossip and make-believe scandal, month after dreary month, that's related to Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, widow of President John F. Kennedy, wife of Aristotle Onassis.

The first of these magazines appeared immediately following Jackie's wedding to the Greek shipping magnate on the island of Skorpios on Oct. 20, 1968. They tapped a strange cult, largely made up, it seems, of middle-class women so hungry for a vicarious participation in the life of "Jackie O" that any shred of information from her shoe size (10A) to her favorite cocktails (Bloody Marys and daiquiries) has become the most marketable commodity in journalism — to use the word loosely.

★ ★ ★

Far from waning, the circulation has built steadily, here as well as in the rest of Canada and the United States. Many are now in their third year of publication and coining profits.

A glance at the covers of these magazines down the long racks of any news shop, in supermarkets, in department stores and drug stores, gives an indication of what this mysterious reading public of women is looking for:

Item: "The strange relationship that shocks the jet set! How Jackie and Her Sister Share Everything! Lee's Dates with Ari! Her Husband's Meetings with Jackie: Those Wild, Wild Parties!"

Item: "Jackie Boasts About Ari's Sex Powers: 'No Normal Woman Can Resist Him'."

Item: "Jackie Shocked as Ari Shouts 'Blackmail' at Intimate Friend Because of Callas!"

Item: "Caroline's Forbidden Love: Jackie Cries: 'He's Not Good Enough for You!' "

Item: "Caroline Kennedy's 'Sneak Dates' with an Older Man! How Jackie Is Pushing Her Daughter into a Teen Marriage!"

Item: "Jackie Drives Homosexual Away from Her Son!"

Item: "Jackie's Fear — Why Caroline Can't Have Babies!"

Item: "Everything You Want to Know About Jackie — But Are Afraid to Ask!"

The verity gap between these sensational teasers and the grey content of the articles on the inside is just as enormous as anyone with a child's IQ would guess. It is, month after month, a game of Russian Roulette with the laws of libel and slander. The most mentally retarded of readers, having perused any one of these magazines, would recognize that the goods are not as advertised. Yet, it seems, the same sad women buy them over and over, indiscriminately except for their response to the juiciness of the bait on the cover.

What is this "strange relationship" in which Jackie and her sister, Lee Radziwell, share "everything"? Don't hold your breath. Just that the Radziwells and the Onassises "are seen together just about everywhere including the evenings that end up in post-midnight swims!" So much for those "wild, wild parties" that shock the jet set.

Did Jackie really boast about Ari's sex powers? Well, not quite. The writer digs up her alleged remark: "He is only five foot one inch tall, but when he is talking to me, he seems to grow gradually taller. After five minutes I have the feeling that the only thing that matters is to be part of his life."

Was Jackie shocked as Ari shouted blackmail? Who knows? The story, itself, is simply a fast re-write of the court proceedings involving Panaghis Vergottis, Maria Callas and Onassis, all of it in your daily newspaper of three years ago.

What was Caroline's "forbidden love"? Some highly circumstantial evidence from "a friend of the Onassis family" that a Greek gardener and his 14-year-old son on Skorpios were transferred to another of the Onassis' estates because the boy was seen holding hands with Caroline. Caroline is 13 years of age. Heigh ho!

Well, then, how about Caroline's secret dates with an older man and is Jackie pushing her into a teen marriage? The older man is identified as "15-year-old Denny, a very attentive little playmate," and another unidentified boy "who looks even older." How is Jackie pushing her? "Jackie probably hasn't ever said that she wants Caroline to marry young, or marry an older man, but just the same, the situation they are all in has forced Jackie to push Caroline toward just that."

★ ★ ★

How did Jackie drive a homosexual away from her son? That story goes back to the White House when a Secret Service man reported that a staff member was homosexual. "Jackie promptly had the individual dismissed, explaining, 'I can't take the chance of having someone like this around the children!' " End of story.

Yes, but what's this about Jackie's fear that Caroline can't have children? The salient paragraph: "Apparently it was about this time (Bobby Kennedy's assassination) that Caroline told her mother that she would never have children because she was afraid they would be killed."

Finally, we have the real inside story — everything you wanted to know, but were afraid to ask. And there the reader will find that (a) Jackie has enough shoes to be able to wear a different pair every day of the year; (b) the Onassises own 12 automobiles, including three Rolls-Royces, complete with telephones; (c) they employ 202 full-time domestic servants.

So, at a cost of $5.90, I ended my little trip into a never-never land of total unreality and when the news-magazine shop manager and I traded impressions we couldn't quite agree.

Her response was anger — anger that hypocritical publishers, editors and writers should so exploit the public, anger that Jackie Onassis' privacy should be so invaded, anger that, in the era of the women's liberation movement, so many women are obviously ill-prepared for it.

My response was sadness — sadness that some fellow-writers and editors could be so cynical, sadness at the evidence that so many women appear to have deprived, empty lives, sadness that things don't seem to have changed much since H. L. Mencken observed that no one ever went broke under-estimating the intelligence of the public.

IT'S WET— BUT COULD BE WORSE

It's been a long wet winter, sending rainfall records toppling, but Greater Victoria remains the most favored spot in the area.

Readings taken this morning show 2.45 inches of rain fell at Gonzales during March and 9.84 inches between Jan. 1 and now. These compare to the average figures of 1.97 and 9.58 inches for the two periods.

But, says chief weather official Allan McQuarrie, these increases are very slight compared with those in Vancouver and other parts of Vancouver Island.

Vancouver was drenched with six inches this month and readings at the Victoria International airport show a total of 4.64 inches for March and 14.87 inches since the beginning of the year.

He warns that there is little hope for the end of the gale-rain combination that has hit Victoria during the last few days, bringing storm systems over the area twice a day.

Southeasterlies blowing between 25 and 30 miles an hour are expected to switch to 25 m.p.h. westerlies this evening.

This means rain can be expected today and Tuesday, leading to more spring-like sunny skies Wednesday.

DANISH CELEBRATION of "rejsegilde," which takes place when a new building reaches its maximum height, was held at the corner of View and Quadra this morning atop the 18-storey highrise of Westsea Construction Ltd., of Vancouver. Foreman carpenter Rick Ferrill raises his cap to the Victoria skyline, flanked by the customary evergreens which are hoisted to the top during the Danish ceremony. The building will provide low-cost apartments and is designed for commercial outlets on the main floor and underground parking. (Photo by Bill Halkett).

Student Head Survives Non-Confidence Motion

Alma Mater Society president Ian J. McKinnon survived a non-confidence motion Sunday night at the University of Victoria during a meeting of the representative assembly.

Another motion passed by the assembly called for a general meeting of students to discuss the McKinnon issue and possibly to call for a referendum on whether he should resign.

During three-and-a-half hours of debate before a gallery of 150 students that packed the upper lounge of the Student Union Building, McKinnon defended himself against a wide range of criticism.

ACCUSATIONS

He was accused of conflict of interest, failing to represent the students, vacillation on crucial issues, "plotting" with the university administration and making misleading and untrue statements to the press.

"In answer to all the charges — not guilty," McKinnon said.

"I stand on my record.

"I do not believe that the charges against me warrant my resignation."

McKinnon survived the non-confidence motion of Brian Green and Alastair Murdoch by nine votes, 23-14 in a roll-call vote.

BOOS, JEERS

The motion failed to a loud chorus of boos, jeers and cries of "Resign! Resign!" and "Impeach the RA!" from the gallery.

Green led the attack on McKinnon with charges the president had consistently been inconsistent in his position.

"McKinnon's policies have been like a grandfather clock's pendulum — swinging from one side to the other," Green said in speaking to his motion.

Greg Fraser spoke in defence of McKinnon, claiming he was moderate in his views on the president's activities.

Pat Dunae argued McKinnon should be allowed an individual vote on issues as a member of the AMS.

"We talk about a purge," he said. "We're experiencing a purge."

Steering committee member Paul Watson said he had been waiting to deliver a message to the administration one morning when McKinnon and three other members of the RA who voted against the motion for an extra year for professors walked out of a meeting with Uvic president Bruce Partridge, Chancellor Roderick Haig-Brown and chairman of the board of governors Willard Ireland.

He accused McKinnon, former AMS president Robert McDougall, Dennis Steinle, and faculty representative Dr. R. L. Wright of psychology of "plotting against the RA" with the administration.

Wright responded that McKinnon had made mistakes but with good intent.

"I have seen him with my own eyes commit several whoppers in a row. But his heart was in the right place," he said.

Inside Workers Vote Tonight

Inside city hall employees are expected tonight to vote in favor of a work contract giving them a 15-per-cent wage hike over two years.

Victoria council accepted the wage settlement Thursday, following a mediation report that recommended a 7½ per cent wage increase in 1971 and again in 1972.

Frank Preston, president of local 308 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today his executive has recommended to the membership to accept the settlement.

The settlement affects about 180 employees. Police, firemen, outside workers and other smaller unions have still to come to contract settlements with the city.

The increase was in line with a similar contract signed earlier this month between Saanich and that municipality's employees.

Breakwater: Yacht Club Swings Back

Royal Victoria Yacht Club lashed back today at new criticism of its proposal to build a breakwater to protect winter mooring in Cadboro Bay.

The club's proposal for a 600-foot rubble breakwater six feet high was attacked Sunday night at a meeting of the newly-formed Oak Bay Beach Protection Association.

The group, led by Norman Dixon, voted to ask Oak Bay council to delay aproval of the club's application until a hydraulic study of the breakwater's effects can be carried out.

Independent Survey Sought

The resolution called for the study to be carried out by "an independent, competent hydraulic laboratory ... so all possible measurements of the ecological effects can be ascertained."

The resolution was passed unanimously by the 47 persons at the meeting. This number included 12 yacht club members.

Engineer John Graeme, chairman of the yacht club's breakwater committee, said club members wholeheartedly supported the new group's concern for the ecology of Cadboro Bay.

"I've been in the anti-pollution business myself for 20 years," Graeme said today. "If I thought this breakwater was going to constitute an ecological disaster or near-disaster I wouldn't have anything to do with it."

He noted that the yacht club was an "insignificant" polluter compared with the raw sewage from 166 homes on Humble Point already being dumped into the bay.

Graeme also discounted fears of beach erosion, which he said would require a tide rate of one-half knot "which simply is not there."

Another club spokesman expressed surprise today at criticism of the breakwater levelled by the B.C. Towboat Owners' Association and the Greater Victoria Mill Operators' Association.

"This criticism is not new, but we are surprised that they (the towboat operators) of all people should be upset, considering the constant damage being done in the bay by logs torn from booms during storms," he said.

'Strictly Commercial Operation'

The tugboaters expressed fears the breakwater would force the movement farther to sea of a set of dolphins now used by boats to tie up at during unexpected storms.

"This is strictly a commercial operation, and one which has caused boats to sink from collisions with logs and considerable municipal expense in cleaning up beaches."

One towboat operator said the dolphins offer the only protection between Victoria and Saanichton for boats towing booms in rough water.

This skipper said swells would come in, hit the breakwater and roll back, damaging the inside of booms already being buffeted by rough water on the outside.

Not so, said Graeme. The waves would hit the breakwater at a maximum angle of 15 degrees, and would break along or over the 16-foot top surface of the structure instead of rebounding.

The club's plans, based on preliminary hydraulic studies already carried out, would extend 600 feet and would stand 12 feet out of the water at low tide and be about level with the surface at high tide, for an average height of six feet. Cost is estimated at $160,000.

The proposal has been forwarded to the federal department of transport, who will ask Oak Bay council for their recommendation.

Council will consider the matter at a meeting April 19.

RCMP Band On Tour

The RCMP Band will perform in Victoria May 19.

The RCMP's most extensive tour ever planned will be featured in British Columbia's centennial celebrations. The tour begins at Dawson Creek May 12.

A Musical Ride will also be on tour. The Victoria performance date is not yet known.

Dorsey Belts Out Love

By SALLY GLOVER

WILLA . . . prays for the rent money

"Dorsey, Dorsey, don't you know you're a movie star?", shouted the excited neighborhood children.

Willa Dorsey did not.

She knew she'd been on the Lawrence Welk show, but didn't realize quite what that had done for her.

Her singing had made her famous — not wealthy, she says.

She was "blessed with a voice, has God behind her" and travels the world "expressing joy and happiness of the new way of life," through song, not money.

She does it all without an agent.

"The days of treating an artist like a human being are gone. All agents want you to do is make money — fast! And I don't feel like being a juke-box music computer.

"Some Hollywood people think I'm nutty," she said, "but so many of them are unhappy.

●

"It keeps me praying!

"I'm an expert at praying for rent," she said, laughing. "But sometimes it gives me heart failure waiting."

People take collections for her, churches usually pay her air fare and national television appearances and her recordings bring in enough to keep her belting out the songs.

"I usually come home from an engagement with about $15" she chuckled.

"That's what turns the kids on," she said.

"You could be making all that money and you come to sing for us little snot noses?", one little fan said to Willa.

"I've had so many chances to sing popular songs for great sums of money, but singing the word of God, especially to young people, means more to me than riches," Willa explained.

More popular singers have been hassled by young people and "can't understand how I enjoy them," she said. "I sing the same songs at the schools as I do at church and they sit there like little angels."

Even in the middle of Saturday's University of Victoria dispute, Willa Dorsey belted out songs such as Oh When the Saints Came Marching In, and using her piano as background, talked of problems "we shall overcome."

●

The listeners were few, but deeply intent and for a change, everyone left smiling.

Willa says she can't blame the young people for rebelling. "There's so much phoniness in old people today. Young people have an anxious mind and they want to be on the go."

"But you blow your mind when you're too free. We should chastise our kids. I'm so rough and they love me for it."

When she's not praying for rent, she's praying for her "young people."

"They liked telling me their problems. They ask me to pray for them," she says. "I've had some beautiful testimonies — some trying to get off dope, others worried about exams; they call me in the middle of the night sometimes. That at least keeps me in contact."

After her week in Victoria Miss Dorsey left today after an exhaustive weekend.

Tuesday she must be in Hollywood to start working on the Lawrence Welk Easter special.

Highway Crashes Put Two Persons In Hospital

Two people are in hospital today, one in fair condition with head injuries suffered in separate traffic accidents over the weekend.

Allan Kerry Johnston, 19, of 611 Admirals, is in fair condition at Naden Hospital after being transferred from hospital in Duncan.

He was the driver of a car that crashed early Sunday on the Trans-Canada Highway two miles south of Mill Bay.

Laura Frankish, 489 Swinford, is in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with injuries she suffered in a two-car collision on Highway 1A near the Six-Mile House about 6 p.m. Sunday.

Girls Discover Suspender Fashions

Not much has been heard lately about "unisex." Not very long ago, it was supposed to be the wave of the future. "His" and "hers" boutiques were opening up, and stores which had always been for just one sex hastily put in women's departments or vice versa.

As quickly as it came, however, unisex died. Except for a handful of young people, mostly in the Greenwich Village-type areas of the cities, no one seemed to want to shop in stores which carried clothes for both sexes.

The truth was that the fuss about clothes for both sexes was overdone. For many years there have been certain kinds of garments which were worn by both, usually in a process which started with men, then was picked up by women, as with the cardigan sweater.

Pants, of course, have been menswear in Western countries down to this century. Ever since the Thirties, however, they've been common for women. Now, certain styles recently brought out for women, although originally men's pants, are passing back to men as well, in the only kind of unisex fashion that ever takes hold, a natural kind.

Take galluses, for example, those wide, colorful suspenders which held up the pants of nineteenth century farmers and miners. Levi Strauss, which was making levis back in the days when those miners and farmers were around, has brought out some galluses for the girls, who have been going for country clothes recently.

They caught on at once, and the men started wearing them, too. After all, there's nothing these days especially male or female about either jeans or suspenders. Now Levi Strauss has a special name for their wide suspenders: Levi's Galluses.

The galluses come in nine-color stripes, in red and blue stripes and in solid red. They've got their own copper buttons, too.

Another pants style which is returning to the men from women's wear is the knicker. Levi calls their version "cossacks," as they see men liking them with boots. But they can also be bloused above high socks, just as they are frequently worn by women.

Fighting over who will get to wear the striped galluses — better known as suspenders — this couple models two of the many pant styles that come with detachable copper suspender buttons.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Wisely Cautious

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 37-year-old divorcee and mother of three. I am deeply in love with a 50-year-old man who is kind, gentle and considerate and wants to marry me. He is genuinely fond of my children and they of him.

Now, the problem: He's a Roman Catholic priest who is leaving the priesthood soon. He assures me that the decision to leave was made before we became emotionally involved, and I believe him.

I know that many men leave the priesthood every year, but I do not know anyone whose advice I could seek concerning the problems I may face in marrying an ex-priest. I wonder about the censure of family and friends, and his possible resentment eventually of having given up a 22-year vocation for a ready-made family.

Perhaps you, or some of your readers, could offer some advice. If I seem overly cautious, it's because I have one marital failure behind me and I want to do everything possible to insure a successful marriage the second time around. — Anxious.

DEAR ANXIOUS: You can expect the same problems encountered by any other 37-year-old woman with a ready-made family who marries a 50-year-old bachelor. Plus others. Even though he may not have left the priesthood to marry you (and a divorced woman, yet!) many will say he did.

Much will depend on where you live. Ex-priests who marry find it easier to make a new life in a new community. Wherever you go, you can expect subtle snubs and cutting remarks. You will lose some old friends because your husband "deserted his calling" and broke his vows. And you will win some new friends for the courage and honesty you have shown. Your former good friends will remain good friends.

Priests are usually sensitive, highly motivated and accustomed to discipline, and will work to make a marriage succeed, but I advise you to proceed with caution, and give him time to adjust to his new life before you say, "I do." I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: What does "B.Y.O.B." mean at the bottom of an invitation? — Pudge.

DEAR PUDGE: If it's a drinkin' party, it means Bring Your Own Bottle. If it's a prayin' party, it means Bring Your Own Bible.

DEAR ABBY: Fondue was originated by the Swiss, and everyone knows what a clean and cultured people the Swiss are, so NO DUNKER, who called Fondue parties "unsanitary and barbaric" doesn't know what she's talking about.

In the first place, the long fork is used only for cooking, and at no time does it go into the mouth. Each person has his own cooking fork and eating fork, so where is the danger of germs? I'm glad you told NO DUNKER to stay home. — Loves Fondue.

DEAR ABBY: A letter signed "Pro and Con" was in your column. It was from a man who was having a mild disagreement with his wife over whether they should continue to bathe their adopted daughter, age 11, and their own son, age 9, together. He said the kids have separate bedrooms, but they undress infront of each other and have always bathed together, and from the standpoint of sex, they seem to ignore the difference.

You said, "As long as the children are not self-conscious about their bodies, do not make an issue of it; if you suggest that they 'hide,' they may become unduly curious, or get the idea that nudity is 'wrong' or dirty. As your daughter matures she will acquire modesty without being told."

Well, I am an 11-year-old girl and I know the facts of life. And if an 11-year-old girl isn't conscious of her body yet, someone should explain a few things to her.

I have a nine-year-old brother, and I sure would not care to bathe with him. Have you ever seen how dirty a nine-year-old boy can get?—Conscious 11-Year-Old.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWAN: Retirement means, to most wives, twice as much husband on half as much income.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif, 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Women Who Buy From Dallas Ignore Fashion Propaganda

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

A pair of shorts on a New York street are almost obscne. In Dallas, Texas, they obscene. In Dallas, Texas, they merely look cute.

Of course, one soon discovers that shorts are hardly new in Dallas. The Texan fashion industry has always been sportswear oriented, so shorts have been a fact of life. If people want to give them new names, O.K. Dallas will simply make some more shorts, and make them a little differently but shorts are shorts.

This kind of soothing reflection is one benefit of getting away from New York. I am so used to New York that until I leave I don't always realize at what a pitch of tension one lives in that scrambling, competitive, lively but somewhat hysterical world.

On Seventh Avenue, each fashion maker huddles in his separate showroom, working away and wondering what's going on in all the other showrooms. In Dallas, all the showrooms are in a vast, architecturally stunning centre called the Apparel Mart, and people run up and down borrowing things from each other, like housewives going to the neighbors for an emergency cup of sugar.

Dallas is also capable of having a fashion manufacturer who declares against a "vulgar" expression such as "hot pants" because of his religious convictions, and of having another who opted out of his won firm when he thought its standards were being lowered. The fashion viewpoint widens in Dallas much as its endless plain affords a view you don't get in the narrow canyons of New York.

The trip which took me to the Dallas fashion centre also included a long weekend in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The scene couldn't have been more differet: one of those resort complexes so vast as to make it unnecessary to leave the acreage. Beside the usual stretch of scenic beach and blue waters, the huge swimming pool, the outdoor bars where punch flows in rivers, such places include seemingly endless numbers of wings under their roofs, where each gathering place simulates some far-flung corner of the earth.

Who comes to roost for weekend or longer in these fantasies of kitsch, so grandiose they finally overwhelm even the critical faculties? To find out, take dinner and entertainment in the main "room.".

Hundreds of people fill every place, and there isn't one male head adorned with even slightly long hair, nor one face mustached or bearded. Every female head is carefully coiffed and often tinted, for although there is surely no one under 30, there is also no one who is going to admit to being over 30.

The "cocktail dress" may have vanished in New York, but this room is full of them, in the once-standard shades of pink and turquoise, plus gold or silver evening slippers with high heels. Somebody is evidently making plenty of such dresses and shoes, and by the evidence here, lots of women are still buying them.

Once again, my fashion view gets widened. Those women have been bombarded for years by all forms of propaganda, and they're still wearing just what they like. They like bouffant hairdos, and they're still getting them.

Dallas Makes some of the "silent majority" clothes, along with the sportswear. Why not? If we're all supposed to be doing our own thing, keep it up, resort ladies, and stay loose, Dallas fashion makers.

Fearful Housewives Outbid by Dealers At Jewelry Auction

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the average housewife, more familiar with carrots than carats, a jewelry auction is the end of the rainbow—with the pot of gold just out of reach.

Several times yearly, Manhattan's Parke-Bernet Galleries, an exclusive auction house, holds open-to-the-public jewelry sales.

The audiences are comprised mainly of professional jewellers, society dowagers and collectors or collectors' agents.

It's old hat to them. But to a cloth-coated housewife, surrounded by minks and sables, a jewelry auction is a world of wonder.

With bidding in the thousands of dollars, the rhinestone-budgeted housewife is clearly condemned to silence, although occasional bargains do come along.

The bidding is heated and fast — at a recent sale an 11.18-carat diamond ring went from the opening bid of $20,000 to the $66,000 for which it was sold in less than a minute.

To the uninitiated, the speed of bidding is dazzling.

Mrs. Knut A. Blom, a steel mill supervisor's wife from the Cleveland suburb of Bay Village, Ohio, who attended a recent auction "just to see what it was like," intended to bid on a man's watch.

"But by the time I found the courage to raise my hand it was sold and they were up to $40,000 on the next item," she noted sadly. The gold and platinum watch, one of the infrequent bargains, went for $50 — to another housewife-type.

Scared to Move

Mrs. Blom observed that besides being exciting, "the auction has an element of fear — you're terrified to scratch your nose because you might wind up with a $60,000 necklace."

A spokesman for Parke-Bernet, however, discounted that possibility. "Our auctioneer can tell authentic bidders," he said. "Common "authentic" bid signs, he explained, include hand-raising, catalogue-waggling, "discreet" nods and earlobe-tugging.

Mrs. Blom said that while she found the action "exhilarating and fascinating," she enjoyed even more a visit to the gallery the day before the sale to inspect the jewels close-up. The items for sale are generally on exhibit at the gallery for a week prior to the auctions.

"Everything's kept in locked cases," Mrs. Blom said, "but the guards will take them out if you ask. I guess I looked prosperous because they let me try on one of the big diamond rings. Now I know how Elizabeth Taylor feels."

(Miss Taylor was outbid on a diamond weighing more than 60 carats at another Parke-Bernet sale, but her husband Richard Burton later bought it for her for a sum reported to be more than $1 million.)

Leaving the auction, Mrs. Blom commented that she "might stop by the five and ten on the way home and pick up a big, gaudy rhinestone necklace. My husband knew I was going to the sale and told me to keep my hands in my lap and my mouth shut. I can see his face when I show him such a necklace," she chuckled.

Blueprints Fade Out As Potters Wheel In

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

Window watchers on Fisgard Street will have noticed some changes in number 648.

Just a few months ago it was a blueprint shop.

Now the space is filled with the wheels, kilns and other tools needed to turn it into a ceramics workshop and school.

"I think a lot of people want to do something creative," says Dick Henson, the British potter who will teach full-time at the school.

"In the Old Country there has been a cultural life for centuries. During the pioneer days here, I would guess people were too busy carving a place for themselves in the wilderness. Now they have time to do other things.

"They have pictures to look at, many shows to see in galleries and theatres, but I think they want to do things with their own hands.

"We hope to offer a comprehensive course in ceramic techniques suitable for those who want to do ceramics as a hobby as well as those who wish to work professionally.

"I don't think one can teach ceramics. But we can teach people the techniques they need to create on their own."

Teaching with Dick on a part-time basis will be Island potters Jerry Wilkin and Chris Amabilino, a former Victorian who studied under Dick at Loughborough College of Art and Design in Britain.

Assistance in founding the studio came from Kent MacLeod who runs a ceramic studio and school that is equipped for only one aspect of ceramic work, casting.

"We have eight wheels and won't have more than eight students at any session," Dick says. "We don't want to have to shunt someone off to do slab moulding when he should be working on the wheel."

Dick has planned a 10-week, 30-hour course similar to a night school course he taught during his four years at Loughborough. The school will be open morning, afternoon and evening, and each student can choose the three-hour session that best fits into his other activities.

The course will cover all aspects of ceramic work, from preparation of clay and glazes to shaping and firing the finished product.

Dick came to Victoria because he felt it was "a society wishing to develop its creative needs."

"England has a great many art schools, and, consequently, a great many artists. At Loughborough there were always new students coming in and though every class was different, they would all rise to about the same level then leave.

"Innovations and new techniques would be added as they developed, of course, but I felt I myself wasn't developing as an artist.

"People enjoy life in Victoria. There is a casual atmosphere here, and we hope to carry this into the classes. We don't want the teacher-as-God setup; we may be able to learn from what our students are doing.

"Someone once said, 'An artist is not a special sort of person, but every person is a special sort of artist.' I believe this.

"I think the main thing I have to do as a teacher is break down a student's inhibitions, to stop him from saying, 'I can't do that,' and get him to try.

"If I can help just one person to be creative, I'll feel I've been successful. This is why I'm glad I'm trained in the educational side of ceramics."

The studio, Pacific Pottery School, will be open for classes by mid-April. Dick and his associates will be holding an open house at the school from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday.

Veteran Stewardess Likes Soldiers Best

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ida Staggers is nearing her 59th birthday but she would like to remain an airline stewardess for at least six more years.

"When I'm 65 I'll give up gracefully," she said as she arrived in San Francisco from her New York home, on a Trans World Airlines flight.

And what kind of passengers does she like best? Soldiers.

"Who wouldn't like all those nice young men," asked Miss Stagers who by choice has been flying trips to Vietnam and Okinawa.

"A boy said to me the other day, 'You look like my grandmother . . . may I call you grandmother?' "

"I hug 'em and I kiss 'em and I pat their cheeks."

Miss Staggers started with TWA in 1936 when only registered nurses were hired as stewardesses.

"In those days we could tell our people to lean out the window and see the pretty flowers," she said. "Only 14 besides me in the plane."

"We served them box meals and probably luke warm coffee."

Her main problem right now is TWA's retirement age of 60 for flight deck personnel.

Merchants Back Anti-Theft Drive

Shoplifting, the bane of every retailer's existence, became such a vexing problem in one city, according to Bob Webb, editor of Men's Wear of Canada, that storekeepers recently banded together and sponsored publication of an anti-theft advertising campaign in local newspapers.

"A shoplifting conviction can ruin your life," the ads warned. "Stealing is a crime. It goes on your record and stays there for the rest of your life.

"If you are a juvenile, it can bar your entrance to college. It can make you ineligible for government jobs at all levels. Stores, factories and businesses will find out about your past when you look for a job.

"Don't shoplift. It's not worth it!"

Retirement Health Guide Stresses Diet, Exercise

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The word retirement strikes fear into the hearts of many. They see it as the end of the road, the rest of their years to be spent just waiting. Happiness and health are for the young.

The attitude is all wrong and can be avoided, say students of gerontology from the wise King Solomon who observed that "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine, but a broken spirit drieth up the bones" to the 1970s' specialists in the aging process.

All of which is to introduce a new, cheerful practical and free publication on health for our senior citizens — now numbering 19.470 million (65 years and over).

The publication, Your Retirement Health Guide, is the joint work of the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association, both based in Washington D.C.

Continuing mental and physical activity is the prescription offered by almost all the experts consulted in preparation of the booklet, to come into retirement "with a bankroll of physical reserves" as well as financial.

It's pointed out that persons of all ages have trials and tribulations, that mental outlook is tied closely with physical well-being and that as Abraham Lincoln once said, "most people are about as happy as they make up their minds to be."

There is no reason to believe, for instance, that with age the mental processes have to be slowed. Dr. Alfred Schwartz, dean of education at Drake University, and extensive researcher on the subject, said there is no scientific evidence that memory diminishes as a natural result of age. Healthy people at any time in their lives have the mental ability to remember things to which they attach importance.

The publication stresses the need for physical activity — "Exercise can't prevent the stresses of life but it can help you cope with them." But before embarking on a daily exercise program which the publication includes check "with your own doctor and follow his recommendations."

As for food, two age groups are rivals for having the most notoriously bad eating habits — teen-agers and persons 65 and over.

Geriatrics Magazine found in a study that home-makers in their 60s, for instance, are guilty of poor dietary balance more frequently than any other group. It is not a case of not enough to eat so much as neglecting the nutritional rules for the New Jersey state division of aging said obesity is one of the most common forms of malnutrition . . . and a resulting strain on the heart.

Nutritionists recommend two or more glasses of milk daily or the equivalent in calcium-rich foods from the "daily group" such as cheese and ice cream. Include two or more servings from the protein-rich "meat and fish group," which would include meat, poultry, fish, eggs, dry beans and nuts.

Include four servings from the vitamin-filled "fruit and vegetable group"—the frozen, fresh or canned vegetables, citrus and other fruits. Iron and thiamine can be provided through at least four daily servings from the "grain foods group" — bread, cereals, rice, noodles, etc.

The publication also describes the advances made in treating heart disease, cancer, arthritis and other diseases to which the aging are particularly suspect.

Right on). Multiversal).

English Bed Jacket Knit in One Piece

By MAY MacLEAN

A couple of weeks ago, I had to spend a few days in bed resting my foot, and as it was very cold here in Montreal, with about three feet of snow, I thoroughly enjoyed the few days rest and quiet.

However, I did discover that my arms were inclined to get a little chilly while I was reading, which lead me to remember the type of bedjacket we used to make in England.

It's very simple to make, being just one straight piece, and if you use double knitting wool with fairly large needles it will also be quick to do.

For bedjackets, the main part needs to be loose knitting, allowing the finished garment to be both light and warm. The straight piece has ribbing for the cuffs.

The cuffs should be about three inches in depth, the seam is joined the depth of the cuff, plus about another two inches, and this forms a kind of sleeve. The main part passes across the back and shoulders, which is all one needs in the way of extra warmth.

By experimenting with the wool you are using and the appropriate needles, determine the amount of stitches that you will need for 12 inches of the width across the shoulders.

Cast this number of stitches on fairly small needles and work in knit two purl two ribbing for one cuff.

Change to the larger size needles and work about 36 inches in garter-stitch. Change back to the smaller needles and work another three inches in knit two, purl two ribbing. Cast off.

As I have described previously, join about five inches of seam at either end. If you know anyone who does have to spend a great deal of time in bed, they would I am sure, welcome a bedjacket such as the one I have described.

For those of you who have enquired, I do have a pattern for bedsocks, they are on Leaflet No. 10-57.

Leaflet No. 6955 has a charming lacey shell, just right for wear in the spring months ahead. These little shells are great either with shirts, slacks and shorts.

This one is knit from a pearl cotton and the directions are for sizes 32-38.

Perhaps you have been promising to knit that man in your life a pullover "one of these days." Here is your chance. This week's pattern features two sleeveless styles, popular in both spring and fall. They can be worn under a suit coat without too much bulk.

Win compliments with the easy basket weave stitch of one, made with 3-ply fingering. The other is smartly cabled and it too is sleeveless and made from a 3-ply fingering.

Sizes given in the directions are for 38 to 44 for the basket weave and 36-42 for the cabled pullover.

To order Leaflet No. 6713, send 35c in coin or money order (no stamps or personal cheques please). Please remember to also enclose your stamped, fully self-addressed return envelope, a long one if possible. Send to May E. MacLean, Knit and Chat, care of the Times, Victoria, B.C.

Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering and to allow about three weeks for delivery.

Few Surprises This Year In Broadway Tony Awards

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway has bestowed its 1971 Tony Awards upon Company as the best musical and Sleuth as the best play.

Top individual acting trophies were won by Maureen Stapleton and Brian Bedford for Drama, Helen Gallagher and Hal Linden in the song-and-dance department.

The Tony Awards are awarded for Broadway shows.

The 25th-anniversary presentations of the silver medallions for distinguished achievement were made Sunday night during a two-hour-plus telecast from the Palace Theatre over the ABC network during which a stellar galaxy reprised hit songs from past musical champions.

There weren't any real surprises among the winners—voted upon by about 450 representatives of stage guilds, craft unions and the press. But the loudest ovations greeted the awards to three veteran actresses, Miss Stapleton, Miss Gallagher and Patsy Kelly.

WON IN 1951

Miss Stapleton, honored for her portrayal in the Gingerbread Lady, won a Tony previously in 1951. Miss Gallagher, of No, No, Nanette, also got a Tony for supporting work back in 1952.

"This really is for us who stuck on and on," Miss Gallagher said as she clutched her new trophy.

For Miss Kelly, taking the supporting musical actress award for No, No, Nanette, there was special sentimental significance, for it was at the Palace when she was 12 that she made her New York debut in a vaudeville chorus.

In addition to the award as best musical, Company scooped up five other Tonys: for best book, by George Furth; best music and lyrics separate citations, Stephen Sondheim; scenic design, Boris Aronson; and Hal Prince, the director-producer. The show, which opened last April 24 after the Tony voting deadline, previously was named the best musical of 1970 by the New York Drama Critics Circle.

A NEWCOMER to Victoria musical circles is Charles Dorrington. A Native of Peterborough, Ont., he arrived in this city last summer. A bass-baritone, he had given recitals, been a guest soloist with the Coventry Singers of Peterborough and the Orpheus Choir of Toronto. He was one of 16 basses chosen from across Canada in 1963 to sing in the Anglican Congress Choir in Toronto. A member of the Christ Church Cathedral Choir and Amity Singers in Victoria, he will appear as baritone soloist tonight in a performance of Faure's Requiem by the University of Victoria Choir and Orchestra at the Uvic gymnasium. The concert begins at 8:30 p.m.

No Exams For Graduate

TORONTO (CP) — The York University senate has voted to grant a psychology major's request to graduate without exams or marks.

Howard Halpern, 21, an A student for three years, had asked in October to be awarded his final year on the discretion of his five professors. The university's faculty of arts accepted his request and Thurday the senate upheld the faculty's decision.

The senate said his professors must make a written evaluation of his work and that this must be scrutinized by the examinations board of the faculty of arts in deciding whether he merits honor standing.

Mr. Halpern's five credit courses are all either independent or student-run and subject to marks on the basis of theses and classroom participation.

Western Packs Big Laugh

By PETER McNELLY
A Review

Want a good laugh from a tricky movie about some bad hombres who bust out of jail?

You'll get it from There Was a Crooked Man, starring Kirk Douglas and Henry Fonda. These old buzzards turn in lovable performances as two of the western's stock characters: the carpetbagger outlaw and righteous sheriff.

LOTS OF FUN

Douglas is the outlaw, Paris Pitman, who wears a shyster's wire-rims and talks his way into a $500,000 robbery while eating southern fried chicken.

Sheriff Lopeman doesn't tolerate whisky and loose women, but his weakness is trying to talk his prey into surrendering when he ought to speak with a gun.

Much of the movie is the battle between Pitman's corruption and Lopeman's virtue. But there's a lot of fun in between.

Pitman's fondness for Madame's ladies gets him nabbed for the robbery and sentenced to 10 years in a jail built in the middle of the desert. This bothers Pitman very little, since it's almost as much fun to engineer an escape as it is to steal rich men's life savings.

GETS BUSTED

Lopeman gets busted out of his sheriff's job for being too soft on crime — as they say these days — so he volunteers for warden.

Pitman plays Lopeman for a sucker and almost gets away with it. But the trick in the film is the crime-does-pay ending.

If There Was a Crooked Man were nothing more than an interesting story with good acting, no one looking for a good time could feel cheated.

But some really weird things go on in this film. I won't give them all away, but some bear retelling

RICH FAMILY

A rich family is about to be served dinner by their black cook. With deliberate scorn, she ties on an Aunt Jemima scarf, picks up the fried chicken and heads for the dining room.

But she pauses at the door to five an Uncle Tom's squeal of pleasure. After all, that's what she gets paid for, because thats what her employer thinks black people do before they eat.

Another delightful touch is Fonda's habit of rand-rolling cigarettes that never make it. Every time, he has to toss them away.

You'll recognize, if you watch for them, scenes you've seen one hundred times in one thousand other westerns.

Director Joseph Mankiewicz was smart not to search too hard for originality or extra realism. He knows that westerns are for those who love them and had the sense to use their cliches gracefully instead of pretending no one ever filmed jail breaks, whore houses, fist fights and gun battles before.

Rather than develop a striking story, Mankiewicz loaded the film with all manner of odd, humorous characters: Burgess Meredith as the legendary Missouri Kid, now just a broken convict who pretends he's a farmer by raising marijuana; Hume Chonin, the phoney deaf and dumb half of a homosexual partnership with a bogus preacher.

In spite of its minor aberrations, There Was a Crooked Man has a pleasant and slightly faded familiarity about it. But I don't want to make it sound like a museum piece.

This film has more than its share of irreverent surprises and odd violence which keep bringing things back home to the fact that some people are just no damn good.

VOODOO FLIGHTS RESTRICTED

COMOX — The defence department today restricted flights of CF-101 Voodoos due to technical problems with the engines.

An official said flying has been restricted to mandatory operational flights and covers planes here, at Chatham, N.B. and Bagotville, Que.

Ottawa says the problem with the engines is known and that corrections will be made. There is no connection between the technical problem and Feb. 10 of a Voodoo at Comox. The engines from that crash have been recovered and were sent Sunday to Montreal for tests.

TOFINO FIRE KILLS TOT

TOFINO — An inquest will be held April 14 into a house fire which killed a nine-month-old baby on the Opitsat Indian Reserve Saturday.

The fire destroyed the house so fast the fire department never had time to answer the call.

Fabian Williams, nine months, was in the house with his mother, Mrs. Beulah Williams, and Thomas Curley. Mrs. Williams and Curley escaped without injury.

An RCMP officer received a call on the fire at 2:30 p.m. By the time he and a forestry worker had crossed Browning Passage to Meares Island in the Tofino lifeboat, the fire had destroyed the house.

Coroner M. K. Saxon will hold the inquest, RCMP said today.

School Patroller Wins Ottawa Trip

DUNCAN — Twelve-year-old Ted Wong will be one of 12 school patrollers to represent British Columbia at the 12th national school safety patrol jamboree in Ottawa on May 21 and 22.

Ted, a grade seven student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Poy Wong of Duncan, was selected from 71 members of the Duncan Elementary safety patrol.

"The last time someone was sent from Duncan was eight years ago," said Neil Cameron, vice-principal and safety director.

Dunan Elementary has the only active safety patrol in the district. The group, sponsored by the Duncan Kiwanis Club, is divided into six groups to control pedestrian traffic at five crosswalks twice a school day. Ted is one of six lieutenants.

Since the patrol was formed 22 years ago there has never been an accident while the patrol has been on duty.

"The jamboree, which is sponsored by the Canadian Automobile Association, is designed to provide a stimulus to the operation of school patrols right across Canada," Cameron said.

The B.C. patrol members, whose trip will be paid by the B.C. Automobile Association, will spend a day touring Vancouver before they fly to Ottawa to join the remainder of 6,000 school patrollers.

Ted's excursion will be highlighted by a tour of the Parliament Building, the Royal Canadian Mint, the National Museum, the Governor-General's residence plus watching the RCMP Musical Ride.

He will also participate in a parade through Ottawa streets. The parade will march past either Prime Minister Trudeau or a senior minister in front of the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill.

Library Role To Be Aired At Meeting

A province-wide airing of the role libraries should play will take place May 3 at the British Columbia Centennial Citizens Conference, to be held in Victoria under the sponsorship of the B.C. government.

Taking part in the conference will be representatives of government, labor, education, the professions, women's and youth groups.

The conference has been arranged as a special event in Provincial Library Week, which begins May 2.

Prominent community and business leaders will join librarians as speakers and discussion leaders.

Paul St. Pierre, well-known author of Chilcotin Holiday and Breaking Smith's Quarter Horse, will be the luncheon speaker. St. Pierre is Liberal MP for Coast-Chilcotin.

Ald. Alan Emott of Burnaby will be banquet speaker.

Main objective of the discussion groups will be to formulate recommandations on co-operative services, finance and support, and school-public library relations.

The conference will be followed up by six regional conferences, planned for the spring of 1972.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BOUGHTON — In loving memory of our dear father and granddad, Charles Albert Boughton, who passed away March 29, 1969.
Gone, Dear Father, gone forever
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by daughters Mabel and Edna, granddaughters Janice and Wanda.

BOUGHTON — In loving memory of our dear dad, Charles Albert Boughton, who left us two years ago today.
What we would give to say
We'll go and see our dad today
To see his face and see his smile
To sit and talk with him awhile
But we have lost and God has gained
The best Dad the world contained.
Ever to be remembered by his daughters Peggy and Ray Lemay and family, June Powers, Cyril and family.

BOUGHTON—In loving memory of my dearest husband, Charles Albert, who left me two years ago, March 29, 1969.
One of the best whom God could lend.
Absent the face I loved so dear,
Silent the voice I loved to hear,
Deep in my heart, his memory is kept
To love, and cherish and never forget.
Ever remembered by his wife Margaret.

BOUGHTON—In loving memory of our dear grandad and dad, Charles Albert Boughton, who passed away March 29, 1969.
You do not suffer now, we know
Oh God, why did you have to go?
We had so much we didn't say,
If only you could come back today.
Always remembered by his granddaughter Judy, Ed and great grandchildren, daughter Elsie and family.

BOUGHTON—In loving memory of our beloved father and grandfather Charles Albert Boughton, who left us March 29, 1969.
Passing of time will not dim our memory
To one who meant so much.
Ever remembered and missed by Ben, Marg and children.

LUMLEY—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Daniel George Lumley, who passed away March 29, 1969.
The golden gates stood ajar
Two years ago today
As you gently slipped away.
Sadly missed by your Loving Wife Pearle and son, Danny.

HERE'S LUCY. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Bandleader Buddy Rich and Desi Arnaz Jr. cut loose on a drum duet. Lucy starts it all, by trying to talk Buddy into giving lessons so Desi (Craig) can pick up a $1,000 scholarship in a drum contest.

GUNSMOKE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. The Money Store. This one would be funny if it weren't so tinged with pathos. Two young children decide to turn bank robbers. Their target — a tight-fisted banker uncle who refused a loan to their poverty-stricken father.

PARTRIDGE FAMILY. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Ray Bolger is guest star, appearing as Shirley's father, a mandolin-playing senior citizen anxious to join the Partridge family act. Songs include Bye-Bye Blackbird and Baby, I Love Love, I Love You.

CAROL BURNETT. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8; 10 p.m., Channel 7. This is Carol's last new show of the current season and it features Nanette Fabray and Paul Lynde, who help out with another chapter of As the Stomach Turns. The old folks (Carol and Paul) get off the porch and onto a dance floor with a younger couple.

NATURE OF THINGS. 10 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. This episode concludes a series on the role of psychiatry in space-age society. Eddie, a disturbed teenager being treated at Montreal's Allan Memorial Institute, is in the spotlight. John Unwin, a psychiatrist, narrates.

IRONSIDE. 10 p.m., Channel 8. Jessie Royce Landis is featured guest, as a septaugenarian corporation director, victim of a purse-snatching. She asks Ironside to solve the case as quietly as possible — she doesn't want her business associates to know she was carrying a fortune in jewels when it happened.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

One of the most painful and distressing diseases we know of is trigeminal neuralgia (also called trifacial neuralgia or tic douloureux). Commonly it attacks elderly women. It comes in spells that involve usually one-third of one half of the face. It is often referred to as trifacial, because the nerve that supplies the face with pain sensation has three divisions on each side.

* * *

The attacks of pain come in spells which often feel as if a wire carrying electric shocks had been driven into the face. Something seems to go wrong with a part of the nerve. A spell may come on suddenly, as the woman is talking or chewing, or she may have touched a "trigger area."

Relief can sometimes be obtained with a drug, such as histamine or nicotinic acid, sometimes with an operation on the root of the nerve, or sometimes by injecting novocaine, a local anesthetic, into the end of the division of the nerve that is causing the pain. A spontaneous cure is rare.

Years ago, all of these patients whom I saw had had all of their teeth extracted, with the idea that this would cure them, but it did no good. Some patients had an operation on the nerve that had left part of their faces numb and very uncomfortable; also many had had the old type of operation which would cause the eye on that side to be sensitive, and this sometimes resulted in partial blindness.

For a while, the favorite treatment was with the drug tegretol, but this drug has to be used with great care because of its many serious side reactions.

Today, I think the two commonest treatments are (1) to inject novocaine where the pain is felt; (2) if that does not work well enough the surgeon may inject alcohol or hot water around the nerve, or he may massage the nerve.

City Teachers Choose BCTF

More than 95 per cent of Greater Victoria's 1,400 teachers have indicated they would like to continue their membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

The legislature recently passed a government amendment to the Public Schools Act which made BCTF membership non-compulsory.

Pledges were mailed to all teachers in the province two weeks ago asking them to indicate their preference.

BCTF president Jim Killeen announced Friday the province's 23,000 teachers are 95 per cent in favor of staying within the organization.

Until this year membership in the federation has been automatic for 25 years.

Old Town Supporters Start Brief

Researching the possibilities of rejuvenating "the best collection of late 19th-century buildings on the Pacific coast" could provide Victoria university students with summer jobs.

Victorians concerned with saving the area known as Old Town, which includes the Reid waterfront project, formed a steering committee Saturday.

A brief will outline the possibilities of student involvement in the Old Town area as part of the government make-work program.

CHAMBER ACTS

Their actions were hastened by a resolution by Chamber of Commerce directors Saturday to act on Reid's $25 million hotel and apartment complex before the price was driven beyond attainment or the source of capital driven away.

Chamber president Philip Holmes said the proposed project at the foot of Fort Street had not been put to the council formally.

Continuing to "generate the image of the area," the newly-formed Old Town steering committee feels "the implementation of any major development proposals without careful consideration of their effect on Old Town itself, or on Victoria in general, could be disastrous."

WORK ON SLOGANS

Architectural students from University of British Columbia began the initial study of the area. Now Victoria High students have formed a school group and are working on slogans and means of informing the public of the potentials of Old Town.

The UBC study group, still compiling technical data, will work in conjunction with the steering committee.

Acting chairman for the committee is Rodney Bevan. Other members include Jim Stark, Sam Bowlf, Mrs. A. E. Tate, Mrs. H. C. L. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Al Titerle, Jim Titerle, Blayney Scott and Chris Gowar.

Before the Judge

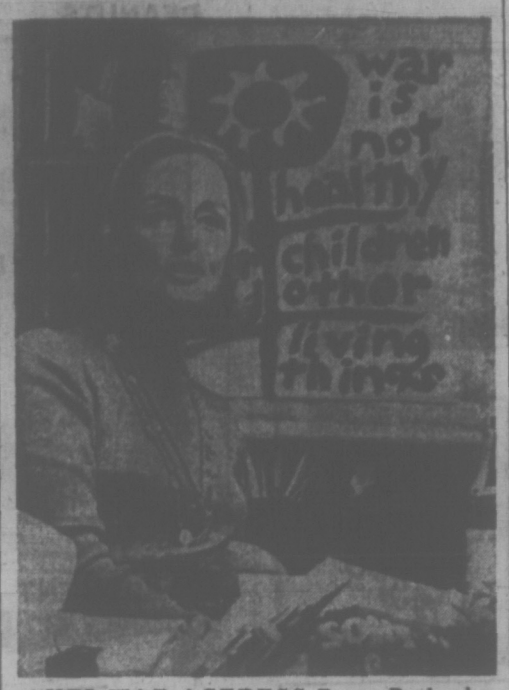
A 21-year-old serviceman was fined $400 today in court by Judge William Ostler when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Douglas W. Greenfield, of HMCS St. Croix, also had his licence suspended.

Court was told that Greenfield was observed driving on the shoulder of the roadway March 27 about 4 p.m. trying to pass other cars.

A police cruiser gave chase and the accused increased speed to about 55 miles an hour before being stopped on Grange Road.

He had a breathalyzer reading of .14 per cent blood-alcohol content at the time.



ANTI-WAR ACTRESS Donna Reed, who won an Academy Award in 1954 for her role in From Here to Eternity, is one of the driving forces in a Hollywood-based peace drive. Another Mother for Peace. "I love my country, but I feel it got off the track," Miss Reed says. (AP Wirephoto)

Sweep Story Raises A Storm

Victoria's winner in the Irish Sweepstake Saturday, Mrs. Olive Horan, is incensed over a published report that she considers the $48,600 she won "like a drop in the ocean."

Mrs. Horan, a widow with two grown sons, said today she would have been grateful to win even the bottom $1,000 sweep prize. She has been flooded with weekend calls chiding her for not appreciating the windfall.

"It was totally incorrect . . . terrible," she said of a story in the Victoria Daily Colonist which quoted her as saying the win was "nothing to get excited about — like a drop in the ocean."

Mrs. Horan has been away from her nursing job at Royal Jubilee Hospital for two weeks with the flu. She plans to get away for a few days to finish recuperating from that bout and to recover from "exhaustion."

"I've worked hard all my life," she said. "I raised two sons, and I've got brothers and sisters to help.

"Certainly the money I won means a lot to me. In fact, I can't really begin to think of how much it means."

Newspaper Bombed

SAIGON (Reuter) — Several youths riding motorcycles threw gasoline bombs at the office of the left-wing Saigon Tin San newspaper, but only slight damage was reported.

20 Years Of Service To Labor

Twenty years of service to the labor movement was recognized Sunday when 50 friends sent off Teamster representative Robert Milliken at a Union Centre gathering.

Milliken, 59, retired as business agent for the General Truck Driver Union, a post he held continuously for the last 20 of his 25 years as a member, and during which he also served five other labor organizations.

SURVIVES ERA

Former B.C. Federation of Labor president E. T. Staley, international representative of the Carpenters' Union, recalled Milliken was one of the labor group who survived the Broughton Street era, when fledgling full-time staff had offices opposite the Weiler Building.

In the early 1950s offices moved to the 500-block Pandora after formation of the Victoria Building Co-operative Union, which Milliken served as a director.

He was a delegate to the old Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council, later Victoria Labor Council, and a representative on the Union Centre executive when it built the current headquarters on Quadra Street.

A member of Victoria Labor Council Credit Union, Milliken served on its credit committee, and finally was one-time president of Vancouver Island Building Trades Council.

BRIGHT WORD

"Bob always had a bright word for us all in this building, no matter how gloomy things were," Staley said.

Noting that Milliken and his wife Margaret planned to travel, Staley said, "It speaks well for the labor movement that people now can have an opportunity to travel and have leisure time."

Remembering his election as head of the building trades council, Milliken told the gathering he was installed at one meeting and ousted at the next, which fell just after the expulsion of the Teamsters by the AFL-CIO.

Among the friends who wished the Millikens well were Teamster officers from Vancouver and George Wilkinson, a former TLC secretary who became a construction industry executive in Vancouver.

Impaired Driver

Danny Ray Markle of Duncan was sentenced to 30 days in jail when he appeared in Duncan Provincial Court this morning on a second charge of impaired driving.

His driver's licence was suspended for six months.

Markle pleaded guilty to the charge of being impaired when he was stopped in Duncan March 12.

A breathalyzer test showed Markle to have a blood-alcohol reading of .23.

GROOM WEARS STRIPES AT THIS WEDDING

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Wedding bells are scheduled for the Buchanan County jail here.

The prospective bridegroom is William Ledinski, a jail trusty awaiting trial on a burglary charge. His intended bride is Gilda Johnson, serving a sentence for possession of stolen credit cards.

The couple applied for a marriage licence Friday in the custody of a deputy and a jail matron.

Sheriff H. C. Sonny Myers said he pointed out to the couple that the jail had no bridal suite and they will return to individual cells after the ceremony.

The sheriff said that as for a wedding cake, "That might be up to the groom, he is the jail cook."

IMPORT REPORT
By DAVID CARERT

HOW TO BUY A SMALL CAR

Canadians and Americans are used to buying big cars. Small cars are something else. Here are some words of advice from Nissan Motor Co. Ltd., a small car expert who's been building them for 38 years.

Small cars are in big.

Suddenly North Americans have become small car conscious. And for some solid reasons. Economy, ecology and efficiency, for example. Plus the aesthetics—the nice difference compact mobility can make in their lives. But most North Americans have experience in buying only big cars. How do you shop intelligently for a new small car? What kind of value can you expect? How much should you pay? What do you gain or lose? Basically, you want the same things in any size car — comfort, reliability and safety.

What should you sacrifice?

Room? Ride? Safety or Power? The truth is, you don't have to sacrifice anything for economy if you buy the right economy car. Let's look at room. Built right, small sedans have plenty of it right where you need it—in the passenger compartment and in the trunk. More, in fact, than many long-hooded, snub-backed big cars. No-fat functional design gives five passengers the kind of head, hip and leg room that Canadian-size people need. So you don't think in terms of sacrifice, but in terms of benefits. The kind that ease you through traffic. Baby your budget. Show you as a shrewd judge of car value.

What about safety?

A fresh, rounded look at the matter shows small cars can be just as safe as big cars. In some ways safer. Fatalistically — and perhaps unfortunately — most people think of car safety only in terms of accident protection. The survivable all-steel cocoon. The ultimate solution would be to drive a Patton tank. To this end, small cars go through the same crash-testing procedures that big cars do. And they have the same federal safety requirements as big cars. In addition you should look for sure handling, stable suspension and good visibility. Plenty of acceleration and fade-resistant braking too. Because an equally important aspect of safety—too often overlooked—is accident avoidance.

And parts and service?

You can get satisfactory parts and service. Small car manufacturers, domestic and import, realize the importance of after-sales accommodations. It's simply good business.

How big an engine?

Here's where a new perspective is really important. Big car buyers think in terms of hundreds of horsepower because most big cars must move about two tons of metal. But small cars weigh half as much. They need a lot less horsepower for the same kind of performance. How does modest size and power produce big performance? By a proper Power to Weight ratio: how many pounds each horsepower must haul.

Well that's not all there is to buying a small car. After you find one with all of the previously-mentioned attributes you can start comparing standard equipment vs. accessories and price vs. price. The answer will probably spell out Datsun—the champion favorite of the quality-minded economy car buyer.

HOME GARDEN

THE AMAZING DWARF DAHLIAS

By HILDA BEASTALL

Dwarf dahlias, grown from seed, have been favorites with local gardeners for years. The height, around 18 inches, and the wide range of colors make these plants ideal for even windy gardens. They need no staking for their growth is bushy, each plant three feet across.

Hilda

Some of the more vigorous seedlings of the Unwin strain will reach 24 inches in height, while the Coltness give larger single flowers and usually are no higher than their 18 inches.

For quantity of bloom, these dwarf dahlias are amazing. So long as the gardener will make a daily round to nip off the old flower heads as the petals fall (to prevent seed forming), the plants continue to produce new flowering shoots until fall frosts put an end to them.

SOWN BY MARCH

The seed must be sown indoors by the end of March if you want to enjoy the vibrant colors of these plants during June. They grow quickly, and within a couple of weeks need pricking out singly into three-inch plant bands.

You will be amazed how soon the tubers form; by the time dahlias can be planted outdoors after May 15, you will find a sizable little tuberous rootstock in each plant band. This is why they need the space and restriction of a veneer band. Otherwise the tubers might be harmed when transplanting.

Separate colors are offered in seed of Coltness hybrids. The Unwin strain is a mixture of singles and semi-doubles in all possible colors.

VIBRANT DISPLAY

For a vibrant display in a close-up planter or small bed, grow the dwarf variety listed as Fall Festival or Zulu. The leaves right from the start are a dark purple red, the color of beet tops, and the large crimson orange single flowers glow like lanterns.

Besides making long-lasting garden displays, these dwarf dahlias are ideal for sunny balcony planters. They need a soil full of humus to hold moisture throughout summer, and a feeding of balanced fertilizer when in their full bloom of July will ensure their continuance.

LESS BUSHY

If planted closer than three feet apart, the plants may want to grow taller and less bushy. Pinching out the growing tips will check this, but normally they do not require this.

Seedling dahlias with their first blooms within two months from sowing seed are quite exciting. The tubers can be stored over winter, but will produce taller and less attractive plants in later years.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

A "safety play" is a play in which declarer deliberately gives up the possibility of making an overtrick in order to assure the making of the tricks needed to fulfill his contract. Today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game, depicts the safety play in action.

Opening lead: Nine of ♡.

South thought for a long time before bidding only four spades. With North's jump raise to three spades, there was a good possibility that a slam might be made. It was fortunate that he didn't bid any more, for a five spade contract would have been defeated.

Upon winning the opening lead with the heart queen, South perceived that he had a diamond loser and, viewing it pessimistically, a club loser. Therefore, if the contract were to be fulfilled, it was necessary to take out precautions against losing two trump tricks.

As can be observed, if South had laid down the trump king at trick two, East could not have been prevented from winning two trump tricks. The play of the king would be a winning one on those days when West started with the Q-x-x of trumps, and South next finessed against West's queen. In this set-up, South would make five trump tricks.

At trick two, South led the three of trumps out of his own hand, West discarding a diamond. The trick was won by dummy's ace, and the jack of trumps returned. East covered this with the queen, and South took it with the king. A trump to dummy's nine-spot was now taken by East's 10. When he regained the lead, South's eight of trumps picked up East's last trump. Thus South lost one trump trick, one diamond, and one club.

Suppose it had been West who possessed the four outstanding trumps (and South's only worry was that one of the opponents might have the four trumps). In this case, dummy's ace would have won the initial trump lead. A low trump would then have been led to South's king. Next would come a third trump out of South's hand. West, with the Q-10 remaining (with dummy having the J-9), could now make only the trump queen.

ILL-FITTING BOOTS RESULT IN PINCH

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — When a customer complained his new boots did not fit, shoe store manager Christopher Mayhew took a close look.

He found both were right feet, one was size seven and one size eight — and they were even different colors.

Instead of changing them, he called police because a check showed they had been stolen.

The customer, Reginald Green, 48, was later fined $24 in court.

Canada's Fourth Scientific Satellite Blasts Off Wednesday

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Communications is of particular importance to a country the size of Canada.

First, it was the railroad which joined the nation together. Now it is electronic communications which binds east with west, north with south.

And as a part of a continuing study of the things that affect radio communications (particularly in the north), Canada is scheduled to launch her fourth scientific satellite into a circular, near-polar orbit on Wednesday from Vandenberg Air Force Base, California.

MOST ADVANCED

ISIS-B, as the spacecraft is called, will be flung skyward atop a U.S. Delta DSV-3E three-stage, thrust-augmented rocket, delivering 331,000 pounds of lift-off thrust, as part of a joint U.S.-Canada International Satellite for Ionospheric Studies (ISIS) program.

ISIS-B represents the largest and most advanced spacecraft yet developed for studying the ionosphere, the upper part of the atmosphere containing charged particles so important for long distance radio communications.

Alouette I, Canada's first explorer of the ionosphere, is still functioning almost nine years after being placed in orbit and holds the world's record for the longest operation in near-space. And Canada's first bird was also distinguished by being the first satellite launched by a country other than the United States or Russia.

ISIS-B will be called ISIS-II if orbit is successfully achieved. It contains 12 ionosphere investigation experiments. Eight were provided by the federal department of communication's Communications Research Centre, the National Research Council, and the universities of Calgary, Western Ontario and York. The remaining four were provided by the NASA Goddard Space Flight Centre and the University of Texas.

DATA RELAYED

Data collected by the satellite will be relayed to ground tracking stations all around the world, including a control centre facility near Ottawa, to be used by scientists all over the world who are studying the ionosphere from the ground.

The ionosphere stretches from 30 miles upwards to 250 miles above the earth. It contains charged particles (ions and electrons) created largely by the ultra-violet (tanning) radiation from the sun.

There are bands of these charged particles in the ionospher at certain times (particularly at night) which act as natural reflectors for shortwave radio transmissions and allowing long-distance terrestrial radio communications.

INTERFERENCE

Many communities in Canada's north now must rely on radio signals bounced off the ionosphere to maintain communications with the south.

CHECKING SATELLITE is Norman A. Harrison, deputy project officer for the Canadian communications department.

Electrical activity originating on the surface of the sun often plays havoc with the ionosphere, disrupting radio communications for hours or even days, especially in polar regions.

To be able to predict these radio blackouts produced by solar storms, scientists must understand what is happening in the ionosphere.

The beautiful northern lights are another ionopsheric pheonomeon, thought to be caused by solar radiation effects on the ionosphere.

The 582-pound satellite was assembled by RCA Ltd. of Montreal with assistance from SPAR Aerospace Products Ltd. of Toronto. It has two huge Canadian-developed and built tubular antennas, to serve some of the experiments on board, which stretch 62 and 240 feet tip to tip.

LAUNCH DELAYED

The launch date was delayed several months when scientists discovered voltage problems in one experiment during environmental testing. As one spokesman described it, "The instrument for studying the aurora (northern lights) was producing its own interanl aurora."

ISIS-C, the fifth and last satellite in the ionospher-studying series, is to be launched next year.

After that, Canada will switch to commercial communications satellites (Anik, to be launched in 1973), experimental communications satellites (the Communications Technology Satellite, 1974), and resource satellites (Canada will participate in the U.S. ERTS resource satellite program, starting next year).

Professor To Receive Medal

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. John Lewis Robinson, a geography professor at the University of British Columbia, has been awarded the Royal Canadian Geographical Society's Massey Medal for his work as a researcher, teacher and writer in the field of Canadian geography.

Dr. Robinson, a native of Leamington, Ont., was to receive the medal from Governor-General Roland Michener in a ceremony later today at Government House.

The award is presented annually to Canadians for outstanding personal achievement in the exploration, development or description of Canadian geography.

Dr. Robinson, who joined the staff of UBC in 1946, became head of the geography department when it was created in 1959. He gave up the position in 1969 to devote full time to teaching and research.

BOSOM INSURED

LONDON (UPI) — Actress Maggie Wright, 26, has insured her bosom for $45,000.

Movie producers agreed to foot the insurance bill because she gets stabbed in the bosom in a witchcraft scene in her forthcoming film. The knife is supposed to only pierce a balloon of artificial blood.

"But suppose things go wrong," Miss Wright said. "I don't want to be stabbed or even bruised — so I asked to be insured

SHOOK VICTORIA TO ITS FOUNDATIONS

She Thrived on High Adventure

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A small announcement in Vancouver papers earlier this month was missed in this capital city, no doubt because it appeared in those days when the Trudeau wedding had practically pushed everything else out of the news.

Forbes

That notice read in part: "Passed away on March 4, 1971, Jane Charlotte Anne Banks, widow of the late Hon. Charles A. Banks."

In this low key way the life story of perhaps the most nonconforming chatelaine ever to live in Bititish Columbia's Government House, came to an end.

SHOOK SOCIALITES

Controversial and outspoken, determined, abrupt, and a strong believer in the dignity of her husband's position as representative of the crown, "Buntie" Banks, as she was known here, sometimes shook social and official Victoria to its very foundations.

As the time at a luncheon when she verbally spanked wives of members of the legislature for failing to reply promptly to invitations for the luncheon and some of them for arriving late at Government House for that same affair.

DISCOURTESY

Late arrival at a formal Government House function was regarded (protocolwise) as a marked discourtesy to the vice-regal office, she explained, and failure to reply promptly to a Government House invitation caused great inconvenience to the staff.

Of course, she was right, but that didn't stop the story from being noised around. It was headlined in the news and even debated briefly on the floor of the House.

In quite different vein was Buntie Banks' reaction to a wilderness of bushes and vines and a weathered totem pole in the grounds directly opposite the main entrance to Government House.

CLEAN UP MESS

"Take it away . . . clean up that mess," was her instant decree. It was done on the double and today "Mrs. Banks' Garden" as it is now officially named, is a delightful arrangements of lawns, flowers, shrubs and winding paths.

Despite this independence of thought and refusal to conform to the accepted mould of a lieutenant-governor's wife, Buntie Banks was loyal to her friends and generous to a fault, if she believed anyone needed her help.

BORN IN FRANCE

She was born in France, spent her early girlhood in England but lived in so many different countries in her lifetime, she easily could claim world citzenship.

I remember interviewing her in 1946 when she first came to Government House. At that time she told me her father was French and her mother a Scot, and I've never forgotten her added comment "some people say that's a good whisky and soda combination."

HIGH ADVENTURE

High adventure was meat and drink to her. In the First World War she served in the women's auxiliary forces when her husband was a captain in the Royal Engineers.

During the Second World War she did voluntary work in London for more than five years while Charles Banks served as Canada's representative in England for the ministry of munitions and supplies. In the years between she accompanied her husband wherever his wide mining interests called him and that meant all around the world.

Travelling from place to place and from country to country, her homes were many and varied.

In New Guinea, it was a tent in the centre of bushland and a one-storey wooden house in a native village on the edge of the Bulolo River.

"You can't take your wife there," Mr. Banks was told. His answer was "you don't know my wife."

In San Francisco they lived in a penthouse atop Fairmont Hotel on famed Nob Hill and in London, during the blitz and the buzz bombs in a small suite at Claridge's in the heart of the city.

When they left Government House in 1950 the Banks again travelled to various places in the world but always coming back to Vancouver, where eventually Charles Banks died.

In her last years his widow lived alone in a big house on the British Properties, with only a faithful Chinese cook as a servant.

I visited her there several years ago. We had lunch together. We reminisced about Government House days and she told me something of her life story.

A semi-invalid then and plagued with arthritis, Buntie Banks said as I was leaving "I've nothing to live for now that Charles is gone . . . but here I am."

Lonely she certainly was in those last years but her memories were rich and precious. I'm sure she lived with them right up to the moment her story came to an end on March 4 of this year.

CHUG-A-LUG MILK CHAMP RECOGNIZED

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — A quiet guardsman who claims the world record for chug-a-lugging a quart of milk defeated an army challenger by one-tenth of a second.

Seaman George Busby, 18, of St. Louis, Mo., crewman on the Cape Wash, quaffed a quart in 6.3 seconds. That toppled the 12.3 second mark credited by the Guinness Book of Records to Peter New of Harrowgate, Yorkshire, England.

BREZHNEV BOOSTING POWER

By STEPHENS BROENING

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin's collective leadership is slowly becoming less collective as Leonid Brezhnev rises to a position of pre-eminence.

This is the conclusion of diplomats from both the Communist East and the capitalist West on the eve of the 24th congress of the Soviet Communist party.

As general secretary of the party, Brezhnev is well placed to augment his power and stature. There are persistent signs he is trying to do just that.

Tapped by Joseph Stalin to sit as a candidate member of the enlarged central committee presidium in 1952, Brezhnev was considered part of what was known as "the Stalinist reserve."

He was dropped from the presidium after the dictator's death, but with the help of Nikita Khrushchev, party first secretary, Brezhnev was returned to the presidium as a non-voting member of the "de-Stalinization" congress of 1956. He was raised to full membership the following year.

In 1964 he helped engineer the ouster of his former patron, Khrushchev, and emerged from the upheaval as first secretary, but pledged to the party notion of collective leadership.

At the 23rd congress five years ago, he adopted the Stalinist title of party "general secretary" and had the presidium renamed the politburo, as in Stalin's day.

For most of the last five years, however, he has conformed with official practice, sharing duties and appearances with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

With the approach of the congress, the party's ruling body, Brezhnev has made several attemps to distinguish himself from his colleagues.

DEMONSTRATORS CLASH outside the University of Toronto convocation hall after a group disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michael Chartrand, accused of being in FLQ.

'Death to FLQ', Say Protesters

TORONTO (CP) — Five persons were arrested Sunday after demonstrators disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand.

Two men were injured and a University of Toronto caretaker was temporarily blinded by an irritant sprayed from an aerosol can by a protester as University of Toronto police and members of the audience ejected 20 persons from Convocation Hall.

★ ★ ★

Chartrand, president of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and Montreal lawyer Robert Lemieux were making the final appearance of a cross-Canada tour sponsored by the Toronto-based Emergency Committee for the Defence of Political Rights in Quebec.

Both are free on bail, awaiting trial on charges of being members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Chartrand was approaching the podium when a youth yelled "Death to the FLQ" and about 12 others, who later said they were members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society, took up the chant.

University police and crowd marshals ejected the protesters. In the ensuing melee a smoke bomb was hurled into the audience of about 700 students, windows were smashed and the heavy wooden door of Convocation Hall was split.

The demonstration had ended by the time five cruisers of Toronto police arrived but a police spokesman said several empty cans of a United States-made irritant spray on the order of tear-gas were found. Police also found two full cans and two smoke bombs.

Pakistani Army In Control

NEW DELHI (CP) — East Pakistani rebels were reported holding out at various points today, but the West Pakistani army appeared to be in control of Dacca, the eastern capital.

The rebel radio said that fighting was continuing in Dacca, in the port city of Chittagong and in the towns of Rangpur and Khulna. But the government's Radio Pakistan said the situation in the East was returning to normal, with all government employees returning to work today, banks reopening and the curfew in Dacca lifted from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The rebel and government radios were the only remaining sources of news from the Bengali half of Pakistan since all foreign correspondents were expelled from Dacca during the weekend. But Associated Press correspondent Arnold Zeitlin reported on his arrival in Ceylon Sunday from Dacca that the government troops were in full control of the eastern capital.

Zeitlin said between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were believed killed in fighting Friday and Saturday. Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the Bengali political leader who had been campaigning to end West Pakistan's control of the East, was reported by Radio Pakistan to be in army custody. But other reports, believed to have come from the sheik's supporters, said he was directing the "liberation struggle" from the eastern city of Chittagong.

THOUSANDS FLED

Thousands fled Dacca, Zeitlin said.

Official Indian sources said today that the New Delhi government has received reports that Sheik Mujib is free.

Meanwhile a clandestine radio said today the government radio station in Dacca was captured by the secessionist "liberation army" after fierce fighting, reported the Press Trust of India.

OUTSIDE WORKERS VOTE FOR STRIKE

About 240 Victoria municipal employees voted in favor of a strike Sunday to back up their contract proposals to the city.

The employees are outside workers with parks, traffic and street departments, members of local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Eighty-seven per cent of ballots cast were in favor of striking. Following a stalemate in negotiations, the city's negotiators applied to the B.C. Mediation Commission for a mediation officer.

No strike can be taken until the officer's report is presented, or until he reports no mediated settlement is possible.

Struck Goods Clause Vetoed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Mediation Commission today rejected Teamsters' Union demands for inclusion of a controversial "struck goods" clause in a master agreement covering the general trucking industry in the province.

The dispute between the union and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association, representing the majority of trucking firms in B.C., was sent to the commission for a binding decision after the provincial government stepped in last month to end a week-long strike-lockout in the industry.

The dispute centred around the struck goods clause, which the union demanded in order that its members would not have to handle goods moved across a legal picket line.

In an 11-page judgment signed by commission chairman John Parker, the commission said the trade-unions act of B.C. "recognizes legal strikes and lockouts but limits picketing to the employer's place of business, operations or employment." It added:

"The law says in effect, that no trade union or other person shall endeavour to persuade anyone not to handle struck goods. It would be high-handed indeed for us to withdraw this protection which the legislature has granted employers and if we did so, we would clearly be violating the spirit of the law if not the law itself."

The enforced agreement is retroactive to last Jan. 1 and runs through to the end of the year.

The agreement includes a new schedule of wages agreed to by the 3,500-member union and the association last January. Wages under the new contract range from $4.20 an hour for swampers and warehousemen to $4.35 for drivers of heavy trucks, retroactive to Jan. 1.

FIRST Communist chief of state to pay an official visit to Pope Paul, is President Tito of Yugoslavia who conferred for more than an hour with the pontiff today. The pope hailed relations between the Vatican and Yugoslavia and an example of how the church and Communist countries can live peacefully together.

Free Vote On Ad Ban?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herb Capozzi, Social Credit MLA for Vancouver Centre, said today he expects to see opposition in the British Columbia legislature to a government proposal to ban liquor advertising.

Capozzi, whose family owns Calona Wines Ltd., said some feel it would be wrong to prevent manufacturers from promoting preference of their product over another.

"I expect some opposition in the House," he said, pointing out that Premier Bennett has declared the proposal — as well as a bill to ban advertising of tobacco products — a free-vote matter, clear of party lines.

Capozzi said he expected the tobacco advertising bill to win relatively easy passage in the House.

Book-Off Drive Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP)— Virtually all traffic on CNR and CP Rail lines in British Columbia was at a standstill today as a book-off by enginemen spread.

Spokesmen for both railways said freight and passenger service now is "completely paralyzed."

The book-off by enginemen, which started in the Vancouver area Wednesday, spread to Prince George in the north Sunday, disrupting operation of the CNR line between Jasper, Alta., and and Prince Rupert.

A CNR spokesman said only "three or four" engine crews still had not booked off on the northern line, but they were located at the ends of the line and could not maintain traffic.

CP Rail said its Dayliner service between Victoria and Courtenay on Vancouver Island was the only part of it system still running.

The book-off—to protest delayed negotiations between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the railways—and resulting layoffs have left about 4,000 railway employees out of work.

Thousands of other workers in industries dependent on the railroads could be laid off this week as the effects of the rail stoppage spreads.

OTHERS AFFECTED

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority said 80 employees on its lower mainland rail operation were laid off, effective Sunday midnight, because there was no work on lines connecting with CNR and CP Rail.

A Hydro spokesman said a skeleton crew of about 25 men will be kept on to shuttle freight from the U.S. border.

More than 3,300 CP Rail employees have been laid off in the Pacific region, and the jobs of another 1,500 employees are threatened if the book-off continues.

CN Rail has laid off between 500 and 600 men between Kamloops and Vancouver.

About 790 workers on both railways are involved in the book-offs in B.C.

Bob Gallagher, manager of the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association said a "good percentage" of the 6,000 men working in mills around Prince George will be out of work this week.

Railway spokesmen said the companies have agreed to meet with negotiators for the engineers' union in Montreal Tuesday, "prepared to negotiate to conclusion."

The dispute involves wages, vacations, statutory holidays, medical insurance, job differentials and a wide range of working rules.

The union is unhappy with the majority decision of a federal conciliation board which rejected the engineers' bid for a 13.4 per cent wage increase. The previous contract expired 11 months ago.

CARGOES ON SIDINGS

CP Rail has 4,000 cars of grain strung out from Vancouver to Calgary with 700 carloads on sidings in the Vancouver area. A CN spokesman said his company has some 3,500 cars of wheat between the coast and the Prairies.

Viet Cong Hit-Run Raid Leaves 33 GIs Dead

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese sappers ran through a United States artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest U.S. death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in U.S. control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. command said.

There was a general stepup in Communist action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon.

PINNED DOWN

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang Air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Viet Cong gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. Americal Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down fewer than 400 Americans defending the base. Dynamite bombs wrecked some artillery guns and cut some communication lines to rear headquarters.

ARTILLERY FIRE

A South Vietnamese fire base a few hundred yards away was not attacked. It provided artillery fire for the American base during the attack.

The two bases are midway between the Laotian border and the populous coastal lowlands and are the westernmost anchor of southern combined forces defences in the region. Their mission is to harass North Vietnamese supply lines and infiltration corridors running to the coast.

Available records for the last four years show that the heaviest previous American toll in such an attack was 32 killed and 31 wounded when sappers hit Fire Base Henderson 17 miles south of the demilitarized zone May 6, 1970. However, 19 South Vietnamese were killed and 40 were wounded in that attack.

New Undersea Cable To Europe Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A new trans-Atlantic cable will be placed by 1974, capable of adding more than 1,840 telephone circuits between Canada and Europe, Communications Minister Eric Kierans announced in the Commons Monday.

Mr. Kierans said months of negotiation have resulted in agreement between Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp., a Crown-owned agency, and the British Post office. Canadian investment would be $37 million.

The cable would run from a point in Nova Scotia to a point in Cornwall, England.

The high-capacity cable would have 400 circuits more than all existing trans-Atlantic cables, he said.

CONCORDE DELAYED FOR NINE MONTHS

LONDON (AP) — The British-French supersonic airliner Concorde is not expected to be ready to enter service until at least the fall of 1974, it was disclosed today.

There was no official explanation of the nine-month delay. Most recent estimates by the British government and the British Aircraft Corp. — which is building the plane with Aerospatial of France — were that Concorde would be in service by late 1973 or early 1974.

HUGE SLICK OFF COAST

33 Lost as Oil Tanker Snaps in Two

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Thirty-three of 44 crew members were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a liferaft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the United States Coast Guard resumed a search for possible survivors.

A huge oil slick is 50 miles off coast and moving to the northwest.

Most of the missing crew were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The U.S. Coast Guard said it was a mystery why nearly two thirds of the crew apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661-foot vessel broke in two in 15-foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the coast guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

LEFT STERN

Both messages, the coast guard said, reported 20 crew members missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084-ton tanker early Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, Tex., said however that records showed 42 crew members aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft Sunday afternoon.

The coast guard had difficulty learning details of what happened, but a spokesman said one message from the Sasstown quoted the survivors as saying the stern section they abandoned sank half an hour afterward.

They were reported to have said the other crew members were scattered throughout the rest of the ship, which they saw for the last time at midnight, 18½ hours after they launched the raft. They did not see the rest of the ship sink, nor did they see any other rafts, the coast guard said.

FIND OIL SLICK

By the time the coast guard got a plane into the air late Sunday, all it found was a huge oil slick. The pilot, Lt.-Cmdr. Patrick H. Cannon, said the Sasstown by then was 145 miles east of Elizabeth City, N.C., in seas running eight to 10 feet.

The Texaco Oklahoma was en route from Port Arthur to Boston with a cargo 220,000 barrels of sulphur fuel oil, the coast guard said.

Hockey Tactic Rescues Gorge

Gorge Molson ripped a page from the book of hockey tactics Sunday and remained in a first-place deadlock with Victoria West in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division.

Trailing by one goal in the dying stages of their match with Oak Bay at Blanshard Field, Molsons pulled goalie Graham Lee out of the nets and sent the netminder running with the attacking unit.

The tactic paid off as Lee shared in a passing play that resulted in a goal by Peter Brett, enabling the Gorge crew to walk off with a 3-3 draw.

Wests also went with the puck ploy as they made a gambling bid to turn a deadlock into a triumph during a clash with Cosmopolitan Royals at Heywood Avenue.

It was considerably more daring as Vic West coach Dave Unwin risked a defeat in an attempt to snatch a victory in the closing minutes by sending his goalie out with the attackers.

Unwin's effort neither backfired nor produced a dividend and the two clubs wound up in a 1-1 stalemate.

ROADRUNNERS NIPPED

In other Sunday encounters, Duncan Village Green nipped Roadrunners 3-2 at Central Park and cellar-dwelling Hourigans upset third-place University of Victoria Vikings 1-0 at Topaz Park.

London Boxing Club maintained its eight-point lead over Victoria West in the second division by trampling Labatts 11-1 Sunday at Reynolds Road Park.

BEST SELLERS

Nothing's Too Low For a Jackie Fan

By Jack Scott

The woman who phoned had identified herself as the manager of one of our town's better-known news-magazine shops. She was obviously a person of refinement and discernment. Equally obviously, she was hopping mad.

"You wrote that entire article about the pornography that's available in our book stores," said she, oozing indignation. "Why not give a careful look now at some truly disgraceful literature — the Jackie Onassis magazine racket? That is, if you can stomach it."

A reader's wish is my command. So off I headed, hippity-hop to the lady's busy, cluttered shop, there to confront enormous racks laden with the garbage that — and how I hate to report this! — Victoria's women have made the best-selling periodicals in these parts.

I selected an even dozen of the more than 30 such magazines on display, 11 of them at 50 cents a copy, one at 40 cents, and retired to my chambers. As the lady had anticipated the problem was to resist physical illness.

Scott

The names of these magazines are practically indistinguishable — Photo TV Land, TV Inside Movie, TV Radio Mirror, Screen Mirror, Movie TV Secrets, Star-Time, TV Screen Secrets, Screen and TV Album and so on.

Their second common factor is that they retail every last shred of manufactured gossip and make-believe scandal, month after dreary month, that's related to Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, widow of President John F. Kennedy, wife of Aristotle Onassis.

The first of these magazines appeared immediately following Jackie's wedding to the Greek shipping magnate on the island of Skorpios on Oct. 20, 1968. They tapped a strange cult, largely made up, it seems, of middle-class women so hungry for a vicarious participation in the life of "Jackie O" that any shred of information from her shoe size (10A) to her favorite cocktails (Bloody Marys and daiquiries) has become the most marketable commodity in journalism — to use the word loosely.

★ ★ ★

Far from waning, the circulation has built steadily, here as well as in the rest of Canada and the United States. Many are now in their third year of publication and coining profits.

A glance at the covers of these magazines down the long racks of any news shop, in supermarkets, in department stores and drug stores, gives an indication of what this mysterious reading public of women is looking for:

Item: "The strange relationship that shocks the jet set! How Jackie and Her Sister Share Everything! Lee's Dates with Ari! Her Husband's Meetings with Jackie: Those Wild, Wild Parties!"

Item: "Jackie Boasts About Ari's Sex Powers: 'No Normal Woman Can Resist Him'."

Item: "Jackie Shocked as Ari Shouts 'Blackmail' at Intimate Friend Because of Callas!"

Item: "Caroline's Forbidden Love: Jackie Cries: 'He's Not Good Enough for You!' "

Item: "Caroline Kennedy's 'Sneak Dates' with an Older Man! How Jackie Is Pushing Her Daughter into a Teen Marriage!"

Item: "Jackie Drives Homosexual Away from Her Son!"

Item: "Jackie's Fear — Why Caroline Can't Have Babies!"

Item: "Everything You Want to Know About Jackie — But Are Afraid to Ask!"

The verity gap between these sensational teasers and the grey content of the articles on the inside is just as enormous as anyone with a child's IQ would guess. It is, month after month, a game of Russian Roulette with the laws of libel and slander. The most mentally retarded of readers, having perused any one of these magazines, would recognize that the goods are not as advertised. Yet, it seems, the same sad women buy them over and over, indiscriminately except for their response to the juiciness of the bait on the cover.

What is this "strange relationship" in which Jackie and her sister, Lee Radziwell, share "everything"? Don't hold your breath. Just that the Radziwells and the Onassises "are" seen together just about everywhere including the evenings that end up in post-midnight swims!" So much for those "wild, wild parties" that shock the jet set.

Did Jackie really boast about Ari's sex powers? Well, not quite. The writer digs up her alleged remark: "He is only five foot one inch tall, but when he is talking to me, he seems to grow gradually taller. After five minutes I have the feeling that the only thing that matters is to be part of his life."

Was Jackie shocked as Ari shouted blackmail? Who knows? The story, itself, is simply a fast re-write of the court proceedings involving Panaghis Vergottis, Maria Callas and Onassis, all of it in your daily newspaper of three years ago.

What was Caroline's "forbidden love"? Some highly circumstantial evidence from "a friend of the Onassis family" that a Greek gardener and his 14-year-old son on Skorpios were transferred to another of the Onassis' estates because the boy was seen holding hands with Caroline. Caroline is 13 years of age. Heigh ho!

Well, then, how about Caroline's secret dates with an older man and is Jackie pushing her into a teen marriage? The older man is identified as "15-year-old Denny, a very attentive little playmate," and another unidentified boy "who looks even older." How is Jackie pushing her? "Jackie probably hasn't ever said that she wants Caroline to marry young, or marry an older man, but just the same, the situation they are all in has forced Jackie to push Caroline toward just that."

★ ★ ★

How did Jackie drive a homosexual away from her son? That story goes back to the White House when a Secret Service man reported that a staff member was homosexual. "Jackie promptly had the individual dismissed, explaining: 'I can't take the chance of having someone like this around the children!' " End of story.

Yes, but what's this about Jackie's fear that Caroline can't have children? The salient paragraph: "Apparently it was about this time (Bobby Kennedy's assassination) that Caroline told her mother that she would never have children because she was afraid they would be killed."

Finally, we have the real inside story — everything you wanted to know, but were afraid to ask. And there the reader will find that (a) Jackie has enough shoes to be able to wear a different pair every day of the year; (b) the Onassises own 12 automobiles, including three Rolls-Royces, complete with telephones; (c) they employ 202 full-time domestic servants.

So, at a cost of $5.90, I ended my little trip into a never-never land of total unreality and when the news-magazine shop manager and I traded impressions we couldn't quite agree.

Her response was anger — anger that hypocritical publishers, editors and writers should so exploit the public, anger that Jackie Onassis' privacy should be so invaded, anger that, in the era of the women's liberation movement, so many women are obviously ill-prepared for it.

My response was sadness — sadness that some fellow-writers and editors could be so cynical, sadness at the evidence that so many women appear to have deprived, empty lives, sadness that things don't seem to have changed much since H. L. Mencken observed that no one ever went broke under-estimating the intelligence of the public.

IT'S WET— BUT COULD BE WORSE

It's been a long wet winter, sending rainfall records toppling, but Greater Victoria remains the most favored spot in the area.

Readings taken this morning show 2.45 inches of rain fel at Gonzales during March and 9.84 inches between Jan. 1 and now. These compare to the average figures of 1.97 and 9.58 inches for the two periods.

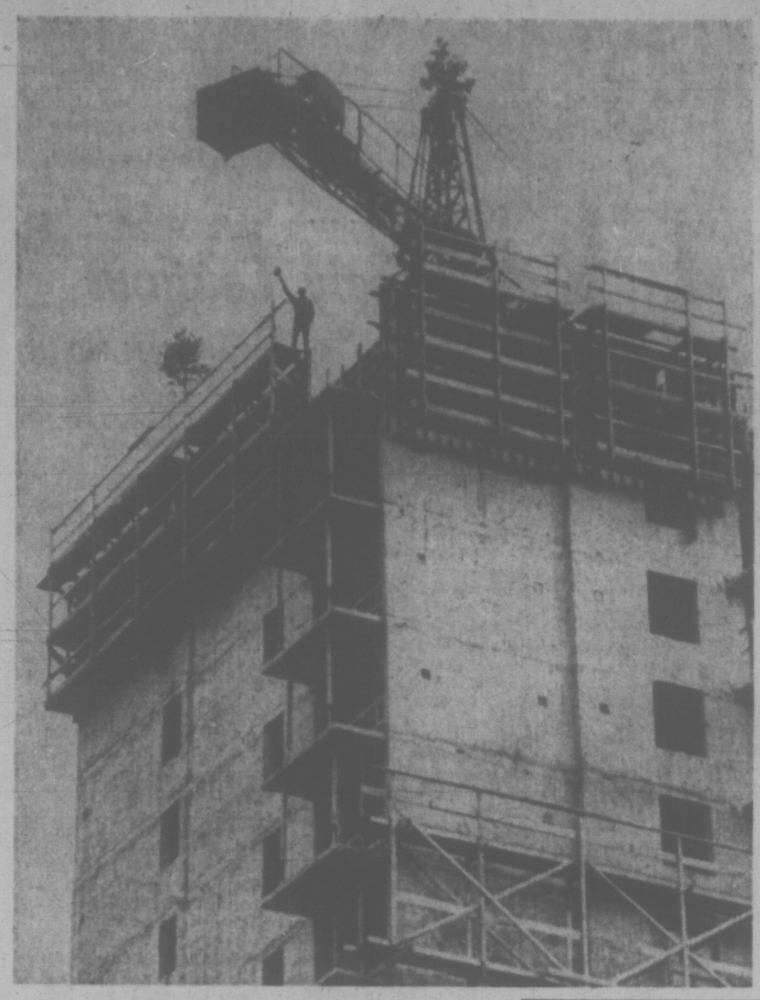
But, says chief weather official Allan McQuarrie, these increases are very slight compared with those in Vancouver and other parts of Vancouver Island.

Vancouver was drenched with six inches this month and readings at the Victoria International airport show a total of 4.64 inches for March and 14.87 inches since the beginning of the year.

He warns that there is little hope for the end of the gale-rain combination that has hit Victoria during the last few days, bringing storm systems over the area twice a day.

Southeasterlies blowing between 25 and 30 miles an hour are expected to switch to 25 m.p.h. westerlies this evening.

This means rain can be expected today and Tuesday, leading to more spring-like sunny skies Wednesday.



DANISH CELEBRATION of "rejsegilde" which takes place when a new building reaches its maximum height, was held at the corner of View and Quadra this morning atop the 18-storey highrise of Westsea Construction Ltd., of Vancouver. Foreman carpenter Rick Ferrill raises his cap to the Victoria skyline, flanked by the customary evergreens which are hoisted to the top during the Danish ceremony. The building will provide low-cost apartments and is designed for commercial outlets on the main floor and underground parking. (Photo by Bill Halkett).

Breakwater: Yacht Club Swings Back

Royal Victoria Yacht Club lashed back today at new criticism of its proposal to build a breakwater to protect winter mooring in Cadboro Bay.

The club's proposal for a 600-foot rubble breakwater six feet high was attacked Sunday night at a meeting of the newly-formed Oak Bay Beach Protection Association.

The group, led by Norman Dixon, voted to ask Oak Bay council to delay aproval of the club's application until a hydraulic study of the breakwater's effects can be carried out.

Independent Survey Sought

The resolution called for the study to be carried out by "an independent, competent hydraulic laboratory ... so all possible measurements of the ecological effects can be ascertained."

The resolution was passed unanimously by the 47 persons at the meeting. This number included 12 yacht club members.

Engineer John Graeme, chairman of the yacht club's breakwater committee, said club members wholeheartedly supported the new group's concern for the ecology of Cadboro Bay.

"I've been in the anti-pollution business myself for 20 years," Graeme said today. "If I thought this breakwater was going to constitute an ecological disaster or near-disaster I wouldn't have anything to do with it."

He noted that the yacht club was an "insignificant" polluter compared with the raw sewage from 166 homes on Humble Point already being dumped into the bay.

Graeme also discounted fears of beach erosion which he said would require a tide rate of one-half knot "which simply is not there."

Another club spokesman expressed surprise today at criticism of the breakwater levelled by the B.C. Towboat Owners' Association and the Greater Victoria Mill Operators' Association.

"This criticism is not new, but we are surprised that they (the towboat operators) of all people should be upset, considering the constant damage being done in the bay by logs torn from booms during storms," he said.

'Strictly Commercial Operation'

The tugboaters expressed fears the breakwater would force the movement farther to sea of a set of dolphins now used by boats to tie up at during unexpected storms.

"This is strictly a commercial operation, and one which has caused boats to sink from collisions with logs and considerable municipal expense in cleaning up beaches."

One towboat operator said the dolphins offer the only protection between Victoria and Saanichton for boats towing booms in rough water.

This skipper said swells would come in, hit the breakwater and roll back, damaging the inside of booms already being buffeted by rough water on the outside.

Not so, said Graeme. The waves would hit the breakwater at a maximum angle of 15 degrees, and would break along or over the 16-foot top surface of structure instead of rebounding.

The club's plans, based on preliminary hydraulic studies already carried out, would extend 600 feet and would stand 12 feet out of the water at low tide and be about level with the surface at high tide, for an average height of six feet. Cost is estimated at $160,000.

The proposal has been forwarded to the federal department of transport, who will ask Oak Bay council for their recommendation.

Council will consider the matter at a meeting April 19.

Student Head Survives Non-Confidence Motion

Alma Mater Society president Ian J. McKinnon survived a non-confidence motion Sunday night at the University of Victoria during a meeting of the representative assembly.

Another motion passed by the assembly called for a general meeting of students to discuss the McKinnon issue and possibly to call for a referendum on whether he should resign.

During three-and-a-half hours of debate before a gallery of 150 students that packed the upper lounge of the Student Union Building, McKinnon defended himself against a wide range of criticism.

ACCUSATIONS

He was accused of conflict of interest, failing to represent the students, vacillation on crucial issues, "plotting" with the university administration and making misleading and untrue statements to the press.

"In answer to all the charges — not guilty," McKinnon said.

"I stand on my record.

"I do not believe that the charges against me warrant my resignation."

McKinnon survived the non-confidence motion of Brian Green and Alastair Murdoch by nine votes, 23-14 in a roll-call vote.

BOOS, JEERS

The motion failed to a loud chorus of boos, jeers and cries of "Resign! Resign!" and "Impeach the RA!" from the gallery.

Green led the attack on McKinnon with charges the president had consistently been inconsistent in his position.

"McKinnon's policies have been like a grandfather clock's pendulum — swinging from one side to the other," Green said in speaking to his motion.

Greg Fraser spoke in defence of McKinnon, claiming he was moderate in his views on the president's activities.

Pat Dunae argued McKinnon should be allowed an individual vote on issues as a member of the AMS.

"We talk about a purge," he said. "We're experiencing a purge."

Steering committee member Paul Watson said he had been waiting to deliver a message to the administration one morning when McKinnon and three other members of the RA who voted against the motion for an extra year for professors walked out of a meeting with Uvic president Bruce Partridge, Chancellor Roderick Haig-Brown and chairman of the board of governors Willard Ireland.

He accused McKinnon, former AMS president Robert McDougall, Dennis Steinie, and faculty representative Dr. R. L. Wright of psychology of "plotting against the RA" with the administration.

Wright responded that McKinnon had made mistakes but with good intent.

"I have seen him with my own eyes commit several whoppers in a row. But his heart was in the right place," he said.

Inside Workers Vote Tonight

Inside city hall employees are expected tonight to vote in favor of a work contract giving them a 15-per-cent wage hike over two years.

Victoria council accepted the wage settlement Thursday, following a mediation report that recommended a 7½ per cent wage increase in 1971 and again in 1972.

Frank Preston, president of local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today his executive has recommended to the membership to accept the settlement.

The settlement affects about 180 employees. Police, firemen, outside workers and other smaller unions have still to come to contract settlements with the city.

The increase was in line with a similar contract signed earlier this month between Saanich and that municipality's employees.

RCMP Band On Tour

The RCMP Band will perform in Victoria May 19.

The RCMP's most extensive tour ever planned will be featured in British Columbia's centennial celebrations. The tour begins at Dawson Creek May 12.

A Musical Ride will also be on tour, but the Victoria performance date is not yet known.

Dorsey Belts Out Love

By SALLY GLOVER

WILLA . . . prays for the rent money

"Dorsey, Dorsey, don't you know you're a movie star?", shouted the excited neighborhood children.

Willa Dorsey did not.

She knew she'd been on the Lawrence Welk show, but didn't realize quite what that had done for her.

Her singing had made her famous — not wealthy, she says.

She was "blessed with a voice, has God behind her" and travels the world "expressing joy and happiness of the new way of life," through song, not money.

She does it all without an agent.

"The days of treating an artist like a human being are gone. All agents want you to do is make money — fast! And I don't feel like being a juke-box music computer."

"Some Hollywood people think I'm nutty," she said, but so many of them are unhappy."

●

"It keeps me praying!"

"I'm an expert at praying for rent," she said, laughing. "But sometimes it gives me heart failure waiting."

People take collections for her, churches usually pay her air fare and national television appearances and her recordings bring in enough to keep her belting out the songs.

"I usually come home from an engagement with about $15" she chuckled.

"That's what turns the kids on," she said.

" 'You could be making all that money and you come to sing for us little snot noses?", one little fan said to Willa.

"I've had so many chances to sing popular songs for great sums of money, but singing the word of God, especially to young people, means more to me than riches," Willa explained.

More popular singers have been hassled by young people and "can't understand how I enjoy them," she said. "I sing the same songs at the schools as I do at church and they sit there like little angels."

Even in the middle of Saturday's University of Victoria dispute, Willa Dorsey belted out songs such as Oh When the Saints Came Marching In, and using her piano as background, talked of problems "we shall overcome."

●

The listeners were few, but deeply intent and for a change, everyone left smiling.

Willa says she can't blame the young people for rebelling. "There's so much phoniness in old people today. Young people have an anxious mind and they want to be on the go."

"But you blow your mind when you're too free. We should chastise our kids. I'm so rough and they love me for it."

When she's not praying for rent, she's praying for her "young people."

"They like telling me their problems. They ask me to pray for them," she says. "I've had some beautiful testimonies — some trying to get off dope, others worried about exams; they call me in the middle of the night sometimes. That at least keeps me in contact."

After her week in Victoria Miss Dorsey left today after an exhaustive weekend.

Tuesday she must be in Hollywood to start working on the Lawrence Welk Easter special.

Old Town Supporters Start Brief

Researching the possibilities of rejuvenating "the best collection of late 19th-century buildings on the Pacific coast" could provide Victoria university students with summer jobs.

Victorians concerned with saving the area known as Old Town, which includes the Reid waterfront project, formed a steering committee Saturday.

CHAMBER ACTS

Their actions were hastened by a resolution by Chamber of Commerce directors Saturday to act on Reid's $25 million hotel and apartment complex before the price was driven beyond attainment or the source of capital driven away.

Chamber president Philip Holmes said the proposed project at the foot of Fort Street had not been put to the council formally.

Continuing to "generate the image of the area," the newly-formed Old Town steering committee feels "the implementation of any major development proposals without careful consideration of their effect on Old Town itself, or on Victoria in general, could be disastrous."

WORK ON SLOGANS

Architectural students from University of British Columbia began the initial study of the area. Now Victoria High students have formed a school group and are working on slogans and means of informing the public of the potentials of Old Town.

The UBC study group, still compiling technical data, will work in conjunction with the steering committee.

Acting chairman for the committee is Rodney Bevan. Other members include Jim Stark, Sam Bowlf, Mrs. A. E. Tate, Mrs. H. C. L. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Al Titerle, Jim Titerle, Blayney Scott and Chris Gowar.

Before the Judge

A 21-year-old serviceman was fined $400 today in court by Judge William Ostler when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Douglas W. Greenfield, of HMCS St. Croix, also had his licence suspended.

Court was told that Greenfield was observed driving on the shoulder of the roadway March 27 about 4 p.m. trying to pass other cars.

A police cruiser gave chase and the accused increased speed to about 55 miles an hour before being stopped on Grange Road.

He had a breathalyzer reading of .14 per cent blood-alcohol content at the time.

ANTI-WAR ACTRESS Donna Reed, who won an Academy Award in 1954 for her role in From Here to Eternity, is one of the driving forces in a Hollywood-based peace drive. Another Mother for Peace. "I love my country, but I feel it got off the track," Miss Reed says. (AP Wirephoto)

Cause of Peace 'Everything'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "I love my country, but I feel it got off the track," says Donna Reed. "This is my way of helping it find its way back."

The Academy Award-winning actress and former star for eight years of her own television series, says that, outside of her home life, serving the cause of peace now is "everything" to her. The rewards? "The greatest of my life."

Looking a dozen years younger than 50, which she turned in January, Miss Reed is co-chairman of a Beverly Hills-based organization called Another Mother for Peace.

Started in 1967 by a woman screenwriter friend of hers, it claims a worldwide member ship of 225,000, mostly in the United States. It says it is growing by 20,000 a month. Bylaws say the organization is nonpartisan and "dedicated to the principle that war is obsolete." members write letters to congressmen and encourage others to do so, seeking an end to the Vietnam war.

HELPED CONGRESSMEN

A drive in 1968, when Miss Reed joined the Another Mother's group, raised $21,000 in campaign contributions for congressmen who had voted against war appropriations.

Miss Reed, wife of producer Tony Owen and mother of two draft-age sons, says: "We'd like to get into other things—ecology, hunger, pollution, transportation, education—but we can't unil this war is settled and over."

The 1954 Oscar winner in From Here to Eternity and star of TV's Donna Reed Show works by phone and correspondence at home and at the organization's headquarters.

Dues of $3 a year finance periodic newsletters. Members include actresses Joanne Woodward, Marlo Thomas, Debbie Reynolds, Betsy Palmer and Barbara Rush; honorary members are Paul Newman, Tommy Smothers, Dick Van Dyke and Carl Reiner.

Bennett Rapped

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Rene Levesque, the leader of the Parti Quebecois, says he is tired of people like Premier W. A. C. Bennett saying that British Columbia is supporting Quebec.

Levesque told about 200 delegates to a high school UNESCO conference Saturday that "Quebec is getting the impression of being the kept woman of confederation."

Levesque said that when the time comes for separatism, as he believs it will, once English Canada accepts the fact, "it can make us rather stimulating neighbors."

Sweep Story Raises A Storm

Victoria's winner in the Irish Sweepstake Saturday, Mrs. Olive Horan, is incensed over a published report that she considers the $48,600 she won "like a drop in the ocean."

Mrs. Horan, a widow with two grown sons, said today she would have been grateful to win even the bottom $1,000 sweep prize. She has been flooded with weekend calls chiding her for not appreciating the windfall.

"It was totally incorrect . . . terrible," she said of a story in the Victoria Daily Colonist which quoted her as saying the win was "nothing to get excited about — like a drop in the ocean."

Mrs. Horan has been away from her nursing job at Royal Jubilee Hospital for two weeks with the flu. She plans to get away for a few days to finish recuperating from that bout and to recover from "exhaustion."

"I've worked hard all my life," she said. "I raised two sons, and I've got brothers and sisters to help.

"Certainly the money I won means a lot to me. In fact, I can't really begin to think of how much it means."

20 Years Of Service To Labor

Twenty years of service to the labor movement was recognized Sunday when 50 friends sent off Teamster representative Robert Milliken at a Union Centre gathering.

Milliken, 59, retired as business agent for the General Truck Driver Union, a post he held continuously for the last 20 of his 25 years as a member, and during which he also served five other labor organizations.

SURVIVES ERA

Former B.C. Federation of Labor president E. T. Staley, international representative of the Carpenters' Union, recalled Milliken was one of the labor group who survived the Broughton Street era, when fledgling full-time staff had offices opposite the Weiler Building.

In the early 1950s offices moved to the 500-block Pandora after formation of the Victoria Building Co-operative Union, which Milliken served as a director.

He was a delegate to the old Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council, later Victoria Labor Council, and a representative on the Union Centre executive when it built the current headquarters on Quadra Street.

A member of Victoria Labor Council Credit Union, Milliken served on its credit committee, and finally was one-time president of Vancouver Island Building Trades Council.

BRIGHT WORD

"Bob always had a bright word for us all in this building, no matter how gloomy things were," Staley said.

Noting that Milliken and his wife Margaret planned to travel, Staley said, "It speaks well for the labor movement that people now can have an opportunity to travel and have lesiure time."

Remembering his election as head of the building trades council, Milliken told the gathering he was installed at one meeting and ousted at the next, which fell just after the expulsion of the Teamsters by the AFL-CIO.

Among the friends who wished the Millikens well were Teamster officers from Vancouver and George Wilkinson, a former TLC secretary who became a construction industry executive in Vancouver.

Impaired Driver

Danny Ray Markle of Duncan was sentenced to 30 days in jail when he appeared in Duncan Provincial Court this morning on a second charge of impaired driving.

His driver's licence was suspended for six months.

Markle pleaded guilty to the charge of being impaired when he was stopped in Duncan March 12.

A breathalyzer test showed Markle to have a blood-alcohol reading of .23.

GROOM WEARS STRIPES AT THIS WEDDING

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Wedding bells are scheduled for the Buchanan County jail here.

The prospective bridegroom is William Ledinski, a jail trusty awaiting trial on a burglary charge. His intended bride is Gilda Johnson, serving a sentence for possession of stolen credit cards.

The couple applied for a marriage licence Friday in the custody of a deputy and a jail matron.

Sheriff H. C. Sonny Myers said he pointed out to the couple that the jail had no bridal suite and they will return to individual cells after the ceremony.

The sheriff said that as for awedding cake, "That might be up to the groom, he is the jail cook."

HOW TO BUY A SMALL CAR

Canadians and Americans are used to buying big cars. Small cars are something else. Here are some words of advice from Nissan Motor Co. Ltd., a small car expert who's been building them for 38 years.

Small cars are in big.

Suddenly North Americans have become small car conscious. And for some solid reasons. Economy, ecology and efficiency, for example. Plus the aesthetics—the nice difference compact mobility can make in their lives. But most North Americans have experience in buying only big cars. How do you shop intelligently for a new small car? What kind of value can you expect? How much should you pay? What do you gain or lose? Basically, you want the same things in any size car — comfort, reliability and safety.

What should you sacrifice?

Room? Ride? Safety or Power? The truth is, you don't have to sacrifice anything for economy if you buy the right economy car. Let's look at room. Built right, small sedans have plenty of it right where you need it—in the passenger compartment and in the trunk. More, in fact, than many long-hooded, snub-backed big cars. No-fat functional design gives five passengers the kind of head, hip and leg room that Canadian-size people need. So you don't think in terms of sacrifice, but in terms of benefits. The kind that ease you through traffic. Baby your budget. Show you as a shrewd judge of car value.

What about safety?

A fresh, rounded look at the matter shows small cars can be just as safe as big cars. In some ways safer. Fatalistically — and perhaps unfortunately — most people think of car safety only in terms of accident protection. The survivable all-steel cocoon. The ultimate solution would be to drive a Patton tank. To this end, small cars go through the same crash-testing procedures that big cars do. And they have the same federal safety requirements as big cars. In addition you should look for sure handling, stable suspension and good visibility. Plenty of acceleration and fade-resistant braking too. Because an equally important aspect of safety—too often overlooked—is accident avoidance.

And parts and service?

You can get satisfactory parts and service. Small car manufacturers, domestic and import, realize the importance of after-sales accommodations. It's simply good business.

How big an engine?

Here's where a new perspective is really important. Big car buyers think in terms of hundreds of horsepower because most big cars must move about two tons of metal. But small cars weigh half as much. They need a lot less horsepower for the same kind of performance. How does modest size and power produce big performance? By a proper Power to Weight ratio: how many pounds each horsepower must haul.

Well that's not all there is to buying a small car. After you find one with all of the previously-mentioned attributes you can start comparing standard equipment vs. accessories and price vs. price. The answer will probably spell out Datsun—the champion favorite of the quality-minded economy car buyer.

DEMONSTRATORS CLASH outside the University of Toronto convocation hall after a group disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand, accused of being in FLQ.

'Death to FLQ', Say Protesters

TORONTO (CP) — Five persons were arrested Sunday after demonstrators disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand.

Two men were injured and a University of Toronto caretaker was temporarily blinded by an irritant sprayed from an aerosol can by a protester as University of Toronto police and members of the audience ejected 20 persons from Convocation Hall.

Chartrand, president of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and Montreal lawyer Robert Lemieux were making the final appearance of a cross-Canada tour sponsored by the Toronto-based Emergency Committee for the Defence of Political Rights in Quebec.

Both are free on bail, awaiting trial on charges of being members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Chartrand was approaching the podium when a youth yelled "Death to the FLQ" and about 12 others, who later said they were members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society, took up the chant.

University police and crowd marshals ejected the protesters. In the ensuing melee a smoke bomb was hurled into the audience of about 700 students, windows were smashed and the heavy wooden door of Convocation Hall was split.

The demonstration had ended by the time five cruisers of Toronto police arrived but a police spokesman said several empty cans of a United States-made irritant spray similar to tear-gas were found. Police also found two full cans and two smoke bombs.

Pakistani Army In Control

NEW DELHI (CP) — East Pakistani rebels were reported holding out at various points today, but the West Pakistani army appeared to be in control of Dacca, the eastern capital.

The rebel radio said that fighting was continuing in Dacca, in the port city of Chittagong and in the towns of Rangpur and Khulna. But the government's Radio Pakistan said the situation in the East was returning to normal, with all government employees returning to work today, banks reopening and the curfew in Dacca lifted from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The rebel and government radios were the only remaining sources of news from the Bengali half of Pakistan since all foreign correspondents were expelled from Dacca during the weekend. But Associated Press correspondent Arnold Zeitlin reported on his arrival in Ceylon Sunday from Dacca that the government troops were in full control of the eastern capital.

Zeitlin said between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were believed killed in fighting Friday and Saturday. Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the Bengali political leader who had been campaigning to end West Pakistan's control of the East, was reported by Radio Pakistan to be in army custody. But other reports, believed to have come from the sheik's supporters, said he was directing the "liberation struggle" from the eastern city of Chittagong.

THOUSANDS FLED

Thousands fled Dacca, Zeitlin said.

Meanwhile a clandestine radio said today the government radio station in Dacca was captured by the secessionist "liberation army" after fierce fighting, reported the Press Trust of India.

CALLEY GUILTY IN MY LAI MASSACRE

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — A military jury found Lt. William L. Calley Jr. guilty today of premeditated murder of 102 unarmed and unresisting Vietnamese women, children and old men in the massacre at My Lai.

The six army officers who sat in judgment in the landmark case in military jurisprudence now must retire again and decide whether to sentence the 27-year-old Miamian to death.

The verdict of guilty as charged made a sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor, or death, mandatory. A unanimous vote of the jury is necessary for a penalty of death.

Struck Goods Clause Vetoed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Mediation Commission today rejected Teamsters' Union demands for inclusion of a controversial "struck goods" clause in a master agreement covering the general trucking industry in the province.

The dispute between the union and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association, representing the majority of trucking firms in B.C., was sent to the commission for a binding decision after the provincial government stepped in last month to end a week-long strike-lockout in the industry.

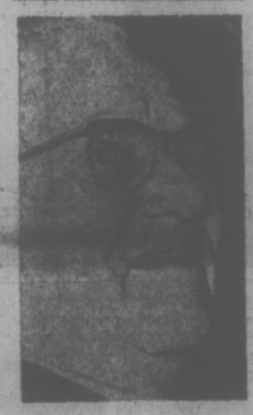
The dispute centred around the struck goods clause, which the union demanded in order that its members would not have to handle goods moved across a legal picket line.

In an 11-page judgment signed by commission chairman John Parker, the commission said the trade-unions act of B.C. "recognizes legal strikes and lockouts but limits picketing to the employer's place of business, operations or employment." It added:

PROTECTION

"The law says in effect, that no trade union or other person shall endeavour to persuade anyone not to handle struck goods. It would be high-handed indeed for us to withdraw this protection which the legislature has granted employers and if we did so, we would clearly be violating the spirit of the law if not the law itself."

The agreement includes a new schedule of wages agreed to by the 3,500-member union and the association last January. Wages under the new contract range from $4.20 an hour for swampers and warehousemen to $4.35 for drivers of heavy trucks, retroactive to Jan. 1.



FIRST Communist chief of state to pay an official visit to Pope Paul, is President Tito of Yugoslavia who conferred for more than an hour with the pontiff today. The pope hailed relations between the Vatican and Yugoslavia and an example of how the church and Communist countries can live peacefully together.

Free Vote On Ad Ban?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herb Capozzi, Social Credit MLA for Vancouver Centre, said today he expects to see opposition in the British Columbia legislature to a government proposal to ban liquor advertising.

Capozzi, whose family owns Calona Wines Ltd., said some feel it would be wrong to prevent manufacturers from promoting preference of their product over another.

"I expect some opposition in the House," he said, pointing out that Premier Bennett has declared the proposal — as well as a bill to ban advertising of tobacco products — a free-vote matter, clear of party lines.

Capozzi said he expected the tobacco advertising bill to win relatively easy passage in the House.

Book-Off Drive Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP)— Virtually all traffic on CNR and CP Rail lines in British Columbia was at a standstill today as a book-off by enginemen spread.

Spokesmen for both railways said freight and passenger service now is "completely paralyzed."

The book-off by enginemen, which started in the Vancouver area Wednesday, spread to Prince George in the north Sunday, disrupting operation of the CNR line between Jasper, Alta., and and Prince Rupert.

A CNR spokesman said only "three or four" engine crews still had not booked off on the northern line, but they were located at the ends of the line and could not maintain traffic.

CP Rail said its Dayliner service between Victoria and Courtenay on Vancouver Island was the only part of it system still running.

The book-off—to protest delayed negotiations between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the railways—and resulting layoffs have left about 4,000 railway employees out of work.

Thousands of other workers in industries dependent on the railroads could be laid off this week as the effects of the rail stoppage spreads.

OTHERS AFFECTED

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority said 80 employees on its lower mainland rail operation were laid off, effective Sunday midnight, because there was no work on lines connecting with CNR and CP Rail.

A Hydro spokesman said a skeleton crew of about 25 men will be kept on to shuttle freight from the U.S. border.

More than 3,300 CP Rail employees have been laid off in the Pacific region, and the jobs of another 1,500 employees are threatened if the book-off continues.

CN Rail has laid off between 500 and 600 men between Kamloops and Vancouver.

About 790 workers on both railways are involved in the book-offs in B.C.

Bob Gallagher, manager of the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association said a "good percentage" of the 6,000 men working in mills around Prince George will be out of work this week.

Railway spokesmen said the companies have agreed to meet with negotiators for the engineers' union in Montreal Tuesday, "prepared to negotiate to conclusion."

The dispute involves wages, vacations, statutory holidays, medical insurance, job differentials and a wide range of working rules.

CARGOES ON SIDINGS

The union is unhappy with the majority decision of a federal conciliation board which rejected the engineers' bid for a 13.4 per cent wage increase. The previous contract expired 11 months ago.

CP Rail has 4,000 cars of grain strung out from Vancouver to Calgary with 700 carloads on sidings in the Vancouver area. A CN spokesman said his company has some 3,500 cars of wheat between the coast and the Prairies.

Viet Cong Hit-Run Raid Leaves 33 Gls Dead

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese sappers ran through a United States artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest U.S. death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in U.S. control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. command said.

There was a general stepup in Communist action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon.

PINNED DOWN

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Viet Cong gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. Americal Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down fewer than 400 Americans defending the base. Dynamite bombs wrecked some artillery guns and cut some communication lines to rear headquarters.

ARTILLERY FIRE

A South Vietnamese fire base a few hundred yards away was not attacked. It provided artillery fire for the American base during the attack.

The two bases are midway between the Laotian border and the populous coastal lowlands and are the western-most anchor of southern combined forces defences in the region. Their mission is to harass North Vietnamese supply lines and infiltration corridors running to the coast.

Available records for the last four years show that the heaviest previous American toll in such an attack was 32 killed and 31 wounded when sappers hit Fire Base Henderson 17 miles south of the demilitarized zone May 6, 1970. However, 19 South Vietnamese were killed and 40 were wounded in that attack.

New Undersea Cable To Europe Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A new trans-Atlantic cable will be placed by 1974, capable of adding more than 1,840 telephone circuits between Canada and Europe, Communications Minister Eric Kierans announced in the Commons Monday.

Mr. Kierans said months of negotiation have resulted in agreement between Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp., a Crown-owned agency, and the British Post office. Canadian investment would be $37 million.

The cable would run from a point in Nova Scotia to a point in Cornwall, England.

The high-capacity cable would have 400 circuits more than all existing trans-Atlantic cables, he said.

HUGE SLICK OFF COAST

33 Lost as Oil Tanker Snaps in Two

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Thirty-three of 44 crew members were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a life-raft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the United States Coast Guard resumed a search for possible survivors.

A huge oil slick is 50 miles off coast and moving to the northwest.

Most of the missing crew were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The U.S. Coast Guard said it was a mystery why nearly two thirds of the crew apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661-foot vessel broke in two in 15-foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the coast guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

LEFT STERN

Both messages, the coast guard said, reported 20 crew members missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084-ton tanker early Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, Tex., said however that records showed 42 crew members aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft Sunday afternoon.

The coast guard had difficulty learning details of what happened, but a spokesman said one message from the Sasstown quoted the survivors as saying the stern section they abandoned sank half an hour afterward.

They were reported to have said the other crew members were scattered throughout the rest of the ship, which they saw for the last time at midnight, 18½ hours after they launched the raft. They did not see the rest of the ship sink, nor did they see any other rafts, the coast guard said.

FIND OIL SLICK

By the time the coast guard got a plane into the air late Sunday, all it found was a huge oil slick. The pilot, Lt.-Cmdr. Patrick H. Cannon, said the Sasstown by then was 145 miles east of Elizabeth City, N.C., in seas running eight to 10 feet.

The Texaco Oklahoma was en route from Port Arthur to Boston with a cargo of 220,000 barrels of sulphur fuel oil, the coast guard said.

WEATHER CONDITIONS CANCEL GOLF WINDUP

The weatherman Sunday stymied the windup round of the second annual Victoria intermediate golf championship.

The 36-hole tournament, restricted to players between 19 and 26 years of age, opened with an 18-hole round at Uplands on Saturday. But Sunday's round at Glen Meadows was called off when wind and rain produced deplorable conditions.

A Victoria District Golf Committee meeting Tuesday will determine if and when a replay of the second round may be held.

Colwood's Ron Howard, Jr., carded a one-under-par 69 at Uplands to take a four-stroke lead over Uplands' Al Cliff. Mike Gray of Uplands was third with 76 and Ken Floyd of Colwood four with 77.

Defending champion Dave Mick came in with a 78 while B.C. Amateur champion Carl Schwantje finished with a 10-over-par 80.

Canada's Return To World Hockey 'Without Strings'

GENEVA (AP) — A top Canadian hockey official said today he thinks there is a chance that a solution could be reached to bring Canada back into international play but emphasized: "It will be done with no strings attached.

Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and other Canadian officials met with the International Ice Hockey Federation until late Sunday night to try to find a solution to the problem of Canada's exclusion from world and Olympic tournaments.

Dawson said afterward: "We felt our meetings were fairly successful for Canada."

He said he thought Canada had a go-ahead for an open tournament and then said: "We'll have another meeting in eGneva before we leave for home to make sure there are no misunderstandings."

Such a tournament would involve Sweden, the Soviet Union ad Czechoslovakia.

MADE STAND KNOWN

"We made our stand at several meetings in Switzerland," Dawson said.

"Basically, we want open tournaments so that Canada can compete on a fair basis.

"We had a feeling that some members of the International Hockey Federation thought we were divided on the points we made.

"In our meetings here I think we have gotten across the idea that we are not split."

WANTS TOURNAMENT FIRST

Dawson emphasized he wanted the open tournament against the Swedes, Russians and Czechs first and then would discuss other issues from there.

"We're prepared to take one thing at a time," he said.

Bunny Ahearne, president of the federation, was not available for comment. But it appeared that a definitive move was being made to get the Canadians back into world hockey.

There may have to be more compromises before it happens. The Canadians fell out of world championships and the Olympics because they wanted to mix professionals with their amateurs.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, has said that he does not mind such a team competing against an amateur squad "If it is done for a worthy cause."

Obviously, Brundage and the IOC would never agree on a Canadian team mixed with pros into the Olympics.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union stepped on the ice against Finland today in an attempt to clinch its ninth straight world title.

The Russians beat West Germany 12-2 Saturday. Sweden, which struggled hard to edge the U.S. 4-3 Sunday, is the only team with a chance of overhauling the Russians.

Finland trounced the Germans 7-2 Sunday while the Czechs blanked the Americans 5-0 Saturday in the weekend's only other action.

Mighty Bruins Hard-Pressed By Villanova

(Times News Services)

UCLA's mighty Bruins retained the National Collegiate Athletic Association's basketball championship Saturday, but not before unheralded Villanova Wildcats presented a great argument at Houston.

Villanova, sparked by six-foot-eight Howard Porter, battled favored UCLA down to the wire before bowing 68-62.

Porter, a 22-year-old senior from Florida, scored 25 points and grabbed eight rebounds. His brilliant play earned him the outstanding player award of the NCAA tournament.

College baskatball's second biggest plum — the National Invitational Tournament at New York — went to North Carolina.

Powered by Bill Chamberlain's 34 points, the Tar Heels laced George Tech 84-66 in the NIT final.

Vikings Extend String to Four

University of Victoria Vikings are making a habit out of wrecking the title hopes of Oak Bay Wanderers.

For the fourth consecutive season Wanderers were the beaten finalists as Vikings walked off with the Barnard Cup, emblematic of first division supremacy in the Victoria Rugby Union.

Vikings downed Wanderers 22-10 in the playoff final Saturday at Macdonald Park.

In the second-division final for the Times Cup, Saanich Velox won the title for the second straight year with a 23-5 romp over James Bay Athletic Association.

Scoring in the first-division final included two penalty trys — relative rarities in rugby — one called by referee Bill Smith against Vikings in the first half and the other against Oak Bay midway through the second half.

FIRST PENALTY TRY

Vikings were leading 6-0 on trys by centre Garry Johnson and scrum-half Dave Slater when Smith called the first penalty try.

Smith pulled up Uvic wing-three-quarter Paul Carnes for pushing the ball out of play with his hand just a yard short of his line with three Oak Bay players converging on the spot in an attempt to score a try.

Fullback Don Burgess kicked the conversion to bring the score to 6-5 and pull Wanderers back into contention.

Sourred on by this turn of fortune, Oak Bay came alive with John Wenman, Mike Penn and Bob Iverson charging quickly from the scrum and disrupting the Uvic backfield.

LATE TACKLE

But it was John Wenman's brother, Jim — the Viking fullback — who went against the run of play and flashed through for a try to give Uvic a 9-5 lead at the intermission.

Smith awarded the second penalty try against Oak Bay when Vikings' Wenman booted through and was prevented from following the ball by a late tackle from Burgess. Hooker Derek Reimer converted to make the score 14-5.

With this state of developments, Oak Bay was demoralized and winger Reg Hoole dashed over for another two quick trys for Vikings. Reimer made good on one conversion attempt and boosted the score to 22-5.

In the final minute Oak Bay centre Jim Temple snatched a loose ball and dashed over for a try which Burgess converted.

VELOX UNDEFEATED

Saanich Velox remained unbeaten in 24 league and playoff matches this season with the victory.

James Bay opened strongly and kept Velox bottled up in its own end for the first 15 minutes of play. However, James Bay faltered shortly after the midway point of the first half and Velox led 11-5 at the intermission.

Billy Walton led Velox scoreres with two trys while single trys were added by John Howe, Tonny Carson, Danny Wallis and Bob Hissink. Lorne Bunyan converted one of the trys and Dave Kyle booted a penalty goal.

Bobby Reid dashed over the line for the lone JBAA try and Ross Irving supplied the convert.

Both Uvic Vikings and Velox now advance to the B.C. championships later this month at Vancouver. Mainland opponents will be decided in matches next weekend.

WHITE TAKES OVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert A. White of Vancouver was elected president of Ducks Unlimited (Canada) at the groups annual meeting. He succeeds Lorne M. Cameron of Winnipeg.

Tide XV To Tackle T-Birds

VANCOUVER — University of British Columbia Thunderbirds will play Victoria's Crimson Tide in the McKechnie Cup final here next Saturday.

UBC advanced to the provincial rugby final by rallying in the second half Saturday for an 11-9 victory over Norwest Caps. Norwest led 6-3 at the half.

Two brilliant tries by John Mitchell, coming in the last 10 minutes of play, brought UBC from behind. Mitchell raced 60 yards for his first try and then scooted 40 yards for the second.

Ray Banks completed UBC's total with a penalty kick and convert.

Ray Ellis accounted for all Norwest points by booting three penalty kicks.

Big Brother Thwarts Table Tennis Triple

Big brother Victor kept Eddie Lo of Vancouver from collecting three singles titles in the Western Canada table tennis championships Saturday at Central Junior High School.

Eddie captured the under-13 and under-15 crowns with wins over Peter Joe of Vancouver but bowed, 21-10, 17-21, 22-20, to Victor in the under-17 final.

Phillip Cheng and Ken Leong of Vancouver downed the Lo brothers 21-18, 23-21, to win the men's doubles title.

Judy Mack, a 12-year-old from Edmonton, won the under-15 girls' title by defeating Joy Jenkins of Vancouver. Miss Jenkins won the women's singles crown with a victory over Susan Mah of Edmonton.

Joan Harwood and Doreen Stelter of Vancouver paired up to down Miss Mack and Miss Mah in the women's doubles final.

John and Elizabeth Kurtz of Eugene, Ore., won mixed doubles laurels with a 17-21, 21-16, 21-15 win over Rajinder Singj and Miss Jenkins in the final.

Minor Hockey Series Tight

Saanich battled Victoria to a 3-3 tie in the second game of a best-of-three series for the Lower Island peewee pup hockey title Sunday at Memorial Arena.

Tracy Patterson, Guy Johnson and Phil Varcoe scored for Saanich while Mike Carlyle, Terry Olson and Steve Ruth counted for Victoria.

Saanich won the series' opening game. The third and deciding encounter at Pearkes Arena still has to be scheduled.

Saanich shaded Victoria 1-0 on a goal by Bill Adkin to tie a two-game, total-points series for the peewee crown 3-3 and force a third game.

UPSET in final of women's invitational tennis tournament at New York Saturday was Billie Jean King (above), who lost 6-4, 6-4 decision to Rosemary Cassals in battle of California rivals. It was only third defeat in 29 matches on professional tour this season for Mrs. King, who retains money lead with total of $27,450. Miss Casals collected $5,000 Saturday and is second with $22,750.

HUSKIES REIGN . . . . . IN BASKETBALL

Awards Offer Solace

VANCOUVER — North Delta Huskies today reign as British Columbia's high school boys basketball champions but Vancouver Island find some consolation in the post-tournament awards.

Sparked by Dave Coutu's passing excellence and his 12-point contribution, Huskies tripped Vancouver City College Irish 43-38 in the tournament windup Saturday.

Vancouver Island's best finish was the fourth-place showing of Oak Bay, who earned the ranking with a 58-38 triumph over Burnaby South Rebels. Centre Doug Walton (17 points) and guard Peter Gibson (15) sparked Oak Bay's attack.

Oak Bay, coached by Don Horwood, was selected as the most sportsmanlike team in the three-day tournament.

The most coveted post-tourney award, however, went to a player who didn't appear in the championship final. Lars Hansen, a six-foot-10 centre from Coquitlam, was voted the most valuable player after sparking Centennials to a third-place finish.

Hansen, Walton, Coutu, Werner Spann of Abbotsford and Nick Gallagher, who paced Vancouver College in the final with 15 points, were first-team all-stars.

The second team was made up of Stu Graham and Mike McNeill of North Delta, Dwayne Koop of Abbotsford, Rick Wilander and Paul Spelliscy of Vancouver College.

New Westminster Hyacks finished fifth in the tournament standings with a 63-53 win over North Vancouver Norsemen.

Rugby Union Champs

PARIS (Reuter) — Wales won the international Rugby Union championship with a record of four victories when it defeated France, 9-5, in the final match of the season today. France led, 5-3, at half-time.

Nanaimo Unbeaten In Bantam Battles

Nanaimo swept through the first two days of competition in undefeated fashion to take the lead in the three-day, round-robin B.C. bantam hockey championship at Pearkes Arena.

The tourney, which continued today, is scheduled to wind up tonight.

In the tourney opener, Saturday Nanaimo fought to a 2-2 tie with North Shore and then went on to take a 6-4 win over Cranbrook Saturday as well as a 7-2 triumph over Trail and a 5-3 win over Prince George on Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Trail downed North Kamloops 4-3, North Shore bounced Cranbrook 6-3, Prince George beat North Shore 5-3 and Cranbrook slipped by North Kamloops, 7-6.

Prince George defeated Trail 5-3, and North Shore humbled North Kamloops 5-1 in other Saturday battles.

Standings, with a total of five games to be played:

Japanese Side Topples Hosts

West Tatsuno Sports Scouts, a Japanese girls' volleyball team touring British Columbia, topped two teams Sunday at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

The visitors had no difficulty disposing of a Victoria District Vollybal Association team, 15-10, 15-5.

But while facing the B.C. Olympics Club of Delta, which is accompanying them on tour, the Japanese lost the middle game 15-8 after collecting a 15-5 victory in the opener.

In the final game, however, the Japanese team nailed down a 15-4 win.

BEST SELLERS

Nothing's Too Low For a Jackie Fan

By Jack Scott

The woman who phoned had identified herself as the manager of one of our town's better-known news-magazine shops. She was obviously a person of refinement and discernment. Equally obviously, she was hopping mad.

"You wrote that entire article about the pornography that's available in our book stores," said she, oozing indignation. "Why not give a careful look now at some truly disgraceful literature — the Jackie Onassis magazine racket? That is, if you can stomach it."

A reader's wish is my command. So off I headed, hippity-hop to the lady's busy, cluttered shop, there to confront enormous racks laden with the garbage that — and how I hate to report this! — Victoria's women have made the best-selling periodicals in these parts.

I selected an even dozen of the more than 30 such magazines on display, 11 of them at 50 cents a copy, one at 40 cents, and retired to my chambers. As the lady had anticipated the problem was to resist physical illness.

Scott

The names of these magazines are practically indistinguishable — Photo TV Land, TV Inside Movie, TV Radio Mirror, Screen Mirror, Movie TV Secrets, Star-Time, TV Screen Secrets, Screen and TV Album and so on.

Their second common factor is that they retail every last shred of manufactured gossip and make-believe scandal, month after dreary month, that's related to Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, widow of President John F. Kennedy, wife of Aristotle Onassis.

The first of these magazines appeared immediately following Jackie's wedding to the Greek shipping magnate on the island of Scorpios on Oct. 20, 1968. They tapped a strange cult, largely made up, it seems, of middle-class women so hungry for a vicarious participation in the life of "Jackie O" that any shred of information from her shoe size (10A) to her favorite cocktails (Bloody Marys and daiquiries) has become the most marketable commodity in journalism — to use the word loosely.

★ ★ ★

Far from waning, the circulation has built steadily, here as well as in the rest of Canada and the United States. Many are now in their third year of publication and coining profits.

A glance at the covers of these magazines down the long racks of any news shop, in supermarkets, in department stores and drug stores, gives an indication of what this mysterious reading public of women is looking for:

Item: "The strange relationship that shocks the jet set! How Jackie and Her Sister Share Everything! Lee's Dates with Ari! Her Husband's Meetings with Jackie: Those Wild, Wild Parties!"

Item: "Jackie Boasts About Ari's Sex Powers: 'No Normal Woman Can Resist Him'."

Item: "Jackie Shocked as Ari Shouts 'Blackmail' at Intimate Friend Because of Callas!"

Item: "Caroline's Forbidden Love: Jackie Cries: 'He's Not Good Enough for You!' "

Item: "Caroline Kennedy's 'Sneak Dates' with an Older Man! How Jackie Is Pushing Her Daughter into a Teen Marriage!"

Item: "Jackie Drives Homosexual Away from Her Son!"

Item: "Jackie's Fear — Why Caroline Can't Have Babies!"

Item: "Everything You Want to Know About Jackie — But Are Afraid to Ask!"

The verity gap between these sensational teasers and the grey content of the articles on the inside is just as enormous as anyone with a child's IQ would guess. It is, month after month, a game of Russian Roulette with the laws of libel and slander. The most mentally retarded of readers, having perused any one of these magazines, would recognize that the goods are not as advertised. Yet, it seems, the same sad women buy them over and over, indiscriminately except for their response to the juiciness of the bait on the cover.

What is this "strange relationship" in which Jackie and her sister, Lee Radziwell, share "everything"? Don't hold your breath. Just that the Radziwells and the Onassises "are seen together just about everywhere including the evenings that end up in post-midnight swims!" So much for those "wild, wild parties" that shock the jet set.

Did Jackie really boast about Ari's sex powers? Well, not quite. The writer digs up her alleged remark: "He is only five foot one inch tall, but when he is talking to me, he seems to grow gradually taller. After five minutes I have the feeling that the only thing that matters is to be part of his life."

Was Jackie shocked as Ari shouted blackmail? Who knows? The story, itself, is simply a fast re-write of the court proceedings involving Panaghis Vergottis, Maria Callas and Onassis, all of it in your daily newspaper of three years ago.

What was Caroline's "forbidden love"? Some highly circumstantial evidence from "a friend of the Onassis family" that a Greek gardener and his 14-year-old son on Skorpios were transferred to another of the Onassis' estates because the boy was seen holding hands with Caroline. Caroline is 13 years of age. Heigh ho!

Well, then, how about Caroline's secret dates with an older man and is Jackie pushing her into a teen marriage? The older man is identified as "15-year-old Denny, a very attentive little playmate," and another unidentified boy "who looks even older." How is Jackie pushing her? "Jackie probably hasn't ever said that she wants Caroline to marry young, or marry an older man, but just the same, the situation they are all in has forced Jackie to push Caroline toward just that."

★ ★ ★

How did Jackie drive a homosexual away from her son? That story goes back to the White House when a Secret Service man reported that a staff member was homosexual. "Jackie promptly had the individual dismissed, explaining, 'I can't take the chance of having someone like this around the children!' " End of story.

Yes, but what's this about Jackie's fear that Caroline can't have children? The salient paragraph: "Apparently it was about this time (Bobby Kennedy's assassination) that Caroline told her mother that she would never have children because she was afraid they would be killed."

Finally, we have the real inside story — everything you wanted to know, but were afraid to ask. And there the reader will find that (a) Jackie has enough shoes to be able to wear a different pair every day of the year; (b) the Onassises own 12 automobiles, including three Rolls-Royces, complete with telephones; (c) they employ 202 full-time domestic servants.

So, at a cost of $5.90, I ended my little trip into a never-never land of total unreality and when the news-magazine shop manager and I traded impressions we couldn't quite agree.

Her response was anger — anger that hypocritical publishers, editors and writers should so exploit the public, anger that Jackie Onassis' privacy should be so invaded, anger that, in the era of the women's liberation movement, so many women are obviously ill-prepared for it.

My response was sadness — sadness that some fellow-writers and editors could be so cynical, sadness at the evidence that so many women appear to have deprived, empty lives, sadness that things don't seem to have changed much since H. L. Mencken observed that no one ever went broke under-estimating the intelligence of the public.

IT'S WET— BUT COULD BE WORSE

It's been a long wet winter, sending rainfall records toppling, but Greater Victoria remains the most favored spot in the area.

Readings taken this morning show 2.45 inches of rain fell at Gonzales during March and 9.84 inches between Jan. 1 and now. These compare to the average figures of 1.97 and 9.58 inches for the two periods.

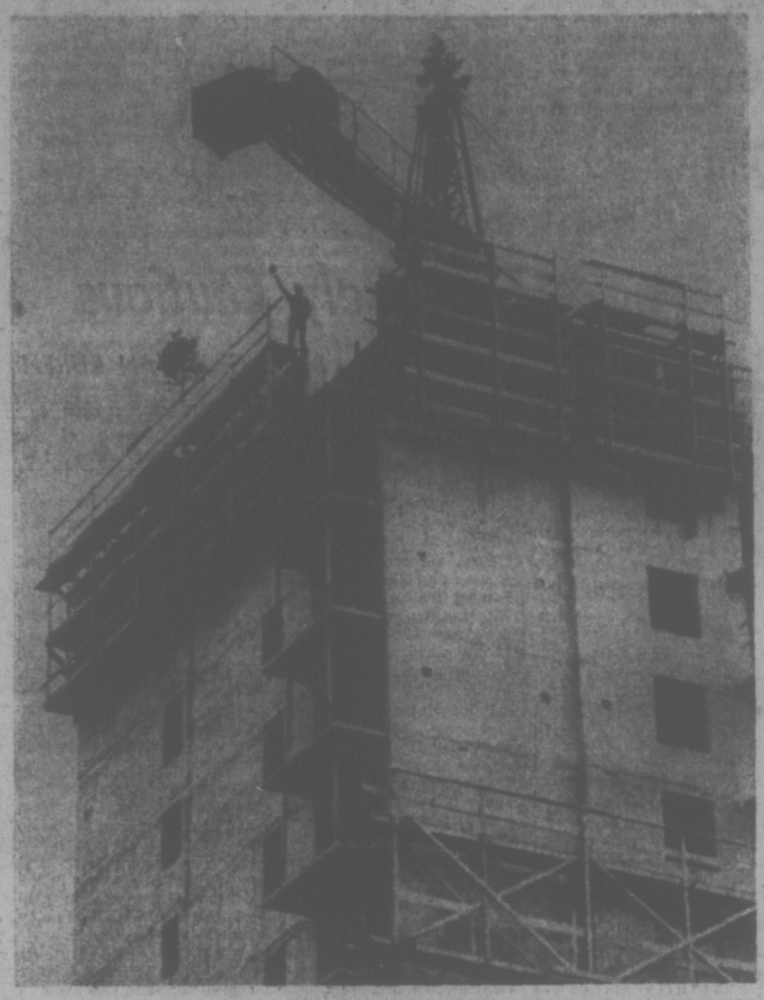
But, says chief weather official Allan McQuarrie, these increases are very slight compared with those in Vancouver and other parts of Vancouver Island.

Vancouver was drenched with six inches this month and readings at the Victoria International airport show a total of 4.64 inches for March and 14.87 inches since the beginning of the year.

He warns that there is little hope for the end of the gale-rain combination that has hit Victoria during the last few days, bringing storm systems over the area twice a day.

Southeasterlies blowing between 25 and 30 miles an hour are expected to switch to 25 m.p.h. westerlies this evening.

This means rain can be expected today and Tuesday, leading to more spring-like sunny skies Wednesday.



DANISH CELEBRATION of "rejsegilde," which takes place when a new building reaches its maximum height, was held at the corner of View and Quadra this morning atop the 18-storey highrise of Westsea Construction Ltd., of Vancouver. Foreman carpenter Rick Ferrill raises his cap to the Victoria skyline, flanked by the customary evergreens which are hoisted to the top during the Danish ceremony. The building will provide low-cost apartments and is designed for commercial outlets on the main floor and underground parking. (Photo by Bill Halkett).

Breakwater: Yacht Club Swings Back

Royal Victoria Yacht Club lashed back today at new criticism of its proposal to build a breakwater to protect winter mooring in Cadboro Bay.

The club's proposal for a 600-foot rubble breakwater six feet high was attacked Sunday night at a meeting of the newly-formed Oak Bay Beach Protection Association.

The group, led by Norman Dixon, voted to ask Oak Bay council to delay aproval of the club's application until a hydraulic study of the breakwater's effects can be carried out.

Independent Survey Sought

The resolution called for the study to be carried out by "an independent, competent hydraulic laboratory ... so all possible measurements of the ecological effects can be ascertained."

The resolution was passed unanimously by the 47 persons at the meeting. This number included 12 yacht club members.

Engineer John Graeme, chairman of the yacht club's breakwater committee, said club members wholeheartedly supported the new group's concern for the ecology of Cadboro Bay.

"I've been in the anti-pollution business myself for 20 years," Graeme said today. "If I thought this breakwater was going to constitute an ecological disaster or near-disaster I wouldn't have anything to do with it."

He noted that the yacht club was an "insignificant" polluter compared with the raw sewage from 186 homes on Humber Point already being dumped into the bay.

Graeme also discounted fears of beach erosion, which he said would require a tide rate of one-half knot "which simply is not there."

Another club spokesman expressed surprise today at criticism of the breakwater levelled by the B.C. Towboat Owners' Association and the Greater Victoria Mill Operators' Association.

"This criticism is not new, but we are surprised that they (the towboat operators) of all people should be upset, considering the constant damage being done in the bay by logs torn from booms during storms," he said.

'Strictly Commercial Operation'

The tugboaters expressed fears the breakwater would force the movement farther to sea of a set of dolphins now used by boats to tie up at during unexpected storms.

"This is strictly a commercial operation, and one which has caused boats to sink from collisions with logs and considerable municipal expense in cleaning up beaches."

One towboat operator said the dolphins offer the only protection between Victoria and Saanichton for boats towing booms in rough water.

This skipper said swells would come in, hit the breakwater and roll back, damaging the inside of booms already being buffeted by rough water on the outside.

Not so, said Graeme. The waves would hit the breakwater at a maximum angle of 15 degrees, and would break along or over the 16-foot top surface of the structure instead of rebounding.

The club's plans, based on preliminary hydraulic studies already carried out, would extend 600 feet and would stand 12 feet out of the water at low tide and be about level with the surface at high tide, for an average height of six feet. Cost is estimated at $160,000.

The proposal has been forwarded to the federal department of transport, who will ask Oak Bay council for their recommendation.

Council will consider the matter at a meeting April 19.

Inside Workers Vote Tonight

Inside city hall employees are expected tonight to vote in favor of a work contract giving them a 15-per-cent wage hike over two years.

Victoria council accepted the wage settlement Thursday, following a mediation report that recommended a 7½ per cent wage increase in 1971 and again in 1972.

Frank Preston, president of local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today his executive has recommended to the membership to accept the settlement.

The settlement affects about 180 employees. Police, firemen, outside workers and other smaller unions have still to come to contract settlements with the city.

The increase was in line with a similar contract signed earlier this month between Saanich and that municipality's employees.

Student Head Survives Non-Confidence Motion

Alma Mater Society president Ian J. McKinnon survived a non-confidence motion Sunday night at the University of Victoria during a meeting of the representative assembly.

Another motion passed by the assembly called for a general meeting of students to discuss the McKinnon issue and possibly to call for a referendum on whether he should resign.

During three-and-a-half hours of debate before a gallery of 150 students that packed the upper lounge of the Student Union Building, McKinnon defended himself against a wide range of criticism.

ACCUSATIONS

He was accused of conflict of interest, failing to represent the students, vacillation on crucial issues, "plotting" with the university administration and making misleading and untrue statements to the press.

"In answer to all the charges — not guilty," McKinnon said.

"I stand on my record.

"I do not believe that the charges against me warrant my resignation."

McKinnon survived the non-confidence motion of Brian Green and Alastair Murdoch by nine votes, 23-14 in a roll-call vote.

BOOS, JEERS

The motion failed to a loud chorus of boos, jeers and cries of "Resign! Resign!" and "Impeach the RA!" from the gallery.

Green led the attack on McKinnon with charges the president had consistently been inconsistent in his position.

"McKinnon's policies have been like a grandfather clock's penduluffi — swinging from one side to the other," Green said in speaking to his motion.

Greg Fraser spoke in defence of McKinnon, claiming he was moderate in his views on the president's activities.

Pat Dunae argued McKinnon should be allowed an individual vote on issues as a member of the AMS.

"We talk about a purge," he said. "We're experiencing a purge."

Steering committee member Paul Watson said he had been waiting to deliver a message to the administration one morning when McKinnon and three other members of the RA who voted against the motion for an extra year for professors walked out of a meeting with Uvic president Bruce Partridge, Chancellor Roderick Haig-Brown and chairman of the board of governors Willard Ireland.

He accused McKinnon, former AMS president Robert McDougall, Dennis Steinle, and faculty representative Dr. R. L. Wright of psychology of "plotting against the RA" with the administration.

Wright responded that McKinnon had made mistakes but with good intent.

"I have seen him with my own eyes commit several whoppers in a row. But his heart was in the right place," he said.

RCMP Band On Tour

The RCMP Band will perform in Victoria May 19.

The RCMP's most extensive tour ever planned will be featured in British Columbia's centennial celebrations. The tour begins at Dawson Creek May 12.

A Musical Ride will also be on tour. The Victoria performance date is not yet known.

Dorsey Belts Out Love

By SALLY GLOVER

WILLA . . . prays for the rent money

"Dorsey, Dorsey, don't you know you're a movie star?", shouted the excited neighborhood children.

Willa Dorsey did not.

She knew she'd been on the Lawrence Welk show, but didn't realize quite what that had done for her.

Her singing had made her famous — not wealthy, she says.

She was "blessed with a voice, has God behind her" and travels the world "expressing joy and happiness of the new way of life," through song, not money.

She does it all without an agent.

"The days of treating an artist like a human being are gone. All agents want you to do is make money — fast! And I don't feel like being a juke-box music computer.

"Some Hollywood people think I'm nutty," she said, "but so many of them are unhappy.

●

"It keeps me praying!

"I'm an expert at praying for rent," she said, laughing. "But sometimes it gives me heart failure waiting."

People take collections for her, churches usually pay her air fare and national television appearances and her recordings bring in enough to keep her belting out the songs.

"I usually come home from an engagement with about $15" she chuckled.

"That's what turns the kids on," she said.

" 'You could be making all that money and you come to sing for us little snot noses?'", one little fan said to Willa.

"I've had so many chances to sing popular songs for great sums of money, but singing the word of God, especially to young people, means more to me than riches," Willa explained.

More popular singers have been hassled by young people and "can't understand how I enjoy them," she said. "I sing the same songs at the schools as I do at church and they sit there like little angels."

Even in the middle of Saturday's University of Victoria dispute, Willa Dorsey belted out songs such as Oh When the Saints Came Marching In, and using her piano as background, talked of problems "we shall overcome."

●

The listeners were few, but deeply intent and for a change, everyone left smiling.

Willa says she can't blame the young people for rebelling. "There's so much phoniness in old people today. Young people have an anxious mind and they want to be on the go."

"But you blow your mind when you're too free. We should chastise our kids. I'm so rough and they love me for it."

When she's not praying for rent, she's praying for her "young people."

"They liked telling me their problems. They ask me to pray for them," she says. "I've had some beautiful testimonies — some trying to get off dope, others worried about exams; they call me in the middle of the night sometimes. That at least keeps me in contact."

After her week in Victoria Miss Dorsey left today after an exhaustive weekend.

Tuesday she must be in Hollywood to start working on the Lawrence Welk Easter special.

Highway Crashes Put Two Persons In Hospital

Two people are in hospital today, one in fair condition with head injuries suffered in separate traffic accidents over the weekend.

Allan Kerry Johnston, 19, of 611 Admirals, is in fair condition at Naden Hospital after being transferred from hospital in Duncan.

He was the driver of a car that crashed early Sunday on the Trans-Canada Highway two miles south of Mill Bay.

Laura Frankish, 489 Swinford, is in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with injuries she suffered in a two-car collision on Highway 1A near the Six-Mile House about 6 p.m. Sunday.

LIFE AT HARD LABOR OR DEATH

★★★★

Jury Finds Calley Guilty

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — A military jury today convicted Lt. William Calley Jr. of the premeditated murder of at least 22 unarmed, unresisting Vietnamese in the massacre at My Lai.

The six army officers who sat in judgment in the landmark case must now decide whether Calley must die for his crimes.

There were four charges against Calley, one alleging that he killed 30, another that he killed 70, a third that he killed a white-robed man and the fourth charging he killed an infant. All were unarmed, unresisting — old men, women and children.

The jury found him guilty, in the first charge, of killing at least one villager, in the second of killing at least 20, and convicted him of killing the white-robed man. It found him guilty of assault with intent to murder the infant in the fourth charge.

Calley, his face flushed, raised his hand in a weak salute when the jury finished reading its verdict. It made mandatory a sentence of life in military prison at hard labor or death. A unanimous vote of the jury is necessary for the death penalty.

The verdict meant that at least four of the jurors believed Calley had a "premeditated design to kill, formed with a specific intent prior to firing on or ordering his men to fire on the villagers who witnesses said were screaming in fright and pain.

The verdict was the end of an ordeal that began Sept. 5, 1969, for Calley when he was charged one day prior to his scheduled dismissal from the army. He is to be confined in the post stockade until sentencing procedure begins.

It was learned the jury had reached a verdict only a short time after the judge said he would decide what he could do to hurry the panel up.

DEMONSTRATORS CLASH outside the University of Toronto convocation hall after a group disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand, accused of being in FLQ.

'Death to FLQ', Say Protesters

TORONTO (CP) — Five persons were arrested Sunday after demonstrators disrupted a speech by Quebec labor leader Michel Chartrand.

Two men were injured and a University of Toronto caretaker was temporarily blinded by an irritant sprayed from an aerosol can by a protester as University of Toronto police and members of the audience ejected 20 persons from Convocation Hall.

★ ★ ★

Chartrand, president of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and Montreal lawyer Robert Lemieux were making the final appearance of a cross-Canada tour sponsored by the Toronto-based Emergency Committee for the Defence of Political Rights in Quebec.

Both are free on bail, awaiting trial on charges of being members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Chartrand was approaching the podium when a youth yelled "Death to the FLQ" and about 12 others, who later said they were members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society, took up the chant.

University police and crowd marshals ejected the protesters. In the ensuing melee a smoke bomb was hurled into the audience of about 700 students, windows were smashed and the heavy wooden door of Convocation Hall was split.

The demonstration had ended by the time five cruisers of Toronto police arrived but a police spokesman said several empty cans of a United States-made irritant spray similar to tear-gas were found. Police also found two full cans and two smoke bombs.

Pakistani Army In Control

NEW DELHI (CP) — East Pakistani rebels were reported holding out at various points today, but the West Pakistani army appeared to be in control of Dacca, the eastern capital.

The rebel radio said that fighting was continuing in Dacca, in the port city of Chittagong and in the towns of Rangpur and Khulna. But the government's Radio Pakistan said the situation in the East was returning to normal, with all government employees returning to work today, banks reopening and the curfew in Dacca lifted from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The rebel and government radios were the only remaining sources of news from the Bengali half of Pakistan since all foreign correspondents were expelled from Dacca during the weekend. But Associated Press correspondent Arnold Zeitlin reported on his arrival in Ceylon Sunday from Dacca that the government troops were in full control of the eastern capital.

Zeitlin said between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were believed killed in fighting Friday and Saturday. Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the Bengali political leader who had been campaigning to end West Pakistan's control of the East, was reported by Radio Pakistan to be in army custody. But other reports, believed to have come from the sheik's supporters, said he was directing the "liberation struggle" from the eastern city of Chittagong.

THOUSANDS FLED

Thousands fled Dacca, Zeitlin said.

Meanwhile a clandestine radio said today the government radio station in Dacca was captured by the secessionist "liberation army" after fierce fighting, reported the Press Trust of India.

Struck Goods Clause Vetoed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Mediation Commission today rejected Teamsters' Union demands for inclusion of a controversial "struck goods" clause in a master agreement covering the general trucking industry in the province.

The dispute between the union and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association, representing the majority of trucking firms in B.C., was sent to the commission for a binding decision after the provincial government stepped in last month to end a week-long strike-lockout in the industry.

The dispute centred around the struck goods clause, which the union demanded in order that its members would not have to handle goods moved across a legal picket line.

In an 11-page judgment signed by commission chairman John Parker, the commission said the trade-unions act of B.C. "recognizes legal strikes and lockouts but limits picketing to the employer's place of business, operations or employment." It added:

PROTECTION

"The law says in effect, that no trade union or other person shall endeavour to persuade anyone not to handle struck goods. It would be high-handed indeed for us to withdraw this protection which the legislature has granted employers and if we did so, we would clearly be violating the spirit of the law if not the law itself."

The agreement includes a new schedule of wages agreed to by the 3,500-member union and the association last January. Wages under the new contract range from $4.20 an hour for swampers and warehousemen to $4.35 for drivers of heavy trucks, retroactive to Jan. 1.

FIRST Communist chief of state to pay an official visit to Pope Paul, is President Tito of Yugoslavia who conferred for more than an hour with the pontiff today. The pope hailed relations between the Vatican and Yugoslavia and an example of how the church and Communist countries can live peacefully together.

Trains Stand Still

VANCOUVER (CP)— Virtually all traffic on CNR and CP Rail lines in British Columbia was at a standstill today as a book-off by enginemen spread.

Spokesmen for both railways said freight and passenger service now is "completely paralyzed."

The book-off by enginemen, which started in the Vancouver area Wednesday, spread to Prince George in the north Sunday, disrupting operation of the CNR line between Jasper, Alta., and and Prince Rupert.

A CNR spokesman said only "three or four" engine crews still had not booked off on the northern line, but they were located at the ends of the line and could not maintain traffic.

CP Rail said its Dayliner service between Victoria and Courtenay on Vancouver Island was the only part of it system still running.

The book-off—to protest delayed negotiations between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the railways—and resulting layoffs have left about 4,000 railway employees out of work.

Thousands of other workers in industries dependent on the railroads could be laid off this week as the effects of the rail stoppage spreads.

OTHERS AFFECTED

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority said 80 employees on its lower mainland rail operation were laid off, effective Sunday midnight, because there was no work on lines connecting with CNR and CP Rail.

A Hydro spokesman said a skeleton crew of about 25 men will be kept on to shuttle freight from the U.S. border.

More than 3,300 CP Rail employees have been laid off in the Pacific region, and the jobs of another 1,500 employees are threatened if the book-off continues.

CN Rail has laid off between 500 and 600 men between Kamloops and Vancouver.

About 790 workers on both railways are involved in the book-offs in B.C.

Bob Gallagher, manager of the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association said a "good percentage" of the 6,000 men working in mills around Prince George will be out of work this week.

Railway spokesmen said the companies have agreed to meet with negotiators for the engineers' union in Montreal Tuesday, "prepared to negotiate to conclusion."

The dispute involves wages, vacations, statutory holidays, medical insurance, job differentials and a wide range of working rules.

CARGOES ON SIDINGS

CP Rail has 4,000 cars of grain strung out from Vancouver to Calgary with 700 carloads on sidings in the Vancouver area. A CN spokesman said his company has some 3,500 cars of wheat between the coast and the Prairies.

OUTSIDE WORKERS VOTE FOR STRIKE

About 240 Victoria municipal employees voted in favor of a strike Sunday to back up their contract proposals to the city.

The employees are outside workers with parks, traffic and street departments, members of local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

No strike can be taken until the mediation officer's report is presented, or until he reports no mediated settlement is possible.

Viet Cong Hit-Run Raid Leaves 33 GIs Dead

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese sappers ran through a United States artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest U.S. death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in U.S. control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. command said.

There was a general stepup in Communist action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon.

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Viet Cong gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. Americal Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

ARTILLERY FIRE

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down fewer than 400 Americans defending the base. Dynamite bombs wrecked some artillery guns and cut some communication lines to rear headquarters.

A South Vietnamese fire base a few hundred yards away was not attacked. It provided artillery fire for the American base during the attack.

Available records for the last four years show that the heaviest previous American toll in such an attack was 32 killed and 31 wounded when sappers hit Fire Base Henderson 17 miles south of the demilitarized zone May 6, 1970. However, 19 South Vietnamese were killed and 40 were wounded in that attack.

HUGE SLICK OFF COAST

33 Lost as Oil Tanker Snaps in Two

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Thirty-three of 44 crew members were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a liferaft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the United States Coast Guard resumed a search for possible survivors.

A huge oil slick is 50 miles off coast and moving to the northwest.

Most of the missing crew were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The U.S. Coast Guard said it was a mystery why nearly two thirds of the crew apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661-foot vessel broke in two in 15-foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the coast guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

LEFT STERN

Both messages, the coast guard said, reported 20 crew members missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084-ton tanker early Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, Tex., said however that records showed 42 crew members aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft Sunday afternoon.

The coast guard had difficulty learning details of what happened, but a spokesman said one message from the Sasstown quoted the survivors as saying the stern section they abandoned sank half an hour afterward.

They were reported to have said the other crew members were scattered throughout the rest of the ship, which they saw for the last time at midnight, 18½ hours after they launched the raft. They did not see the rest of the ship sink, nor did they see any other rafts, the coast guard said.

FIND OIL SLICK

By the time the coast guard got a plane into the air late Sunday, all it found was a huge oil slick. The pilot, Lt.-Cmdr. Patrick H. Cannon, said the Sasstown by then was 145 miles east of Elizabeth City, N.C., in seas running eight to 10 feet.

The Texaco Oklahoma was en route from Port Arthur to Boston with a cargo of 220,000 barrels of sulphur fuel oil, the coast guard said.
